Switchboard overload brings change Sunday

WSU will change to a Centrex telephone system Sunday.

The new system, which will improve telephone service on, to and from the WSU campus, will allow those calling to the campus to dial students, faculty members and university offices directly without going through the WSU operator.

University dormitories now have telephones in the rooms,

Filing deadline is next Thursday

Deadline for filing as a candidate for Student Government Association (SGA) positions is 5 p.m. next Thursday, September 21, according to Adib Farha, vice president and election commissioner of SGA.

Positions open are freshman president, four freshman senate seats and four at-large senate seats. Students may file in the SGA office, room 212, CAC.

To qualify, Farha said students must be full time (12 hours) and have a 2.25 GPA. There is no GPA requirement for new freshmen.

Farha said campaigning may begin Sunday, but warned candidates to abide by election rules.

The rules are: posters may be placed only on brick and metal surfaces of buildings and only four may be placed in the CAC; posters may not be placed on glass; no table tents in CAC; no posters within 10 feet of a polling booth; all handbills are to be placed physically in the hands of students; no writing on the sidewalks.

All campaign posters are to be removed within three days after the election. Failure to comply with these rules may result in disqualification of a candidate, Farha said.

and students have their own Centrex telephone numbers on which they can make and receive local and long distance calls. The new system will also make it possible for members of the faculty and staff who are working in their offices after hours to be reached by telephone.

According to Roger Lowe, assistant to the president for finance and business manager, the decision to change the telephone system came about because of the overloaded condition of the present system. Since the current campus switchboard is jammed at certain hours, it was necessary either to relocate and expand that switchboard or to convert to a new Centrex system.

The new system, which can be easily expanded in the future without needing additional equipment and additional operators, seemed most feasible, Lowe said.

Campus listings in the new Wichita telephone directory are those for the new Centrex system. If the number isn't known, WSU's directory assistance number is 689-3456.

SGA endorses VA increase

by Kevin Cook
staff writer

Student Senate voted Tuesday night to support a congressional bill calling for a $75 monthly increase in G. I. Bill benefits to veterans.

If passed, the bill would affect nearly 2,000 veterans at WSU and would raise G. I. bill payments from $175 to $250 a month.

A spokesman for Veterans on Campus told the Senate that passage of the bill could also be an indirect method of raising money for WSU.

A college which can raise its veteran enrollment by 10 per cent in a year, qualifies for federal government payments of $300 per veteran enrolled, the spokesman said.

Higher monthly payments would attract more veterans to the university, and WSU would stand to benefit financially. Such government payments could bring an added $600,000 to WSU.

Under this payment system, half of the federal money goes to veterans programs and half to general educational development, he said.

But WSU could receive a waiver granting all the money to general education development if it will establish a Veteran's office on campus and an outreach program in the Wichita community.

The resolution urged students to write their federal legislators in support of the bill and resolved that the Senate would forward its approval to Washington.

The Senate also passed a resolution urging that the credit-no-credit deadline be extended from six weeks to ten weeks.

The ten-week deadline has been used here in the past, but was changed as a matter of "administrative convenience."

Only two senators opposed the resolution. Most who supported it agreed that the ten-week deadline is fairer to students who may be "sampling" a course.

Senator Barbara Doll McKinney, education senior, expressed her sentiments this way: "No sound educational, moral or ethical reason was given for the (original) change," she said, "and frankly I couldn't care less if it is an inconvenience to those old ladies in Jardine Hall."

The Senate also passed, by unanimous ballot, a resolution thanking Michael Manning and David Calvert for assistance to SGA.

Manning is the Democratic candidate for Kansas Secretary of State. Calvert, also a Democrat, is a deputy county attorney in the consumer affairs division of that office.

Manning and Calvert have helped student senators with such projects as the Student Consumer Bureau and other areas dealing with student rights.

The Senate also heard a progress report from the ad hoc committee on athletics. Senators were told that the group has talked with the Athletic Corporation and has asked them to reduce basketball tickets from $1 to $.50 per student.

In addition, they asked that season tickets for 13 basketball games be sold to students for $5 instead of $6.50 as planned.

And since the Corporation limits student admissions to games, a lottery system was recommended in order to make distribution more equitable than it has been in past years.

No final recommendations have yet been made to the Senate and no recommendations were made about football ticket policies.

Senator Bill Wix, UC sophomore, took issue with the committee. He said he does not feel the football ticket issue is dead, and thinks some action is still needed on it.

Committee member Rex Riley, LA senior, earlier told the Sunflower that many committee members feel it is too late to do anything about the football situation.

Talks between the two parties will resume next week.

'Large jump' on other schools

Cross-cultural degree rare

The Minorities Studies program at Wichita State University has a "large jump" on most departments of its kind, according to Dr. George Rogers, department chairman.

The department, which started in fall 1971 with two classes, now offers major and minor degrees. These degrees are considered unique because they are cross-cultural.

"As far as I know, we are the only department in the country which grants a cross-cultural degree in Minority Studies," Rogers said.

"There are a few places where you can get a degree in Black history or maybe Indian history, but I know of no place that grants a degree in Chicano history."

Most universities require the student to major in psychology or sociology with emphasis in minority studies, Rogers said.

Rogers and his staff of four (a Chicano, a Black, an Indian and a White) are working on developing more courses to further bolster the department.

The department is involved in research and is using different rationals for developing new courses, Rogers said. There are 13 new approved courses, two of which will be added to the curriculum in spring, 1973.

The introductory 100 course studies the life styles, failures and dreams of the Chicano, Indian and Black, he explained.

The department head added he was trying to get the minorities courses as part of other departments such as political science or minority music.

Financial forms due by Oct. 20

Applications from campus organizations to SGA for financial assistance must be made by October 20, according to Wil Goering, SGA treasurer.

Goering said the SGA organizations committee will review applications October 9, 16 and 23. He urges presidents or treasurers of organizations to be present at the time of reviewing to support or clarify applications.

Final approval on the recommendations of the organizations committee will come from the Senate October 17 and 24.

Applications should be accompanied by a realistic, detailed budget reflecting planning and fiscal responsibility, Goering said. Applications may be obtained at the SGA office, 212 CAC.

The Public Affairs Department of WSU's KMW-FM radio station is concerned about the possibility that many landlords may be taking unfair advantage of WSU student tenants. Members of the department feel that an investigation is warranted, but they urge student help.

Those students who feel that their landlords are taking advantage of them because of student status and who would be willing to disclose their names and landlords' names, are urged to contact Kathy Warren at KMW, 17th and Fairmount, 682-1382.

According to Warren, results of the proposed investigation could be a KMW Special of the Week, which would deal with student tenants, housing authorities, landlords, legal aid, consumer protection and the local board of realtors.

WSU Black Student Union aims to promote blackness

The Black Student Union (BSU), formed in 1965, attempts to "unify Blacks on campus," so that Black students may come together in a collective effort, according to R. L. Mitchell, BSU president.

Mitchell explained that the goal of the union is to "promote Blackness." He also stressed that there is a scarcity of Blacks excelling in such areas as mathematics, journalism, biology, engineering and business administration.

Mitchell said that a Sickle Cell Anemia screening program will be carried out in the CAC Kansas Room, September 25-29 in conjunction with Black Heritage Week. Screening dates are September 25 and 26, with hours to be announced later.

Also planned for Heritage Week are two films, "Huey," and "No Vietnamese Ever Called Me Nigger." Time and place will be announced later.

vice-president; Peter Jones, UC freshman, treasurer; and Lily Coleman and Clara Curtis, UC freshmen, secretaries.

BSU meetings are held every other Wednesday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on the second floor of the CAC in rooms announced each week.

Don't be intimidated

The responsibility of the press to perform its "watchdog" role on public officials and others in responsible positions can only be carried out with the cooperation of private citizens. This cooperation means if a citizen has knowledge of an illegal act, he should not hesitate in going to the local paper in order to make others aware of it and by so doing put a stop to any "hanky-panky."

Evidently, those persons who have knowledge of misconduct and bribery in the Miss Kansas contest have been viciously intimidated not to release the crucial evidence needed to clinch the allegations made in The Wichita Eagle, Saturday, September 9, 1972.

No news organization can bring this situation to a head without that concrete evidence. If no one who has this knowledge is willing to step forward to take a public stand by citing names, times, places and other details of the alleged occurrences, then the newspaper's hands are tied. It is aware of a situation but cannot prove it.

The Eagle story was without concrete names either of those who were approached or who supposedly made the suggestions. This unfortunate situation of not having attributable sources is not the best journalism. In reporting the news for any news organization, the first rule of thumb for a journalist is to make all information and quotations readily attributable to identifiable sources. If a story or some information cannot be attributed to a specific source, credibility is lost. Yet, here is a powerful story.

By implication, the story puts the character of all the contestants in question. If names had been used, only those charged would be required to defend their character. As it is, the characters of all the girls are in doubt.

This situation can be and must be changed. The public's right to know is vital.

If those who made the allegations to the Eagle and as yet remain unnamed are firmly convinced that the information and knowledge they possess are accurate, then they should not allow themselves to be intimidated and used as pawns to cover up a potential scandal.

A newspaper seeks to inform its readers. It can only do this with the willingness of its sources to stand by what they say and to bring the appropriate evidence to public examination.

Editor:

Many thanks to Rex Krieg, Mark Finucane, and the "committee... to assess the general direction of student expenditures," etc. (Sunflower, September 8). I am writing to support them, and to urge other faculty and students to do likewise.

There is a very patronizing attitude toward students and alumni at WSU. Students, then and now, it is said, are only interested in grades and a degree. When they become alumni, their monies can only be extracted from them for athletic programs. Now "underprivileged youths" are to be "(given) a chance to attend a Shocker game." For "underprivileged youths," I suppose that is viewed as bringing meaning to the lives of the "culturally deprived."

Why are not "underprivileged youths" being sponsored (i.e. shown how and invited) to attend FREE and EXCELLENT programs of the School of Music? Why are not "underprivileged youths" sponsored to come to weekly art courses and science demonstrations? For $208,997 a year, I'm sure we could find a dozen graduate students who would be willing to undertake these programs; and, after wages, we could even throw in paints and test tubes free. The Anthropology Department's Museum of Man used to invite public school children to exhibits on an annual budget that once got up to $1100; but the Administration not only does not solicit funds for this program, it has been willing to allow it to terminate. I'm sure other departments could tell similar stories about the priority given ACADEMIC PURSUITS.

The students that I meet at this university are not "just interested in grades." They work hard, often at a job or two as well as at home, in addition to their studies. At least half of them haven't the time, money, or interest to go to athletic events. I met some of these students being turned out of the library at 1 p.m. on Homecoming Day last year. The library was closed so that students (?) could go to The Game. The library has closed some of its doors due to insufficient funds. All those in favor of closing Cessna Stadium instead of the library, please say so here.

I would like to use this column to express my opinion of the new "artwork" on campus. I think it is a waste of money. I would much rather have the money spent for parking lots. If beauty is in the eye of the beholder, I find an available parking space much more beautiful than a piece of metal blowing around in the wind.

I have received some questions and other feedback about Rex Krieg's and Mark Finucane's joint letter to the editor and the WSU Athletic Department's paid advertisement, which were both published in last Friday's issue of The Sunflower.

Although The Sunflower does not agree with the current ticket policy, the simultaneous publication of the letter and the advertisement was not meant to convey any disrespect to Athletic Director Ted Bredehoft.

The questions-and-answers material as contained in the paid advertisement was made public knowledge on Tuesday, September 5, through the Office of the Athletic Association, prior to the time it was available for publication.

I sincerely regret if there was any confusion in the minds of any readers.

Free U gearing up for semester of learning

No grades, exams, fees, core curriculum, or degrees are offered by the Free University. Hopefully education is the end product though.

"It is a great opportunity for people of every age and background who are interested in improving themselves," according to Steve Barr, Free U Coordinator. Anyone can be a student or teacher, regardless of age or experience, he added.

The direction the class will take depends entirely on the wishes of the people involved, Barr explained. No formal rules or schedules are required. Possibilities for classes are left up to the individual initiative of instructors. In most classes an informal relationship will exist, and everyone will work together in hopes of a successful learning experience, he said.

According to Barr, everyone at the Free U will be there only because they want to be there, and this should produce an enthusiastic and productive atmosphere.

Anyone wishing to participate in this program should contact Steve Barr, room 212 CAC, 689-3480, or visit the Free U office in the CAC building, where those interested may suggest courses, request a class to conduct, or sign up to attend.

Catalogs should be available by the end of this month, according to Barr. Most classes will begin sometime in October. At the present time, about twenty people have signed up to participate in Free U. For ideal results, at least ten more people would be appreciated. "Consider this opportunity—it could be the best investment (of yourself) you ever made," he said.

MVC champs on the road ;
open at Pittsburg today

WSU's cross country team, the Missouri Valley Conference champions, return this season with good potential, according to assistant cross country coach Charles Perez.

The team placed 14th in the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet and fourth in the United States Track and Field Federation meet last year.

With the exception of graduate Keith Pharr, the entire team will return to represent WSU in cross country this fall.

The Shockers will compete with teams from Kansas State Teachers College of Pittsburg and Oklahoma Baptist University as they attempt to repeat as champions in the event. The meet will be held today at Pittsburg, Kan.

Last year, Steve Lee led the field as he covered the three mile course in 14:43. Alan Walker finished third with a time of 14:47 and Leon Brown was fifth with a 14:57 mark.

Perez is enthusiastic about this year's team. He said "We think we can repeat as MVC champs and also improve our national ranking. With nearly all of our team returning and with the help of some of our freshmen, it ought to be a good year."

Archers to take aim Wednesday in intramurals

Intramural competition at WSU has started with the kick-off of the women's tennis tournament yesterday and the archery tournament next Wednesday.

The women tennis tournament will continue through Thursday and men's competition will begin September 27. Entries will be taken for the men's tournament through Tuesday, according to physical education officials.

The archery tournament, including men and women, will be a one-day affair. Today is the final day for entries.

All WSU students are eligible to compete and may file entries at Henrion Gym. A $.50 charge is required.

Seaman says...

Seaman, WSU head football coach, said that, if he were proposing coach, he would kick the ball to the Shockers' kick-off return specialists, Riley and Fred Specks. Seaman said he is optimistic about the outcome of the upcoming game with the Golden Eagles of Tulsa University. The Shockers will be trying to avenge last year's 31-13 loss. Seaman's predictions may not match what Tulsa has in mind. They boast the Missouri Offensive Player of the Year in Raymond Rhoades, running back. Rhoades gained 127 yards in 31 carries against the State Wildcats last week and won the honor. Compliments of Tulsa's offense is veteran running back Todd Starks. He was second in the league last year in rushing offense and second in the category. Seaman described the defensive tackle for Tulsa, Art Moore, as a mountain. Last season, Moore was second team All-Missouri Valley Conference. Seaman has his own man-mountain in defensive tackle Rick Dvorak. Dvorak was the man who beat Moore for first team honors on the All-Missouri Valley Conference team and was last season's Sophomore of the Year.

The game will be held at 1:30 p.m. at Skelly Stadium in Tulsa, tomorrow.

WSU health service offers first aid, contraceptives, health counseling

A variety of medical services is offered to students at Wichita State University through the Student Health Service, located at 1825 Harvard, according to Mrs. Wanda Maltby, head nurse.

She said some of the services offered by the center are health counseling, immunizations and first aid treatment.

Another service provided by the health center is that of distributing contraceptives. The distribution of contraceptives is done so "on a purely individual basis," commented Mrs. Maltby.

This fall flu shots will be given at the cost of $1.25 per shot. Other immunizations, such as tetanus and polio vaccinations, are offered for a nominal fee, she said.

The health service is staffed with three registered nurses and eleven doctors. In addition to spending one to two hours a week at the center, all of the doctors have private practices.

There are doctors who specialize in internal medicine, gynecology, dermatology, orthopedics and general surgery.

A schedule of when certain doctors will be in is available at the center and information may be obtained by calling the center during office hours. Hours are from 8 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"There is no charge for just coming to the office," said Mrs. Maltby. "Charges on any medicines dispensed are done so at our cost."
