

Bill Cosby latest addition to stars appearing in arena Saturday night

Comedian Bill Cosby, the latest addition to the "WSU Night of Stars" will appear along with approximately 12 other performers next Saturday evening at Henry Levitt Arena.

The 8:30 p.m. performance November 28 will follow the 1:30 p.m. football season finale which pits the Wichita State Shockers against conference champion Louisville University.

Cosby is known for his comedy records and his television credits which include "I Spy" and the "Bill Cosby Show." Monty Hall, of "Let's Make A Deal" will be the Master of Ceremonies.

The balance of the cast consists of George Gobel, Minnie Pearl, Tiny Tim, James Franciscus, Mac Davis, Lou Rawls, Kate Smith, and Leif Ericson, of "High Chaparral". Also included in the performance will be the comedy team of Mimi Hines and Phil Ford., who have appeared together on Broadway and across the country. Singers Marilyn May and the Young Americans will also perform.

All gate receipts will remain with the Wichita State memorial fund. The televised portion of the entertainment will be shared with Marshall University in West Virginia. The Marshall University football team was wiped out when a jet crashed killing 95 persons.

The show will be at least two and a half hours long and will be produced by Bill Caruthers of Hollywood. Many of the stars will make direct appeals for contributions to the television audience.

At press time, 159 television stations, from New York to Hawaii, had agreed to carry the show. Some stations will carry it live while others will videotape it and show it on Monday, November 30. The "Night of Stars" will not be shown in the Wichita television area.

Single tickets are $10 each, $9 of which is tax-deductible. Floor seats are $100, $95 of which is tax-deductible. Tickets are available at all IGA stores. For further information please contact Dean Cramer Reed at the University, 685-9161, ext. 337.

The established goal of $175,000 will be used to defray expenses incurred by the families which were involved in the October 2 plane tragedy.

Corps employs new techniques

by Stephen Earl

The Peace Corps, which will be 10 years old in March, is currently trying a new approach in recruiting persons with college backgrounds and at the same time is bettering relations between the Corps and foreign countries.

One of the most important changes affecting Kansas is the re-classification of the "home office." In the past, the Kansas office was represented in California.

A past Peace Corps worker from Iowa, Bill Remmes, says the California office seemed to "alienate" people because it was so far away. Now that the Peace Corps' four-state office is located in Des Moines, Iowa—serving Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas—it seems "a little closer to home" when someone writes for information. The national headquarters are in Washington D.C.

Host Countries

A new approach taken by the Peace Corps is the manner foreign relations are handled. The Corps is introducing 25 persons from foreign countries acting as "Host Country Nationals" who work with Corps workers in the United States for recruiting purposes.

Those 25 persons present ideas to the Peace Corps for possible assistance programs in their respective countries. Instead of the Corps telling the country that the United States will assist in any number of ways, Remmes said, the "Host" provides the programs that his country desires. There are a total of 62 countries that are aided by the Peace Corps.

Ideals

Remmes said the ideals have remained the same, such as working with natives through a governmental agency, and adapting to the community where the Corps worker is stationed.

The skills have changed, said Remmes, by the manner in which the Corps aids the native community. The worker must learn the basics of a certain

Officials present conflicting replies

Golden Eagle still fighting

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Federal Aviation Administration officials wrote two conflicting replies to a query by Golden Eagle Aviation on whether it was violating regulations. One reply never reached the firm.

The report the firm received said it would be notified if it was breaking any rules. The other report, which said it was operating illegally, was forwarded to the Fort Worth office of FAA and never came back.

The pilot initiated the request in May when they presented a copy of their contract Hanson.

Hanson forwarded it and other lease document to the Fort Worth office for an opinion.

The conflicting reports came to light in testimony and introduction of evidence in the third day of a Golden Eagle appeal on revocation of its air taxi certificate.

Testimony revealed no further notice until Golden Eagle's air taxi certificate was revoked October 8. That was six days after a Wichita State football plane for which the firm had furnished a crew crashed in Colorado killing 31 persons.

The opinion that the firm needed a commercial license to provide the crews and services was dated 10 days earlier than the report that it still was being probed.

It was mailed by FAA counsel to Hanson and was sent back to the Fort Worth office.

"We asked for an interpretation and we got a revocation," said Ron Skipper, president of Golden Eagle and co-pilot on the Wichita State University Martin 404.

The FAA contends that Golden Eagle operated the Martin 404 while holding an air taxi certificate that permitted it to handle only smaller planes.

Golden Eagle contends it supplied qualified pilots to serve as individual crew members aboard a plane leased by Wichita State.

Hanson said he had told three officers of Golden Eagle there was nothing to prohibit them from piloting large aircraft for which they were certified. "I told them they should never connect the name of Golden Eagle with it."

Hanson said he had only a "couple of minor" complaints against Golden Eagle in its year of operation.

Conflicting FAA rulings on whether the firm was operating illegally were entered in evidence Monday. One was the official opinion that the firm required a commercial license. The other, dated 10 days later, said the matter still was under investigation. Golden Eagle received the latter instructions.

Senate openings

The Student Senate has two openings for proportional representatives. Interested students should fill out applications in the Student Government Office in the Campus Activities Center. The appointments will be made at tonight's meeting. One appointment will also be made to the Campus Privilege Fee Committee. Applications must be turned in to the SGA Office.

Students are needed to form a committee which will study the Speech 111 course. Applications must be turned in to the SGA office by tonight.

The University Governance Committee will meet today in room 314, University Senate. Any students with suggestions should come to this open forum and express their opinions.

PEACE CORPS worker, Bill Remmes, (left), and "Host Country National" Dr. Kannan Nambiar, of India, will be on the Wichita State University Campus next week to distribute literature and information concerning the Corps. (Photo by David Henry) language before leaving the United States. On the average, that takes about three months, Remmes said, and another three months in a country to provide fluent speaking ability.

A Peace Corps Host

Dr. Kannan Nambiar, of Kerala, India, is a Peace Corps Host that has come to the United States to represent his country. He first worked with the Corps in India during a bi-nationalism project. When the "Host Country National" program was initiated by the Peace Corps, he outlined programs for the Corps which would be useful to communities in that country.

College Background

The Peace Corps representatives encourage persons with college backgrounds to file an applications with the Peace Corps but a bachelors degree is not required. Some people think the Corps is for young people, Remmes said, but anyone would be employed when a person has a certain skill that is needed.

The Corps is looking for persons who wish to adapt the language and customs of a foreign country, Remmes said. It is one of the most important steps to be accepted into a community.

Corps is the first step. In the application experience, education, interests and skills are listed. Also to be included is the choice of country or part of the world the potential worker may want to work. The ultimate choice where the worker wants to go is up to the volunteer, Remmes said.

The purpose of the Peace Corps is to "work yourself out of a job." During the time period when the worker is aiding a community, the community should be taught how to do a certain project. In that manner the worker steps out and lets the community take over and handle projects.

On Campus

Remmes and Dr. Nambiar will be on the Wichita State campus December 1 through December 4, working through the Career Planning and Placement Office in Morrison Hall. A booth filled with Peace Corps literature will be placed in the Campus Activities Center in order that interested students may learn more about the Corps.

Pilgrim pledges she will walk until peace is achieved

by Steven Koski

Perhaps you saw her on campus Monday, and wondered who she was and why a gray-haired old lady was wearing a tunic that said "Peace Pilgrim" on the front and "25,000 MILES ON FOOT FOR WORLD PEACE" on the back.

"Peace Pilgrim" is my name," she said, "and I stopped counting the miles I've walked long ago." She says she passed her 25,000 mile goal in 1964.

Peace Pilgrim (she won't give her real name), started her pilgrimage January 1, 1953, at the front of the Tournament of Roses parade. Then she took a

Trucker gets CSR monies

The Committee for Students Rights Tuesday night voted to give $300 received from its October concert to the Wichita Truckers, a local underground newspaper.

Debate over the measure, which passed by a vote of 18-17 centered around Ronald B. Wylie, Publisher of the Wichita Free Press, another underground paper in the Wichita area.

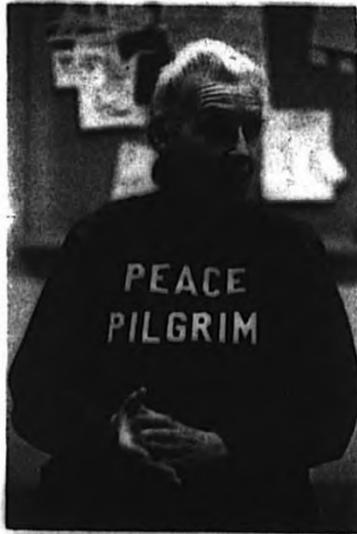

Following the vote, Wylie resigned as chairman of CSR.

The group also passed a resolution condemning the actions of the Derby school board suspending long haired students at Derby high school.

vow, "I shall remain a wanderer until mankind has learned the way of peace, walking until I am given shelter and fasting until I am given food." She maintains her vow today, 18 years after she made it.

"I wear the tunic so people will stop and talk to me," she says, "We hear so much about how bad people are. I can tell you how good they are." She says she is given a bed to sleep in three-fourths of the time by total strangers and seldom misses more than three meals in a row. She admits, however, that she once had a 45 day fasting period when I didn't have anything but pure water."

My life has been uphill since I found inner peace, she says. She doesn't worry about food and shelter. She says inner peace is two things: bringing your life into harmony with the laws of the universe that are the same for all of us; and finding and fitting into your special place in the life pattern, that is unique for every human being. "People find inner peace as soon as they start working for the good of the whole (humanity). They find themselves in harmony with the whole," she says.

Her life work includes the whole peace perspective, including world peace through world law, inspiring as many people as possible to look for inner peace, and making a better example for those who are still immature, such as providing more constructive playthings for little children. "Mankind is so immature we try to overcome evil with more evil and that only multiplies the evil," she says.

peace now. Don't you think it has become obvious even to the dull-witted that world peace is desirable?"

"This is my fifth pilgrimage," she says. "I always start from the west and walk to the east. I zig-zag a lot, walking north in the summer and south in the winter." She carries all her possessions on her back so she doesn't carry much. "I don't have a heavy coat anymore so I travel with the seasons," she says.

Her pilgrimage used to take three years. This one will take four because she has more speaking engagements. "I used to put walking first, now I give speaking first place."

"Before I started walking people considered me a successful woman. I had money. I had things, but I knew my life wasn't good. I wasn't successful. So I gave it all up. This pilgrimage has been the most exciting time of my life."

National focus on Wichita

One of history's greatest compliments will be bestowed on Wichita this coming weekend when performers in the television and cinema world gather at Henry Levitt Arena Saturday night to raise money for the Wichita State Memorial Fund.

The Wichita State University "Night of Stars" is a first. No other event has ever received such national interest. Few people on campus realized the depth that it would grow, but the universal interest in helping the families of the plane crash victims, opened the door to this honor.

It seems the only community unaware of the meaning of this event is the city of Wichita itself. Perhaps, Wichitans and those who live near here are becoming immune to continued publicity.

Informed sources say there has been some trouble selling tickets for the Night of Stars. There are about 7,000 seats to be filled in the arena. With approximately 300,000 persons living in a 50 mile radius, this fact seems absurd.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars of free services are being offered by ABC, NBC, and CBS as well as independent organizations volunteering for this Saturday's performance.

The city of Wichita will experience nation-wide embarrassment Saturday night if those cameras pan across a half-filled arena. Wichita's apathy would then be presented to America during the televised portion of an appeal for donations to help those who lost their lives.

It is disheartening to think that those who hear a plea from a television commentator or radio disc hockey will shrug it off by saying, "Ten dollars, that's too much."

The pleas are not asking for Wichita State University support; that seems lost after seeing a half-filled stadium at the Wichita State-North Texas game last Saturday.

The pleas are an offering to every-day people who want to help those five widows, 29 orphans, and one unborn child left after the October 2 plane crash.

Common sense should direct us to help those who lost so much.

Nixon's policy a contradiction

The renewed bombing of North Vietnam by American pilots is a contradiction of President Nixon's promise to "wind down the war."

The President has assured the nation that he is "vietnamizing" the war, yet he persists in the type of action that can only widen the war and cause more American lives to be lost.

The war in Vietnam has been the costliest war in American history. It has also been the most unpopular war.

General Douglas MacArthur in the 1960's warned then President John F. Kennedy that, "the Asian mainland is no place to fight a non-nuclear war." French President De Gaulle also advised the young president that the United States would fall into the same trap that France did by persisting in the war.

This kind of advice, coming from military strategists and generals only points up the futility of the Indo-Chinese war.

President Eisenhower was also reluctant, owing to the fact that he was a former general, to engage ground troops in Vietnam.

Apparently Richard Nixon did not learn much from his former chief.

He promises to de-escalate the war, and constantly "informs" the American people of the number of troops being withdrawn from the fighting.

And yet while the war is being de-escalated, Americans are still dying. What good is it to withdraw 40,000 troops, when American bombers renew their attacks on the North, because "U.S. planners were unable to resist going after what they consider to be lucrative targets"?

Indo-China should be a lesson to America. It should teach us that we are no longer world policemen and that we simply cannot afford another war, both in terms of money, and, even more important, in terms of human lives which have been sacrificed because of political maneuvers.

Christian love: still relevant?

The following article is a contribution to the campus-wide column from Michael Richerson of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. Because organizations in the past have complained that our editing has changed the meaning of their contributions we have adopted a policy of running the articles exactly as submitted—errors and misspellings included.—editor.

Is the Christian message of love still relevant? Was it ever relevant? In fact, what is this Christian message of love? On aspect of it is this: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life." (John 3:16, RSV) Another important aspect from the Gospels is Jesus' saying, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind,

This is the great and first commandment. And a second is like it, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." On these two commandments depend all the law and the prophets." (Matthew 22:37-40, RSV). What is this love? Some answers to this question are given in I Corinthians 13:4-7 (RSV), "Love is patient and kind; love is not jealous or boastful; it is not arrogant or rude. Love does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrong, but rejoices in the right. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things." Now, I will leave you with these questions; have you ever given any serious consideration to what (or who) is the essence of Christian love and how does it (or He) affect you?

Michael Richerson

Letters to the editor

Dear editor:

Just what is the SGA trying to pull? I am referring to the recent referendum concerning the Parnassus.

To my mind, a ballot ought to be impartial, and ought to reflect in an unambiguous manner the purpose for which it was written. Obviously, the ballot used in the Parnassus referendum did not do this. If you went to vote last Thursday and Friday, you were forced to choose one of the two following statements:

Yes—I desire full support of the Parnassus by student fees.

No—I desire no support by student fees which would probably involve a discontinuation of the Parnassus.

Now, it was my impression that the sole purpose of the referendum was to decide whether or not the student body wished to use student fees to support the Parnassus. I did not understand that the referendum's purpose was to decide whether or not the student body wished the Parnassus to continue. Yet, clearly, if a student voted "no" this is what he would be voting on.

While it may be (and probably is) true that without the support of student fees, the Parnassus could not be published this year, an official SGA ballot is no place to argue the point. This part of the dispute should have been brought up before the balloting and the students should have been allowed to make up their minds without any additional coaching. The idea of using an official ballot to advertise one's point of view is absurd.

In an interview in Saturday's Eagle and Beacon, an officer of the SGA stated that he was "kind of surprised that it passed by such a large margin." With the use of such an obviously biased ballot, why should he be a bit surprised?

And a complaint about the way the election centers were run. When I stated that students were forced to make a choice, that is exactly what I meant. I observed that a student could not read a ballot simply for the purpose of finding out what was on it, without first registering and having his registration card punched; and that, if he did register and did have his card punched, he would be compelled to vote, whether he wanted to or not: Catch 22. If the student didn't like what he saw on the ballot, too bad. He had to vote anyway.

I decided to vote in Wilner on Thursday. I went up to the table, signed in, and had my card punched. I received and read a ballot, decided that in all conscience I could not vote one way or the other, and left. When I was outside, the girl who had been sitting at the election table came running after me and told me that I had to vote and that if I didn't she would have to "turn my name in," whatever that means. I didn't vote.

A few minutes later a friend and I walked into the CAC and we went to the voting center there. My friend asked if she could see a sample ballot and she was told she could not.

What kind of a farce is this? In polling places for national, state, and local elections there is a sample ballot available for people's inspection. But I can understand why the SGA didn't feel it necessary to post such a ballot. With such a clear, unemotional, unbiased, entirely neutral, regular ballot given to the students, what would be the need?

Varsity opens season with win

The 1970-71 Shocker basketball squad made their season debut Monday night at the Henry Levitt Arena in a inter-squad varsity-freshman game.

There was never any doubt from the start of the game about who would win as the varsity team jumped to a 21-8 lead in the opening minutes of the game and went on to win 88-52 before a very small crowd in attendance.

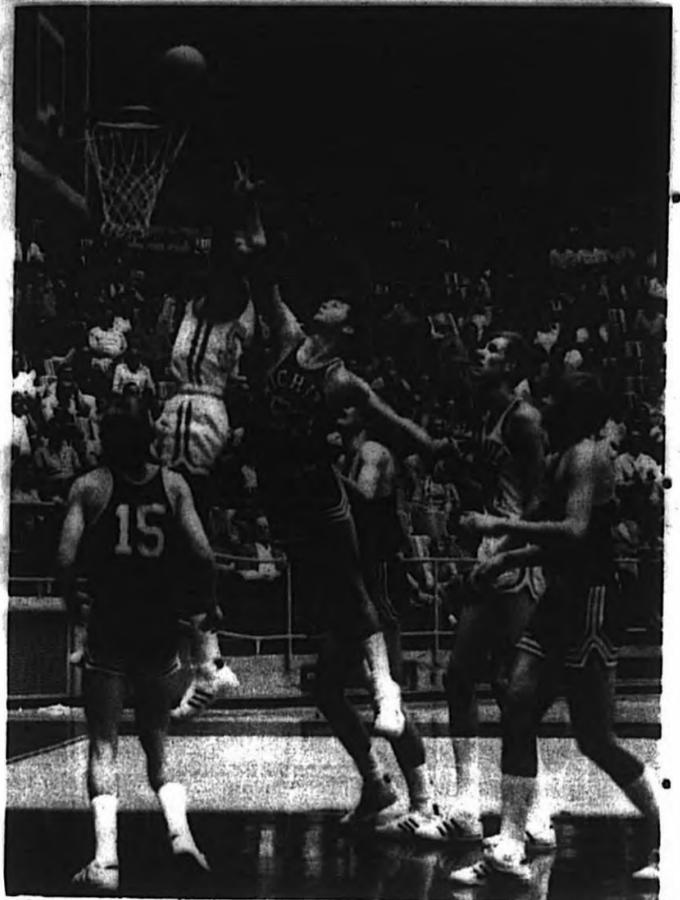

Leading scorer for the varsity squad was 6'5" Ron Harris with 12 points. Six foot 7" Mike Karas and 6'2" Rick Kreher were the only other varsity team members in the double figure scoring column, each had 10 points.

Greg Boxberger, 6'3", led the scoring for the freshmen as he collected 14 points.

The upperclassmen looked exceptionally good from the field as they hit on 39 of 81 attempts. From the free throw line they made 10 of 16.

The Shockers playing a tough man to man defense, forced the freshmen team into numerous turnovers and the result was a fast break that proved very successful.

The Shockers play host to Athletes in Action next Tuesday, December 1, before opening the regular season on Saturday, December 5 at Southern Methodist University.

'Second season' nears end

With the Missouri Valley Conference title already under their belt the Louisville Cardinals come to Wichita Saturday to meet the winless Shockers in the final game of the season.

The Cardinals, 7-3 for the season and 3-0 in the conference, got off to a slow start losing their first two games of the season (Florida State, 7-9 and Southern Illinois, 28-31) but since then have proven themselves worthy of the MVC title. The Cards currently have a six game winning streak going for them.

Following Saturday's game, Louisville will have one game remaining when they travel to California to participate in the Pasadena Bowl.

Louisville, before the season began, was expected to be in a rebuilding year, but instead have received a standout performance from sophomore quarterback John Madeya. The 6'4" sophomore is rewriting the record book at Louisville and has already broken Johnny Unitas' sophomore total offense mark.

Madeya, who is a drop back passer, has fine receivers--Cookie

Brinkman and Larry Hart. Hart was Louisville's quarterback last year but was red-shirted the major part of the season with a n injury. Hart is also the leading scorer for the Cardinals with seven touchdowns.

Primarily a passing team, Louisville does have a couple of fine running backs to keep the opposition honest. Bill Gatti is averaging 4.5 yards per carry with Greg Campbell not far behind at 4.4 yards per carry.

said after the Cincinnati game that he felt this year's team would be good but never was expected to win the conference. "I knew that this was going to be a pretty good team before the season began, but I never even thought about winning six straight and the conference title."

Tickets for Saturday's game are available and it's hoped that a big crowd will cheer the Shockers in their "Second Season" finality.

DON GILLEY (31) takes a pitchout from quarterback Rick Baehr (7) in Saturday's game against North Texas State.

Eagles escape cellar defeat Shocks 41-24

North Texas State came to town last Saturday with one thing in mind, to escape their cellar in the Missouri Valley Conference football race. They did just that when they defeated Wichita State 41-24 in an exciting football game that saw a 104 punt return.

The Eagles jumped to a 214-0 lead on a 19 yard pass from Joe Milton to halfback Carl Hayes with 10:38 left in the first quarter; then three minutes later it was Milton again. This time he kept the ball himself and went in from the two yard line.

With about 7:30 remaining in the first quarter North Texas lined up to kick off. Mike Briscoe, 6'1", 221 pound senior, kicked the ball four yards deep into the Shocker end zone. Little 5' 10", 170 pound Don Gilley took the ball and went 104 yards up the east sidelines for the first Shocker touchdown.

Gilley's 104 yard runback was not a Shocker record. The longest kickoff return by a Wichita State player was back in 1946 by Hap Houlik against Arizona State. Houlik returned the ball 108 yards.

The victory for North Texas broke a three game losing streak for the Eagles and brought their record to a 3-7 for the season. The Shockers now stand a 0-8 with one game remaining.

For North Texas, it was all Joe Milton, The 189 pound quarterback had one of his finer days of the season collecting 296 yards in the air on 14 of 32 aerial completions and two touchdown passes.

Shocker Coach Bob Seaman felt that the difference in the game was the Shocker's inability to hold on to the ball. "We dropped too many passes that we should have caught. Many times we had receivers in the open and couldn't hold on to the ball," said Seaman.

Final statistics show that quarterbacks Rick Baehr and Tom Owen completed nine of 30.

On the ground the Shocks picked up 158 yards led by Gilley with 61 yards on 21 carries.

The young Shockers still responsible for making many mistakes on defense did have good individual performances from Don Pankrat, and Alan Lewis with six tackles each. Lou Tabor and Mike Tinnin also turned in a fine performance with five tackles each.
