Nixon, Humphrey Exchange Final Broadsides On Possible New Vietnam Infiltration Report

WASHINGTON - (AP) - The tumultuous 1968 presidential campaign neared an end Monday night with Republican Richard M. Nixon citing a report of possible new enemy infiltration of South Vietnam and Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey declaring the report was an attempt to "frighten the American people."

The political crossfire, centered on President Johnson's decision to halt the bombing of North Vietnam, came as Nixon, Humphrey and third-party candidate George C. Wallace fired election eve broadsides at the nation's divided electorate.

All three presidential contenders appeared in national network telecasts only a few hours after a new poll boosted Humphrey into the lead for the first time in the campaign.

Citing an unidentified Air Force general as his source, Nixon declared he had a "very disturbing report" that "thousands of tons of supplies are being moved over the Ho Chi Minh Trail" into South Vietnam. He did not elaborate.

The GOP candidate also implied criticism of the President's bombing halt order by saying Johnson acted on the advice of a "tired" team of diplomats. If the war isn't ended by Jan. 20, Nixon said, "I am going to bring in a new diplomat team and they will end the war."

Questioned later about the Nixon statement, Humphrey said it was a "totally irresponsible charge" and "totally unsubstantiated."

HUMPHREY REPLIES

"Now, Mr. Nixon," Humphrey said, "I think you know very well that the President's orders to stop the bombing of the North did not include the Ho Chi Minh trail... The Ho Chi Minh trail is subject to intensive American air power as it has been in the past and is even more so now..."

Continuing to address Nixon, Humphrey added: "What you and I should be doing is asking the government of South Vietnam to attend the conference in Paris, and backing our President, and not in any way spreading any misinformation that would upset the American people."

Nixon made his first criticism of Johnson's bombing halt decision only a few hours after former President Dwight D. Eisenhower praised the GOP nominee for "statesmanlike conduct" in supporting the President.

Noting the new polls showing Humphrey gains, Eisenhower urged voters not to be swayed by the bombing halt decision.

Even with the last-gasp political flurries, the possibility remained that Tuesday's voting would be inconclusive--that no candidate would emerge with the 270 electoral votes needed to become the 37th president of the United States.

The final Harris survey disclosed by the New York Post, gives Humphrey 43 per cent of the vote to 40 per cent for Nixon, a swing of 5 per cent to the Democratic nominee in 24 hours. The next-to-last Harris poll had been the same as the last Gallup Poll--both showing Nixon ahead 42 per cent to Humphrey's 40 per cent.

POLL RAPPED

Nixon headquarters in New York termed the last Harris poll "a gratuitous concoction" and said in a statement it would fail to "con the voters into believing Hubert H. Humphrey can win the election."

But in Washington, Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said "we are over the top now in the polls, and we will be over the top Tuesday in the election."

Both the Harris and Gallup polls showed Wallace, the former Alabama governor, running third with about 15 per cent.

Eisenhower, in the statement issued from Walter Reed Army Hospital where he is recovering from a series of heart attacks, said the newest polls suggest "the American people may have been swayed" by Johnson's order to halt bombardment of North Vietnam.

Referring to South Vietnam's reluctance to join in the Paris peace talks, the 78-year-old retired general said this "suggested to many people that the President acted hastily, perhaps seeking to influence the election"

Humphrey's running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, joined the Democratic nominee in Los Angeles. The Republican vice presidential nominee, Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, campaigned in Charleston, W. Va. and Richmond, Va., while Wallace's partner, retired Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, appeared in Texas, Utah and California.

The presidential contenders will return to their homes to await the election result; Humphrey in Waverly, Minn., Nixon in New York and Wallace in Montgomery, Ala.

Equality in Wichita Education Goal of Upcoming LEAP Report

Equality of education in Wichita will be defined in depth and recommendations made for improvement when the Low Economic Area Problems (LEAP) committee unveils its findings in the near future.

The LEAP committee, headed by Louis Goldman, assistant professor of education at WSU, was formed to study low socio-economic problems of the area. It began as a result of a letter received by the Wichita School Board last April, written by Lloyd R. Henderson, education branch chief of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It called for:

- *Closing of Mathewson Junior High School and several predominantly Negro elementary schools.
- *Acceleration of programs to desegregate faculty which would eliminate the concentration of Negro teachers in some areas.
- *Suspension of construction plans for an addition to Isely School.
- "The LEAP committee is not a committee as such; it is interested in creating the most fruitful classroom atmosphere" said Dr. Goldman. "It may give the chance to emphasize what is really needed in Wichita - help for the disadvantaged, regardless of color.

Formulation of LEAP recommendations will come from four sub-committees composed of area educators and administrators.

The four sub-committees represent different levels of data to be gathered for the program. They consisted of:

- *A "total climate" sub-committee whose purpose it was to designate the attitudes and feelings of the Wichita area as a whole.
- *The "student and environment" sub-committees which through questionnaire and observation, compared data of I.Q. and achievement with attitudes and student opinions.
- *The third sub-committee covered "teacher and staff attitudes." This group compared attitudes, and place of employment to their respective race and degrees of education.

"The fourth compared "school facilities, buildings, and equipment." Teams of experts from outside the city objectively surveyed 25 schools and drew their conclusions.

The LEAP committee has not only attracted interest in this area but nationwide as well.

"Its existence has acted as a catalyst in the change of many influential people's attitudes" said Dr. Goldman. "We only hope that the school administrators will heed our recommendations.

Campus Itself Provides Cause For Riotous Situation Says Dean

By RON WYLIE
Staff Writer

"The campus itself provides ample cause for student unrest," Dean of Students James Rhatigan said Friday.

Addressing a meeting of the College Division of the Kansas State Teachers' Association, Rhatigan explained that institutions of higher learning provided, in varying degrees, an abundance of examples of triviality, inter-college and interdepartmental rivalries, increasing professional specialization, poor undergraduate teaching, curricular fragmentation, and open disinterest in the institution regarding student problems "by those who should care most."

Commenting on his theme of "student rebellion," Rhatigan told the teachers it would be misleading to talk about dissent in higher education as a totally understood phenomenon. He also remarked that while dissent now seems quite new, it actually is not new at all in our educational system. Rhatigan said that intensity, tone, and other behavioral shadings present the important distinctions between responsible and irresponsible forms of dissent.

As it relates to the school system, Rhatigan stated, "We have long asked students to care about their education and have attacked them for their apathy. It appears now that in some quarters they are being frustrated in attempting to respond."

INTELLIGENT YOUTH

The Dean conceded the fact there were some left-wing troublemakers, anarchists, ungracious spoiled brats, and immature, ungrateful kids in the ranks of the dissenters. "There are also," he countered, "some highly intelligent, thoughtful, sensitive young people who wonder about the world they are living in and who are genuinely, sincerely questioning the role of the University." Most of the young dissenters today, according to Rhatigan, have been raised in an historical moment of chronic violence and cold war. They now live within the shadow of overkill and other unimaginable potentialities.

Since at this point in time the University is not equipped to resolve all the problems which students bring to it, Rhatigan pointed out, or to use the direct techniques which many students seem to expect, "out of their deepening mood of despair, dissent is born." According to the Dean, any campus can expect to have a small hard-core of alienated young people. The more general the issue, the larger the circle of students involved will be. He suggested that some dissenters are the products of institutional stupidity or indifference. He remarked, "Some students, most especially the floundering, inarticulate ones, may find only unresponsiveness, unavailability, or general condescension in their search for help from college and University people." The Dean said that when students fail to find the support they need they can only turn to each other.

NORMAL ANGER

Rhatigan told the group that what is new is the pervasiveness of dissent. "Students are finding plentiful material in basic realities, both in campus and non-campus issues." He said students are showing normal anger against a society plagued by racial injustice, poverty, foreign adventurism, military-industrial alliances, and hypocrisy. The Dean viewed the youth of our country as growing increasingly impatient with a nation which is not living up to its original promise.

Rhatigan remarked that the students, operating from a low power position, have come to develop a set of useful devices known as "student power." "It has many meanings," Rhatigan reminded the group, "but its general connotation involves a power grouping to effect change. I believe that it will be a significant and continuing factor in higher education." Rhatigan said that it was a reality on many campuses already.

Rhatigan asked the teachers present to consider the idea that "active dissent means they still care." At its worst, the Dean said, dissent may disintegrate into disruption and violence. Institutions of higher learning are not equipped to deal with violence, according to Rhatigan, and cannot tolerate it. It has to be overcome, he said, "lest the ugliest group with the greatest number prevail on every issue."

The Dean summarized by saying that the meaning of student dissent may be quite different from what is depicted in prevailing stereotypes. "Properly developed," he said, "the student point of view may reflect the nation's best hope for a better society."

do your contact lenses lead a clean life?

Contact lenses can be heaven . . . or hell. They may be a wonder of modern science but just the slightest bit of dirt under the lens can make them unbearable. In order to keep your contact lenses as comfortable and convenient as they were designed to be, you have to take care of them.

Until now you needed two or more separate solutions to properly prepare and maintain your contacts. You would think that caring for contacts should be as convenient as wearing them. It can be with Lensine.

Lensine is the one lens solution for complete contact lens care. Just a drop or two, before you insert your lens, coats and lubricates it allowing the lens to float more freely in the eye's fluids. That's because Lensine is an "isotonic" solution, which means that it blends with the natural fluids of the eye.

Cleaning your contacts with Lensine retards the buildup of foreign deposits on the lenses. And soaking your contacts in Lensine between wearing periods assures you of proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking case on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine.

It has been demonstrated that improper storage between wearings may result in the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and in some cases can endanger your vision. Bacteria cannot grow in Lensine which is sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

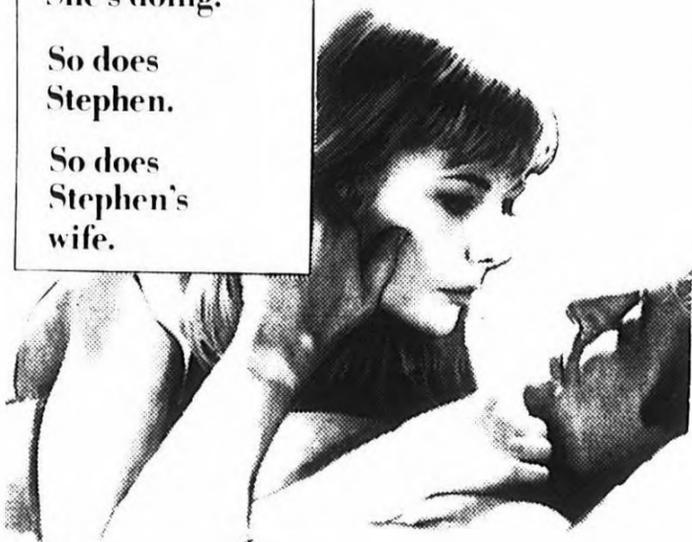

Let your contacts be the convenience they were meant to be. Get some Lensine, from the Murine Company, Inc.

Presidential Candidates Speak Out on Major Issues

Part Two

LAW AND ORDER

Q. Since all three candidates have said they are for law and order how would you describe your position and solution as differing from those of your opponents?

HUMPHREY

"I do a little less sloganizing and do a little more specifying. I haven't seen any specifics from Mr. Wallace at all. Mr. Nixon has given four suggestions, four specifics.

"One of them is a federal academy, which we have; two is a cabinet committee, which we have; three is an office for coordinating crime information, which we have. The fourth is town meetings of people who are concerned about crime. I want to say I worry a little bit about that last one. That smacks a little bit of vigilantes. But I'm sure he may not have meant that.

"Now I have laid out what I consider to be a program of substantial proportion--the task force program I referred to earlier.

"There is firearms control, which Mr. Nixon has not commented on at all. I have said there must be control over the interstate shipment of firearms... I also feel there ought to be licensing and registration of firearms, preferably by the states. But if the states do not do it, then Congress should be asked to do it."

NIXON

"I won't discuss Mr. Wallace... My major difference with Mr. Humphrey is this: he is a prisoner of the policies of the past. He necessarily has to defend the attorney general's record, and also, in another very important area, the record of the decisions of our courts, some of which I have criticized and in some of which I believed the minority was right rather than the majority.

"My proposal in the crime field, the setting up of a national council on law enforcement within the Cabinet, the setting up of a National Academy for the training of law enforcement officials, these proposals are much stronger. They are more relevant to the present program than are those of Mr. Humphrey, which I think are merely putting more money into the programs of the past which have failed."

WALLACE

"A year ago, when I was talking about law and order, these candidates were not talking about law and order. And a few years ago, when I was talking about civil disobedience was going to culminate in anarchy, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Humphrey were endorsing this movement, saying it was a great movement. Now, since it engulfed the whole country in a siege of anarchy they both say 'law and order.'"

"Of course, I knew they would start saying it when they sent their representatives around to listen to me speak and hear the reception from the crowds we've had all over the country. 'Now there's not a dime's worth of difference in what they say and what I'm saying about law and order. But this movement of ours brought it about, and I think they ought to have started saying it a long time ago.'"

CRIME

Q. How would you deal with the widespread growth in petty crime, mainly committed by youth? And tied to this is the question of the growth of drug addiction, since much of the crime is committed to obtain funds for narcotics?

HUMPHREY

"The great share of all crime today is committed by young people under 18, and a goodly share of the serious crime today is committed by young people 15 years of age and younger.

"You come back once again to the central problem. There isn't a single city in the U.S. that is adequately policed. When I use the term 'adequately' I mean in terms of policy, quality, quantity, training and equipment. The average police officer receives two-thirds of a living wage. He really is underpaid, and yet he is required to take on one of the most important jobs of our community, namely the protection of life and property.

"What we need... is the funds and the personnel at a state and regional level so that we can integrate our police forces--state, county and local--and include within them training for the National Guard... and also coordinate our use of federal officers, so that we know the lines of command, so that we have some idea of the sharing of responsibilities and even our means of communication.

"We also need to improve our court procedures. In the average court today we have a delay on cases of a year or two years. This lends itself to all kinds of laxity, both in terms of court activity and police activity."

NIXON

"Organized crime is at the heart of this, because organized crime is responsible for perhaps two-thirds of all the narcotics traffic. And also, I think that the recent study in New York indicated that half the crime in New York is committed by people who were under the influence of narcotics in one way or another.

"The program I have advocated, with regard to greatly increasing the number of customs officials on our borders to stop the inflow of narcotics into the U.S., also increasing our diplomatic efforts with other countries from which those narcotics come, to see that we can cut them down, as well as a general program dealing with narcotics--I think will strike at one of the major sources of revenue for organized crime.

"At the heart of the narcotics problem is the pusher, the individual who profits from taking teenagers, in effect, and making them addicts.

"I think, again, first at the federal level where interstate traffic is involved, the federal government should not only in terms of penalties but in terms of its activities to apprehend such individuals, should step them up very greatly. And then I would have the attorney general, as I have indicated, launch a new federal, state and local program, so that we can enlist local law enforcement officials in apprehending and punishing those who are involved in the traffic.

"You have to enforce the law. More convictions will help in terms of the pushers. More education will help in terms of the users. You cannot have this permissive attitude that you see on television, for example, programs where people say, 'Well, pot isn't too bad. It is probably no worse than alcohol, and maybe not as bad.' I think we ought to try to get the cooperation of the television networks. I am not speaking of censorship. I am trying to get some voluntary activity on the part of the people who should have a greater public conscience in that."

WALLACE

"I think the Justice Department and the states ought to really bear down on this matter of marijuana and LSD.

"I don't know that you need any further federal legislation. I think the states ought to handle it. However, transporting marijuana, LSD, across the state line is or should be a federal offense. But I think by and large we ought to leave the matter of law enforcement to the states.

"I am not a law enforcement official and I cannot talk about items of strategy, logistics and methods of combating heroin or anything else. But as president, I would ask those federal agencies who are charged with law enforcement to stop the heroin traffic. How they are going to stop it would be left up to them."

MOST IMPORTANT ISSUE

Q. What would you consider the most important issue of the campaign?

HUMPHREY

"Well, I would have to put them together. I think it is the reduction of tensions abroad, and the reduction of tensions here at home. Or to put it another way, to bring this war in Vietnam to an end and to put a halt to the arms race, and here at home to try to find ways and means of bringing into the mainstream of American life people who have been somewhat excluded... to try to minimize and do away with the racial tension and bitterness which is evident in some areas of our national life.

"In other words, to unify our people as best we can. It is the biggest task that any man is ever going to have."

NIXON

"You have hit on all the major issues here. The one that universally disturbs people more than any other, and this is true of black Americans as well as white Americans, is the question of the safety of Americans in their homes, on the streets of their cities. In other words, it is the law and order question.

"The question of peace abroad, of course, is predominant, because if we don't get peace abroad, it isn't going to make any difference if we have the best Social Security, medical care, lowest taxes in history, if we aren't around to enjoy it. Therefore, people are predominantly concerned with that.

"But right now the subject which is uppermost in their minds is the fact that they see crime going up nine times as fast as population. This key fact, I think, is getting through when you have a poll showing that 43 per cent of the American people today are afraid to walk in the streets of their cities at night."

WALLACE

"I think the most important issue involved is Vietnam coupled with the breakdown of law and order."

Problems of the 37th...

When voters go to the polls today, they will give one of three men--Hubert Humphrey, Richard Nixon and George Wallace--a mandate to govern. But the voters will also hand over to the 37th President-elect, a bundle of difficulties--both in the United States and abroad.

When he takes office Jan. 20, the new Chief Executive will be faced with the military, social, and financial problems which have plagued the Johnson administration for the past four years.

We believe war is the No. 1 problem facing the next President. The man elected must convince the North Vietnamese that the U.S. will not bolt and run. Such an indication may lead to a truce.

The new President can also look, we believe, for an early test from the Soviet Union. Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson were challenged early in their terms and the man elected today will undoubtedly face a similar challenge.

SOCIAL CONFLICT

In the areas of conflict, race relations, crime, welfare, and cities will provide the proving ground for the 37th President.

Race questions, we feel, will be acute. Militant groups among younger Blacks promise problems aplenty for the next Chief Executive.

Crime in the streets also shapes up as a problem. The cry is heard that criminals are coddled by the courts. But if the charge is true and change is to take place, Congress, led by the President, will have to set the guidelines for the courts.

The skyrocketing costs of welfare and a method to reduce those costs without cutting aid to needy recipients, we believe will also be near the top of the next President's priority list.

Whoever assumes the Presidency next January, we feel, will be bombarded by ideas of what needs to be done to help cities get relief from their many problems.

FINANCIAL WOES

In the financial area, the next President will find the national debt at an all-time high of $372 billion. While attempting to comply with a $6 billion cut authorized by Congress, the next President, we believe, will be forced to slash monies from some vital programs.

The eroding of the value of the dollar will be another problem to be faced by the new Chief Executive. He must, we believe, check the spiral of inflation without bringing on a recession and resultant unemployment.

The President the voters select today, regardless of his past experience, will have much to learn about his new job. U.S. News & World Report, Nov. 11, 1968, summed up the situation well when it quoted an official who has watched the transition of Presidents closely. He said, "Presidents-elect come in with preconceptions and misconceptions firmly held."

To preconceptions and misconceptions should also be added problems. The 37th President will face plenty.

Readers Speak

BSU Letter Called 'Disgusting'

To the Editor:

I am sick of reading articles which flagrantly attack subjects of little or no consequence. The article presented by the Black Student Union in the Oct. 29, Sunflower was disgusting. However, the portrayal of a white society deliberately trying to "dehumanize the Black race" through the verbal use of the word Negro, is ingenious. Now we can throw all of the words such as Indian, Caucasian, Negro, etc. out of the spoken language and relieve many racial tensions.

The latter almost deserves as much acclamation as your analysis of the crisis created by a misspelled word. I cannot help but feel that all of the effort which you put into expanding your bitter little theories should have been directed in a more productive direction. If the incorrect spelling of Negro is what you consider a classic example of racism, I suggest that you open your eyes and look about you. You may find that you experience a revelation. After considering the amount of energy you expended ranting over a misspelled word instead of dealing with one of the innumerable real problems which exist, I feel the only logical conclusion to be drawn is that the WSU Black Student Union is interested in raising Hell instead of seriously representing Negro goals. In this respect, you are not qualified to demand the WSU faculty, Sunflower staff, or anyone to refer to the Negro race solely in your specified words.

I am not an English major or renowned author. Therefore I am sure that my typographical errors will not delude you either.

Patriots or Bigots?

To the Editor:

Having given considerable thought to the controversy over the recent Olympic displays of John Carlos and Tommy Smith, and the restructuring of the National Anthem by Jose Feliciano (the Puerto Rican Ray Charles), I can no longer restrain from comment on the hypocrits and their mothers who denounced these beautiful people.

The persons who were shocked or dismayed over their actions; are they really staunch patriots or bigoted hypocrits? I'm of firm opinion that they're of the latter. Do they realize the basic freedoms that the American Flag symbolizes? Apparently not, for if they did, they would not be so quick to criticize and denounce.

The American Flag (old red, white, and blue) I thought was symbolic of those things that America is supposed to offer to every individual: freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of peaceful protest, etc., and all of those other freedoms that are commonly talked about but never acknowledged. More importantly, the Stars and Stripes is supposed to symbolize that here in America every individual has the inalienable right to create his own identity and convictions, and not have them dictated to him or established by someone else.

From Other Campuses

Colleges Ignore Development of Human

CLINTON, N.Y. -- American colleges and universities have been criticized for their failure to retain the interest or meet the expectations of their students.

Newly-inaugurated President John W. Chandler of Hamilton College recently said "... much of what we offer students answers questions which they are not asking and ignores questions which they are asking." He placed a great deal of the blame at the feet of the graduate-schools which, he explained, have become central preoccupation of the liberal arts colleges.

But another part of the blame he attributed to the undergraduate colleges themselves for ignoring the relationship between a student's intellectual development and "his more general development as a human being."

The former Dean of Faculty at Williams College declared that solutions would involve perils because "Any call for attention to students needs and views must avoid morbid preoccupation with the student's own subjectivity as the chief subject matter of his formal college study."

Intellectual growth, he said, is something more than the exchange of opinions and prejudices which can never replace "the intellectual commerce of the classroom."

In an obvious reference to the so-called "issue-oriented courses" now so much in fashion at many colleges, the new president said that despite the valid pleas of students for "relevance in educational experience... relevance certainly does not mean that the classrooms must constantly echo the headline of the New York Times."

Academic disciplines, he said, need not always

Americans say they believe in and will die for these things, yet when young Blacks and Whites assert these freedoms and peacefully protest the inequities in this system they are quickly denounced by these hypocrits. Apparently there are contradictions in the beliefs and the actions of these hypocrits. This dual standard is not fostered by any type of intense patriotism, but by their basic insecurities and their insane myths of White superiority that the Black man's struggle for identity and values are proving to be just that. Insane myths.

The Black movement is based on truth. We can no longer afford to let America steep herself in rhetoric and refuse to face reality. The old axiom that "ignorance of the law is no excuse" has been replaced by a new axiom which states that "ignorance of the truth is no excuse." That Black movement dictates that we always tell it like it is, and not prostitute ourselves any longer for a few pennies or a showcase job. Our goal is to detour all hypocrisy and expose all hypocrits. The actions of Carlos, Smith, and Feliciano accomplished a great deal of our task.

Anytime that Black men, women, or children attempt to create and assert their identity, dignity, and tell it like it is, White people become upset. Their insanity cannot tolerate a Black person who wishes the image and identity he himself desires and refuses to let himself be dictated to and shaped by a heartless and inhumane society that is little concerned about him other than for exploitation purposes. How can Whites determine what I'm to be like when they have no idea of what they themselves are. White America should give thanks every night to her Gods that 30 million Blacks, who by any international tribunal would be justified, haven't burned this damned place to the ground. Whites should give thanks to Black people every night for injecting some of our Black vitality into their straight-jacketed lives. Were it for Blacks inventing every dance from the Charleston to the Bugaloo, Whites would still be dancing the Minuet. Whites should give thanks to Blacks every night for being the catalyst that has motivated them also to question themselves and question America.

Hypocrits did you not believe that one day we would seek full retribution? We have found you out hypocritical false-faced America. And having stripped the mask from your face we shall expose you to the world. You who flaunt yourself as the leader of the free-world. Ha! You who so patriotically wave the stars and stripes in everyone's face and scream how good, how tolerant, how Christian you are. But have no fear, we are here to save you from yourselves. The Black movement is not anti-White, but is anti-anything that serves to oppress. But if White America continues to play the role of the oppressor then the Black movement is more than proud to be anti-White. This, however, is not the decision of the Black movement.

I say hail to Tommy Smith, John Carlos, and Jose Feliciano, for these are the truth-makers. These are the caliber of people that America truly needs if she is to survive the trouble that the hypocrits and their mothers have caused.

be somehow related to current problems because... "Not everything that is worth knowing relates to immediate needs."

Dr. Chandler added that a liberal education must be pursued in a disciplined and systematic manner no matter how enormous the pressures generated by society for self-indulgence. "To become self-forgetfully absorbed in an intrinsically interesting idea or problem is much closer to the ideal of liberal education than is narcissistic preoccupation with one's own subjectivity."

The answer for the colleges, as well as the task for all society, Dr. Chandler said, is "the humanization of the goals and purposes served by our technological capacity and our technocratic institutions."

NORTHRIDGE, CALIF.-- Commenting on the revision of the credit-fail system at San Fernando Valley State College, Dr. C.V. Metzler, president of the Faculty Senate, said this action was a step toward the provisions the students had requested.

The Faculty Senate deleted the provision that a credit grade is a "minimal C or higher." Under this provision a "D" would have been listed on the student's record as a fail.

The Senate's action leaves the decision of what constitutes a passing grade entirely up to the individual instructor.

Under the credit-fail system an undergraduate student is allowed to register for credit-fail in one class each semester in non-major classes. A maximum of 30 credit-fail units may count toward graduation.

'STAG' Paulsen Talks; Outlines Party Policy

By MICHAEL MESH
Staff Reporter

Today millions of Americans will take to the polls to elect the next President. Saturday night I had the privilege of interviewing one of the major candidates that could very well occupy the White House for the next four years. I am referring to Patrick L. Paulsen, who is running on the STAG Party (Straigh Talking American Government Party) ticket.

I spoke to candidate Paulsen following his political rally in Emporia, Kan., and confronted him on some of the major issues of the election, as well as personal questions about the man behind the deadpan face.

He informed me that he was born in Washington where he picked wild blueberries at age nine. After stressing his humble beginning, he went on to say that when he was discovered by the Smothers Brothers he was washing windows.

When asked if he was worried about Richard Nixon's lead in the pre-election polls, Paulsen replied, "Nixon is the only man I know capable of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory."

Concerning Vietnam, he said, "Gee, I've been so busy with the campaign that I didn't realize it was an issue."

What about the population explosion? "The population explosion could easily be curtailed if we were to establish a series of watch towers around the country and put security guards in them to yell down, 'Hey, cut that out down there.'"

When questioned about a farm program for Kansas, Paulsen stated, "I don't think our government should continue to pay the farmer for not planting crops on land that does not exist, even though this present policy does take the strain off the farmer and the land. Rather than pay the farmer not to grow food, I think we should pay the people not to eat it."

When I asked him what he would do if elected he replied, "Leave the country."

At the close of the interview session, I asked the candidate if he would give me his autograph. He then proceeded to open his briefcase and take out a rubber stamp and ink pad. My autograph read, "Stamped By Pat Paulsen".

Student Artists To Host Exhibit

Sculpture students of the WSU art department will host a sculpture show, featuring pieces designed to "float" in water or on air, from 2 p.m. to dusk Thursday, at the athletic field east of Henrion Art Annex.

The event, billed as "A Big High," will culminate an assignment that Donald Schule, assistant professor of sculpture, made to his students. Students from drawing and other studio classes also will participate, and three musical groups will provide musical accompaniment.

"I don't want to wait for someone to die or retire in order to get promoted."

We're with you.

Because at IH we believe a promotion is something you earn. Not some kind of hand-me-down just to fill an empty slot.

That's why you'll have to be a thinker. A doer. An innovator. The kind of guy who prefers to be promoted on his merits alone.

You'll need talent. Lots of imagination. And plenty of guts. The guts to make decisions and fight for your ideas.

We, in turn, will give you plenty of freedom — and excitement, too.

So you'll learn a lot. (Maybe even teach us a thing or two.)

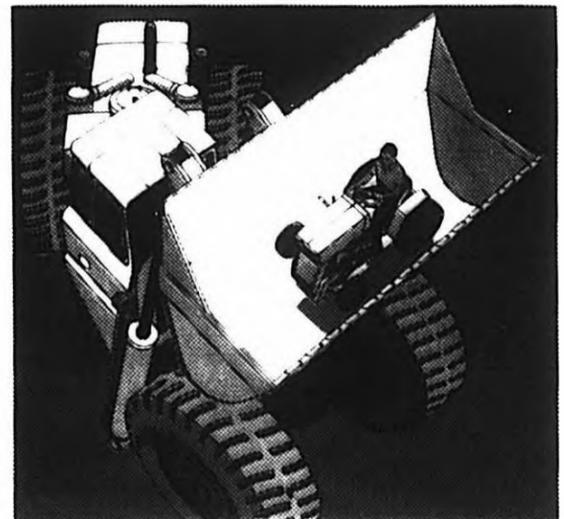

What's more, if you join us, you'll be part of a diversified company. One where there's plenty of action in farm equipment, motor trucks, construction and steelmaking.

And you'll also find we're banking heavily on research. (We've got some pretty far-out ideas on computers in trucks, laser beam construction equipment, applications of solar energy and nuclear power.)

As a result, we're looking for test, design, manufacturing and research engineers. We need accountants and production management people. And we need sales people for our wholesale and retail operations.

So talk to your campus placement officer about us. He'll fill you in on the jobs we want to fill.

Candidates Give Views

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following comments from WSU Collegiate Young Democrats President Steve Joseph and WSU Collegiate Young Republicans President Dave Harbarger are in response to a Sunflower inquiry as to the stands of the respective parties gubernatorial and senatorial candidates on education in Kansas.

DEMOCRATS

One of the lesser publicized yet most important issues underlying the 1968 election in Kansas is the question of education and its financing. Gov. Robert Docking has for the past two years sought to improve the quantity and quality of Kansas' educational systems at all levels. The tremendous increases in state financing of education exemplifies Gov. Docking's sincere concern about the future of this state's educational programs. State aid to elementary and secondary education has grown from $43.5 million in FY 1965 to $86.6 million in FY 1967. The total state money spent has grown from $57.7 million in FY 1965 to $102.2 million in FY 1967.

The Gov. has also been deeply involved in the specific area of higher education. The Docking Administration, realizing that high quality education depends upon staffing the state schools with the finest teachers, has recommended significant salary increases at all state colleges and universities.

Not only has Gov. Docking shown in the past an outstanding desire to do everything necessary to make the finest educational facilities and programs available to Kansas students, but he has also pledged that education will continue to be the highest priority among all the activities which compete for state support.

William I. Robinson, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, shares in no small part the Docking Administration's attitude toward improving the quality and availability of Kansas education. Robinson has said on a number of occasions "that our young people should receive their education on a straight ability-to-learn, not ability-to-pay basis."

The achievement of this objective, Robinson feels, should be in the hands of both the federal government and the state government working together under the philosophy of "cooperative federalism." Robinson contends that one of the crucial elements to guarantee a college education to every student would be the institution of federal programs "which will involve liberalized student loans and the payment of whatever is necessary to keep all students in school through college."

Gov. Docking's past record in the area of Kansas education and William I. Robinson's understanding of the problems of higher education as a member of the WSU Board of Trustees, merits for them the support of any Kansas citizen seeking to create in Kansas educational opportunities consistent with the greatness of our state and her people.

REPUBLICANS

As college students, we are very concerned about both the quality and quantity of education in the state of Kansas. We are especially concerned about the future growth of the university that we will graduate from WSU. It is due to the degree of our concern that we have so actively and positively supported the election of Bob Dole and Rick Harman.

Dole is the kind of man who will give us the leadership in the Senate needed to develop progressive, positive programs in the field of education. Dole believes that the Federal Government has a major role to play in the support of education in our country. However, he does not feel, as does the present administration, that the major role of the Federal Government in education is one of a categorical aid system, where control of use of funds is dictated by the Federal Government and many strings are attached. Dole feels that government should provide educational aid in the form of general aid, or block grants to the states for them to use in conjunction with state and local funds.

Harman is a man who cares about education and about WSU. He wants to see our state and our University grow and move forward, not remain still and stagnant--as it has the last two years. Harman believes in increased state aid to education which would relieve the burden of the property tax payer. He is especially concerned about the quality of education on our college campuses. Harman believes that unless we can make the necessary progress in this area we will lose the future by losing the young people today. He believes that the specific problems of college students demand greater attention. He has called for open lines of communication between students, state education officials, and the governor. Harman believes that the students should have access to the decision-making process, so that they may communicate their needs and suggestions and influence policy decisions affecting their education. In short, Harman cares about the student on this and every campus, and this is why our club supports Harman for governor of Kansas.

We believe that, regardless of party preference, Harman and Dole are the men who deserve our vote, for they are the ones who care about the future of Kansas and the young people of Kansas.

Cadet Gets 'Distinguished' AF Award

Cadet Major Randall A. Herron, AFROTC, was presented the Distinguished Cadet Award in a ceremony held during corps training Thursday. Col. William E. Hanes, professor of aerospace studies, made the presentation.

The criteria for selection was based on the "whole man concept," according to Cadet Captain Jay Horvath, chief of information service. The qualities necessary for consideration as a Distinguished Cadet include a high moral character, outstanding leadership, and academic distinction.

Herron is a LA senior majoring in math, commander of The Arnold Air Society, and president of the SAE pledge class. He is past comptroller of the Arnold Air Society and a member of Scabbard and Blade.

Herron finished in the top five in a class of about 35 in summer camp at March Air Force Base, California.

Former Peace Corps Volunteer Describes Experience in Bolivia

By DAN BRADFORD
Staff Writer

Bolivians are concerned observers of the United States, not anti-American; says Brooks Herndon, LA, Jr.

For two years Herndon was a Peace Corps volunteer in Bolivia. He traveled quite a bit but most of his time was spent around Cordico.

His special job was with the British Tropical Agricultural Mission. "What we did essentially was establish co-operatives for the coffee growers. We helped them improve the consistency of their processing methods, so their coffee would have a better taste; and eliminate the middle man, in order to increase their profit," said Herndon.

In regard to the Bolivian attitude toward the United States he said "Most people think there is a lot of Anti-Americanism in South America, but that isn't so in Bolivia. Bolivians are largely pro-American.

"The anti-American feelings

Courage Nets News Award For Editor

NEW YORK--A former college newspaper editor has received the first Freedom Award for independence in collegiate journalism.

Gary C. Dickey, former editor of the Troy State College newspaper in Alabama, received the award at a convocation of the National Council of College Publications Advisers and the Associated Collegiate Press.

The presentation was made by Dr. Dario Politella, NCCPA president and head of the department for journalistic studies at the University of Massachusetts. The award was provided to the NCCPA by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Politella said Dickey was chosen for journalistic courage in challenging the claim of college administrators that no criticism of state officials was permitted because the state 'owned' the campus publication.

Dickey, a Vietnam veteran, was expelled from the college in August, 1967, after publishing a blank space in the 'Troyopolitan' marked "censored" in place of an article banned by college administrators because it criticized the actions of state legislators.

Dickey took his case to the U.S. District Court and was ordered readmitted to the college on the grounds that "a state cannot force a college student to forfeit his constitutionally protected right of freedom of expression as a condition to his attending a state-supported institution."

Queen Applications Now Available In SGA Office

Homecoming queen applications are now available in the SGA office. Applications must be returned by Friday, at 5 p.m.

Any SGA recognized organization may sponsor a queen candidate said Brian Sullivan, president of Pep Council. Queen candidates must be either juniors or seniors at WSU, with a 2.0 grade average.

Five semi-finalists will be chosen at a reviewing tea Sunday, Nov. 10. The girls will be selected by a panel of judges from WSU and the Wichita community.

Announcement of the five-semi-finalists will be made at a school convocation Sunday afternoon.

are mostly from dissenters resisting those who are extremely pro-American.

"Americans live in sort of a house with glass walls. Everybody there knows what is happening in the states. Even the Indians in the middle of nowhere know about the U.S.," Herndon said.

America is something of a dream land in the sky to those people. They are interested in America, said Herndon.

Most South Americans were great fans of President Kennedy. This naturally passed on to Robert. "When Robert was assassinated, people came to me on the street and apologized. But later they asked: How can the people in a country like the United States kill their leaders?"

Herndon stressed that they couldn't understand this because, as they put it, "The United States is supposed to be the most civilized country in the world," he said.

Many of the Bolivian people blame the entire American population for the deaths of John and Robert Kennedy, Herndon said.

The citizens of the host country must also become accustomed to the volunteer. "It's just like any other country; the Bolivians are critical of other societies whose actions and motives they don't understand. People in the United States are critical of South Africans because they are extremely racist, he said. Yet while I was in Brazil I was called a racist as soon as it was known that I was from the United States."

Brooks said this type of over-generalization is the reason many Bolivians still hold the American population responsible for the assassinations in the United States.

He first became interested in the Peace Corps because of a friend's enthusiasm for it. "Then also you can't play down the altruistic aspects of it either. I was interested in helping people," he said.

With regard to his location Brooks says that he didn't specify Latin America, they sort of assigned him to it.

"The training session was the best part of the entire program. Their language instruction (Spanish) was the best I have ever seen. Also during training we were drilled on the difference in culture," Herndon commented. Because of the intensive cultural training, the term "cultural shock" has all but vanished, he said.

Cultural shock is the term used to describe the reaction some people have to customs which can be radically different from their own.

A Peace Corps volunteer is more or less forced to become directly involved in the culture and problems of the country in which he is stationed, said Herndon. This is by the very nature of the job.

Jones Draws New Role in Effort To Snap Constant Injury Jinx

For Shocker tight end Jimmie Jones the winless WSU football season has been frustrating in more ways than one.

After the start of a promising pre-season practice, the tables turned on Jones. A clip sidelined the then Shocker defensive end for two games. The ironic factor in this case was the fact that Jones is known for dealing punishment.

The injury resulted in torn ligaments of the ankle and forced the Shocker ace to listen to WSU's opening two road contests on the radio. The anxiety got the best of him when he decided he was ready to go in the third contest, although the injury had not completely healed.

Since the defense had been fairly stable in the first two games, coaches felt Jones could best utilize his talents at tight end, a position he had never played before. It was the first time he had played offense since high school. He took up the task with the same ruthlessness and abandon with which he had tackled opponents in the past.

The switch has proved beneficial for the Shocks and for Jones, as he has caught numerous passes.

His blocks have also been timely, as Louisville's Mike Detenber can verify as he fell victim of a bone-crushing Jones' jar.

Jones, although somewhat disappointed with the way things have gone, is not selling this year short. When the 6-foot-2, 215-pound senior finishes his last year of eligibility, he hopes to follow in the footsteps of former Shocker greats Bob Long, Roland Lakes, Miller Farr, and Jim Waskiewicz. The ranks of pro football have always been one of Jones' lifelong ambitions.

The Englewood, N. J., native said his injury hinders his chances of being one of three players named to the All-Missouri Valley Conference team for the third consecutive time since 1956, but his misfortunes have not hobbled his professional chances.

Jones said he feels lack of experience is the main reason for the Shocks' winless record.

Although he prefers defense, "J-J" says it doesn't matter where he plays, as long as it's somewhere. At the start of next year's pro football season, if things go like they have in the past, Jimmie Jones should be playing somewhere in the play-for-pay circuits.

Shock Harriers Take Fifth In Kansas Federation Event

WSU's harriers ran to a fifth place finish in the Kansas Federation Meet, Saturday.

The three-mile course was run at K-State's Manhattan Country Club course.

The Kansas Jayhawks led the parade as they placed five men in the top seven spots, with a resounding 20 points. They were followed by Kansas State's 54, Fort Hays State's 68, Butler County Juco's 108, WSU's 134, and McPherson's 174.

Steve Kohlenberg led the Shocks' chargers placing 21st, in a time of 15:14. Charlie Perez, suffering from a foot injury, was 25th, Loren Houlberg, 26th, David Robl, 28th and Ken McCaffree, 36th.

The gold medal went to Fort Hays State's John Mason, who set a new course record in 13:59.

His new mark surpassed the old standard by almost 30 seconds.

Coach Herm Wilson said his Shocks are showing improvement, but it is hard to tell when running against such strong competition.

The Shocks will host the Missouri Valley Conference championship meet Saturday at the Echo Hills sight.

Drake will be the favorite in the Shocks final 1968 home contest. The Bulldogs will be led into the meet with their fine 1-2 combination of Elliot Evans and Dave Compton.

The Shocks hope to climax a good season by springing an upset.

THE TERRIBLE TEN

A Florida daily newspaper ran its own version of the top ten football teams in the nation, only in this newspaper the trend was reversed.

The Terrible Ten was this southern chronicle's sports staff's arbitrary ranking of the worst 10 major college football teams in the country.

Topping the list as the worst team in the nation was New Mexico with an 0-7 mark. Runner-up for the worst spot were the Badgers of Wisconsin with an 0-6 mark.

Third place went to the faithful WSU Shocks with their spotless record of 0-6. Wisconsin battled highly ranked Indiana before bowing 21-20, so the Shocks are moving up. Also ranked in the terrible ten was one of the Shocks prior opponents Colorado State which has only won one game.

Despite being the target of some laughter, some joking, embarrassment and ridicule, the coaching staff should be given credit for keeping team cohesiveness.

A stranger wandering into Shockerland would never suspect that the team carried an 0-6 record. At the start of every Monday practice session there is still all the verve and humor that would follow the Kansas Jayhawks or the Notre Dame Fighting Irish.

A week's layoff might just be the answer in letting all injuries and solutions in nature take its course. The going might be rough for the last four games. But when the going gets tough, the tough get going.

The players' spirit shows that everyone in Shocker camp thinks that the day will finally come. And when it does, no one will be as happy as yours truly. It's just as much fun following a loser as it is playing for one.

Several Shocks are still in the money for big years. Tailback Pete Robertson has a chance at the Missouri Valley rushing title. And at the rate he is going he is destined to break a few standing sophomore and school records. A good day Saturday against New Mexico State could help him surpass North Texas State halfback Leo Taylor's lead, and build up his confidence after an off day against Louisville.

Shocker punter Danny Pitcock made a big jump from 11th to third place in the national ranking on his specialty. His last three of seven kicks against Louisville went for 54, 52, and 58 yards.

Touch Football Ends This Week; Cross Country Rivalry to Begin

Intramural football play-offs are in their final week of competition, but as this sport ends, others are beginning.

Cross country competition will begin Nov. 14 at 3:30 p.m. The deadline for entries is Nov. 12, and the entry fee is 25 cents per person. There will be a late entry fee of 50 cents per person after that date. All competition will be held on the Veterans Field track.

The one mile walk race for the fall will be held Nov. 18. Competition will start at 3:30 p.m. and will be held on the WSU track. Entry fee procedure is the same as in cross country. The deadline date is Nov. 14.

Intramural award points will be awarded toward the all-sports trophy and individual intramural participation medals.

Badminton finals will start today in Henrion Gym. Schedules are posted in the intramural office.

No WSU lettermen may enter either the cross country or mile walk race competition.
