

Rivals for Lt. Gov. agree on few issues

The only issue that Democrat George Hart and Republican Dave Owen, rivals for Kansas Lieutenant Governor, agreed upon during a debate Tuesday evening was the right to vote of the 18-year olds.

George Hart

Owen, a state senator from Johnson County, stressed the equalization of funding of property tax. He also stressed his evidence of concern for the college student because of his work for the right to vote for 18-year olds on the Kansas Right to Vote committee.

Hart, a former state treasurer and frequent candidate for elective office, said he opposes the Kansas Right to Work Act. "Business needs unions and the unions need business, and the farmers need both," he said.

Owen opposed Hart on the Right to Work law saying it was a good law because it provided for people to work and provide for their families regardless of whether they were members of a union.

Hart, who has been a success in the fur business for a number of years, said something needs to be done to plug up tax loopholes which the big banks and industries have been utilizing. He also advocates liquor by the drink and para-mutual gambling.

Owen, a successful banker and realtor, claimed he would fight for financing of state education as a top priority in the legislature.

Both candidates were questioned on how much time they would spend at work if they were elected. Hart responded "full-time." Owen said he would spend as much time as needed to attain a successful job.

Kenneth Ciboski, assistant professor of political science, arranged the debate for an election year workshop being conducted this fall by the Political Science Department.

WSU Honor Society

Senate reconsiders funding

by pat jennings
staff writer

Student Senate Tuesday night spent nearly three hours reconsidering last week's funding of the WSU Honor Society. The money ($275) was to be used as a partial funding of a trip to the National Honor Society Convocation in San Francisco.

Several senators said they voted against the measure because they personally dislike the president of the Honor Society. Other senators said their reasons for opposing the earlier funding were that the Honor Society would offer no contribution to the university community as a result of the Convocation.

The reconsideration was defeated.

Then, in a direct turnabout, Senator Bill Wix made a new motion to fund the Honor Society $280. After a small amount of debate on the floor, the motion passed, with very little opposition.

Ted Bredehoft, WSU Athletic Director, told the Senate that the Athletic Commission wants the Senate to appoint an ad-hoc committee, before February 15, 1973, to discuss the athletic policy for the 1973-74 academic year. The committee is to consist of three student members, and

Also announced was that 17 units of the Midian Shrine Temple will perform at the halftime ceremonies for the Homecoming game tomorrow. Bredehoft expects about 32,000 spectators for the game against North Texas State.

During funding procedures, the Senate decided that the Associated Women Students organization will be allocated $500 as operating expenses for Shirley Chisholm's appearance at WSU October 13.

THE UGLY LADDER RESOLUTION II was removed from the agenda, as the article it concerned was removed from the eastern end of Clinton Hall.

A resolution advocating that the Student Ombudsman and the SGA Environmental Committee search for possible solutions to the noise and air pollution caused by the Campus Power Plant was tabled until next week.

A traffic fines resolution was brought to the floor by Senator Barbara McKinney. She told WSU President Clark Ahlberg that certain faculty members here have parking fines in excess of $400. Senator McKinney said, "I know for a fact that there is a certain member of the history faculty who parks in a loading zone continually, simply because it is near his class. When I asked him if he ever intended to pay his nearly $500-worth of parking fines, he said 'no'."

The resolution was tabled until next Tuesday.

A firearms resolution urging all WSU law enforcement officers to cease carrying firearms while on campus was also tabled until next week.

In addition, five new senators were sworn in. They are: Trix Niernberger, Mike Day, Mark Finucane, Beth Oaks and Tim Ludwig.

WSU sociology prof vies for state representative

Dr. Bob Allegrucci, WSU assistant professor of sociology, is the first Wichita State instructor to campaign for political office under provisions of regulations which were approved by the Board of Regents this past summer.

Allegrucci said that he has been active in politics for quite some time and "was involved in political party primaries at the local level for John Kennedy. I also worked as campaign coordinator at the local party level for Robert Kennedy," he explained.

He said he has always believed that educators should participate in the political system and the progressive measures adopted this summer by the Board of Regents now make it possible.

"I do not expect to see a great increase in the number of educators in state politics in the near future; however, if electoral reforms are passed and better salaries are paid to legislators, the number of educators running for office will increase," he said.

Allegrucci

Allegrucci is running as the Democratic candidate for state representative from the 82nd district. "I would like to invite any Shockers interested in this campaign to contact me if they wish to participate," he said.

NBC network expert on justice and the US Supreme Court, Carl Stern, will speak in the CAC Ballroom at 1 p.m., Monday, October 9. The meeting is open to the public and should be of special interest to journalism majors, according to Milton Besser, assistant professor in the WSU Journalism department.

Stern, a lawyer turned newsman, will be conducting a seminar on October 9 for students of the WSU Administration of Justice department.

Twenty mile march set for March of Dimes fund raiser

The march, sponsored by KEYN radio, will start and finish at Lawrence Stadium. Marchers are to get others to sponsor them at a minimum of 10 cents a mile.

Mrs. Mourning said funds raised will be used for Birth Defects Evaluation Center, St. Francis Hospital, Genetic Counseling Clinic, Wesley Medical Center, scholarships for medical and paramedical careers, direct patient aid and education.

Prizes of television sets, 10-speed bicycles and clock radios will be awarded to the top money-raising marchers. All marchers turning in a minimum of $10 will receive a free ticket to an upcoming rock concert sponsored by KEYN.

Registration forms are available at the Sedgwick County Chapter of March of Dimes, 519 S. Broadway.

Today is the deadline for removal of incompletes and declaration of credit/no credit courses.

Info varies on parking policies

Discussions at recent SGA meetings revealed that some senators had varying information concerning parking violation fines statistics.

An investigation by The Sunflower News Editor disclosed the following:

Three former WSU students owed sums in the amounts of $256, $236 and $155. There are other students with fines outstanding, but none as flagrant as these, according to Campus Security Chief Arthur Stone.

Stone also released the three highest fine dodger statistics on faculty and investigation by the news editor determined that they are no longer employed by WSU. Their fines were $79, $46 and $42.

Some of the SGA senators are considering action that could be taken towards offenders who neglect payment of fines over a long period of time and in cases where the withholding of grades would be ineffective as a collection lever.

Few organizations requesting funding

There have been very few campus organizations requesting funding this year, according to Wil Goering, SGA treasurer.

He added that the deadline for applying for financial assistance for organizations is Oct. 20, and reminded officers that organizations must be recognized by SGA each year.

The SGA Organizations Committee will meet three Mondays beginning Oct. 9, in the Kansas Room, second floor CAC. Representatives from each organization wishing to receive funds must appear before the Organizations Committee before the Oct. 20 deadline.

A sign up sheet is available outside the SGA office, in the CAC, to establish a definite time for making their presentations to the Committee.

Possible cancer cure prompts marathon

The residents of Brennans I, II and III are throwing a bridge marathon, similar to last year's telephone talk-a-thon.

According to Kress Fall, organizer of the marathon, the idea came about because the "lobbyrats" were always playing bridge. So far 27 volunteers have signed up to play in the marathon. There are even three volunteers who don't know how to play yet, Fall said.

The Dorm Council is sponsoring the marathon which is scheduled to begin next Friday.

The purpose of the marathon is to raise money for the American Cancer Society. The news of a possible cure prompted the money-raising scheme, Fall said. Maybe money from the marathon will enable them to market the cure sooner, he said.

Fall said they hope to get donations on a per-hour basis. Donations can be called into Brennan Hall, 689-3541.

"We're doing this for young people," said Fall. "It's not only older people who suffer from cancer."

Four hundred hours is the goal which Fall says they will shoot for. If there is a record by four players at the same setting, they will go for that, too, Fall said.

"Support has been tremendous from the dorm kids," Fall said. He hopes the entire university will get behind them and support the marathon.

'The Consul'

WWII opera set

"The Consul," a three-act opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, will be presented by the WSU Opera Theater in three performances on Wednesday, October 25, Friday, October 27 and Saturday, October 28. Last year, Opera Theater presented Menotti's "The Saint of Bleeker Street."

"The Consul" received two of the outstanding theater awards for 1949-50, the New York Drama Critics' Award for the best musical play and the Pulitzer Prize for music.

The story is set in World War II Europe and concerns the efforts of a woman to join her husband, who has fled the secret police and crossed the frontier. She keeps a daily vigil in the office of the consul, whose secretary constantly thwarts her efforts, and the efforts of other characters in the consulate, to leave the country.

The WSU Opera Theater production will be staged and conducted by Dr. George Gibson, assistant professor of voice and director of opera.

Tickets for "The Consul" are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students, and are available through the College of Fine Arts ticket office, 689-3510.

Reps seeking volunteers

Representatives from ACTION, a citizen service agency, will be on the WSU campus October 18-20 to inform students of the volunteer opportunities in the Peace Corps and VISTA.

The recruiters will be in the Career Planning and Placement Center, Morrison Hall.

"We will be glad to speak with anyone but we are specifically looking for seniors and graduate students who may be considering Peace Corps-VISTA service within the coming year," said Phil Gold, a recruiter scheduled to come to Wichita from Kansas City.

VISTA, the domestic operation of ACTION, places volunteers on more than 400 projects throughout the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, Gold explained.

More than 60 countries throughout Africa, Asia, Latin America and Micronesia have nearly 7,500 Peace Corps volunteers on assignment, he said.

In both VISTA and Peace Corps, volunteers receive a monthly allowance which covers food, health care, clothing and housing expenses. There is also a readjustment allowance which accumulates monthly until the volunteer completes his tour of service.

If a student is thinking of joining the Peace Corps or VISTA, he should contact the recruiters because statistics show recruiter-assisted applicants have a better chance of being accepted, Gold said.

Bicycle group schedules ride

Bicycle enthusiasts can now share their enthusiasm with others when the Bicycle Club goes on an outing. This is a new club on campus.

Last Sunday the group rode to Santa Fe Lake and back. The CAC is sponsoring the group. They provided a van for the trip if anyone got tired.

This Sunday the group plans to meet in the CAC parking lot at 7 a.m. and ride to Kip's for breakfast. From there they will ride in whatever direction happens to sound good at the time, though they plan to stay in Wichita.

About 16 bicyclists went on the Santa Fe trip and that many or more are expected for this Sunday's jaunt.

The club is very loosely organized, according to one of the club's organizers, Kathy Mathews. She said when she and Chris Dilts started the club it was with the intention of having a good time and enjoying the sport.

There are no restrictions on club membership and no formal rules. One can become a member of the club merely by going on the group trips.

If SGA should adopt a theme song, The Sunflower might suggest "Just Like a Yo-Yo."

The case in "punt" concerns the up-and-down, roundabout, who-knows now decisions made on the $280 allocation to members of WSU's Honor Society Tuesday night.

The Student Senate spent nearly three hours in its last meeting reconsidering last week's funding of the $275 to the Honor Society for partial funding to travel to the National Honor Society Convocation in San Francisco.

Why was the Honor Society's funding, which was essentially finished business last week, brought up for "reconsideration?" Didn't the senators trust their original decision? Or their own minds?

Several senators said they voted against

Just like a yo-yo the measure because they personally dislike the president of the Honor Society. Why did the supposedly important personality factor pop up AFTER the finished business

Webster's Dictionary defines the word fickle as: "deceitful, inconstant, marked by erratic changeableness, especially in affections."

Other senators said their reasons for opposing the earlier funding were that the Honor Society would offer no contribution to the University community as a result of the Convocation. The reconsideration was defeated.

Are personality likes and/or dislikes the magic lever in WSU student politics? Is it a matter of whom someone knows or courts which decides allocations and other SGA actions?

The Senate, in a direct turnabout, and after a small amount of debate on the floor, passed a motion to reinstate the Honor Society's funding at $280. There was very little opposition.

Is there no consistency to SGA? Will every issue brought up before the Senate require a 180-degree turnabout, to be followed by a second 180-degree turnabout, just to get something done?!

Or must we be content with fickle-fanged politicians?

Unpublicized functions

Alumni group gets involved

The bringing together of graduates is just one purpose of the Alumni Association.

Another is to be a part of and to serve the university in more ways than just as a fund-raising body, according to Dave Crockett, a member of the Alumni Board.

Taylor reported progressing well

Dr. Ross Taylor, chairman of the Department of American Studies at WSU, is reported to be progressing well at home after suffering a heart attack the second day of classes this fall.

"After spending three weeks in Wesley Hospital, Dr. Taylor is now recovering quite well at home," said Henry Malone, Associate Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Taylor will be back on campus this semester but will not resume teaching until second semester begins, he added.

During Dr. Taylor's absence, classes in the American Studies Department are being taught by Malone and Mike Heston, who was formerly Dr. Taylor's assistant.

Taylor came to WSU in 1939. He has written several books, including "Brazos," "The Saddle and the Plow," "We Were There Along," "The Chisholm Trail," and "On the Santa Fe Trail."

Docking, Kay on TV debate

The first televised debate between gubernatorial candidates Morris Kay, Republican, and the Democratic incumbent, Robert Docking, will be Sunday, October 22.

Kay and Docking will discuss issues and answer questions of newsmen on Wichita television station KARD.

Format for the Docking-Kay debate will include direct questions by a panel of newsmen. The emphasis will be on the full range of issues and problems facing Kansas voters in this year's election.

Representatives of the two gubernatorial candidates are in the final stages of discussions with KMBC-TV in the greater Kansas City area. That station is considering sponsorship of a similar meeting. The date under consideration for the event is Wednesday, October 25.

Another unpublicized function of the AA, Crockett said, is the sponsorship of scholarships in the various colleges on campus. They also sponsor three scholarships for National Merit Scholars, he said.

The Association is currently trying to establish better graduate-undergraduate relations, including joint ventures with SGA to go into the communities in Western Kansas, whose graduates primarily attend Kansas University and Kansas State University, to sponsor WSU nights, he said. He added the Association is already working with SGA in promoting WSU and higher education in general to the Kansas legislature.

Membership has tripled since six years ago and is gathering younger graduates among its active members. The majority of the members graduated before 1970.

"In 1962, the students were mostly part-time students. Today, most of the 12,000 students are full-time and so, in the next five years, there will be more alumni than at any time since the university's founding," Crockett said.

The executive director, Ethel Jane King, tries to serve the needs of all the university community - undergraduate, graduate, faculty, staff and alumni. Her responsibility is to establish active chapters throughout the country to promote WSU financially.

"There is a gap in memberships. There are fewer members in the past two or three years, possibly because the graduate is trying to get settled into a job and isn't certain whether he or she is interested in getting involved," according to Celia Cohen, editor of alumni publications.

The association, which tries to keep close track of all graduates, is trying to bind together graduates both in Wichita and in other towns.

The AWS seminar will host students from a three-state area, including Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

The seminar is Friday and Saturday, October 13 and 14 and all events, except the Chisholm speech, will be in Fairmount Towers. Chisholm's speech will be at 8 p.m. Friday in Henry Levitt Arena. Admission is $1 for the public and free to students.

Chisholm's talk will be followed by a get-acquainted period and a talent hour.

Saturday's program will open at 9 a.m. with a panel discussion by Ruth Luzzati, candidate for state representative, Jean Luft, mayor of Arkansas City, Ruby Tate, member of the Wichita Board of Education, and Tracy Thomas and LaVonna Spencer, delegates to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Disabled vets receive benefits

A disabled veteran may have up to $17,500 for a "wheelchair home" as the result of the second upward adjustment of a VA program in three years, according to the Veterans Administration.

George B. Lappin, Wichita VA Center director, said that the VA is authorized to pay 50 per cent of the cost, within the limit, toward the purchase or construction of a specially adapted home for a veteran whose service-connected disabilities require the need for wheelchair ramps, hand rails or other special features.

He said more than 120 veterans in Kansas have received grants during the 24-year history of the program. These grants have amounted to more than $1,120,000, he added.

"You Can't Teach It If You Don't Have It," at 4 p.m. and on "Communications: Breaking That Plastic Bubble," at 5 p.m. She will also speak at the 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting on human relations on "Our Unlovable Student: The Forgotten Man."

Drug conference impresses few

Shocker representatives weren't overly impressed by the progress of the Kansas Governor's 3rd Annual Conference on Drug Abuse which was held October 2-4 at the Ramada Inn, Kansas City, Kansas, according to Cormit Neloms, LA sophomore.

"I don't think that anyone was particularly enthused because no one came up with any concrete resolutions to the drug problem," he said.

Neloms explained that the conference was aimed at educating the various representatives towards the goals of the Kansas Drug Abuse program in order that each group could return to their respective campuses or cities and begin formulation of drug programs.

The speakers at the workshops, which included the Kansas attorney general, told their audiences that youths are not the only ones affected by the drug problem. Drug abuse has spread from the ghettos to the factories and surprisingly to small towns throughout Kansas, Neloms said.

He said that to his knowledge, there is no drug abuse program at WSU.

Newspaper Week

begins Sunday

"Newspapers: The full information medium" is the theme for Newspaper Week '72, October 8-14, to express support for the free press in a free enterprise system.

According to the National Press Association, Newspaper Week '72 provides the opportunity for newspapers, daily and weekly, large and small, to: 1) focus attention on the fundamental importance of our First Amendment freedom; 2) explain that the liberty exercised by the press belongs to all the people and not to the press alone; 3) stress their essential role of community service and their vital contributions to the social, religious, educational and economic lives of their communities.

Founded in 1939 and sponsored annually by national and state press associations, Newspaper Week is observed by a majority of America's 9,300 daily and weekly newspapers.

Sales and Sales Management Training Program

This Program is designed to develop young college graduates for careers in life insurance sales and sales management. It provides an initial training period of 3 months (including 2 weeks at a Home Office School) before moving into full sales work.

Those trainees who are interested in and who are found qualified for management responsibility are assured of ample opportunity to move on to such work in either our field offices or in the Home Office after an initial period in sales.

Aggressive expansion plans provide unusual opportunities for those accepted.

Seaman says...

The Shockers will be playing their second Missouri Valley game of the season when they meet North Texas in a Homecoming game tomorrow. According to Coach Bob Seaman, the team feels this is the "game of the year." The reason the team hates this one so badly is that no one on the team has been in a conference game and won, Seaman said.

The North Texas Eagles could easily well extend that streak, as they have an experienced team and have not lost to a Shocker team in five years. One of the longest points for North Texas is their size. "They are going to be bigger than us and we are not going to be running over anyone," Seaman asserted.

the Shocks is a NTS defense which is loaded with size and experience.

Leading the Eagles is defensive end Rex Humberger. Humberger is 6'7" and tips the scales at 240. He is the Eagles answer to the "Mad Stork." When Humberger isn't causing havoc in the Shocker backfield, Hurles Scales will be giving the receivers fits. Tabbed by his coaches as one of the Eagles best bets for post season honors, Scales is known for his interceptions.

Seaman said the game will be wide open and aggressive. Always optimistic, Seaman said, "I can't remember when the last time a Shocker football team won three in a row, much less shut out a trio of opponents consecutively. All I can say is that we will show up at 7:30 p.m. Saturday evening ready to play football."

This week's winners of the Defensive and Offensive Players of the Week, awarded by the Shocker Club, are Lino Venerucci and Jim Fenwick.

Venerucci won his award for his efforts in the SIU-WSU game.

Jim Fenwick

He made 25 tackles and intercepted two passes and broke up a third.

Fenwick won his award for his 16 carries which gained 116 yards. He averaged 7.2 yards a carry.

Bob Seaman

One reason for Seaman's concern lies in the Eagles' offense. Leading them will be two experienced quarterbacks, Rick Shaw and Phil Shotland. Shaw figured prominently in the Eagle win over the Shockers last season. The primary target of Shotland and Shaw will be flanker Ed Yaege. Yaege led the Eagle receivers with 18 yards a catch last year.

Going against the Mean Green's offense will be a Shocker defense that has not allowed its opposition to score in 10 quarters of the last three games. Leading the Bold Gold is linebacker Lino Venerucci and tackle Rick Dvorak.

In last week's shut-out of Southern Illinois, Dvorak made 7 tackles to tie the record he set last season as a sophomore. Venerucci intercepted two passes and played well enough to be named Missouri Valley Player of the week.

The only problem the Shocks might have is the loss of linebacker Ed Collins, who was injured in the SIU game and will not be returning to action this week.

On offense, the Shocks should give the Eagles fits. Seaman said, "Any team that averages five yards everytime they get the football is going to score." Last week the Shockers averaged five yards a shot. "This is going to be the game our offense breaks down," Seaman said. "In the last four games we have had drives called inside the opposition's 25 and we are due for a big game." Having the task of stopping

CAB decision could halt student airfares

by pam vandeveer
staff writer

Airline youth fares could be cancelled if the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) acts on its pending judgments of airline discount policies.

Youth fares have been challenged on the grounds that they unjustly discriminate against adults because age alone isn't a valid distinction between passengers. In 1968, CAB examiner Arthur S. Present ruled that discount fares are "unjustly discriminatory."

He immediately received mail from college students by the sack load. Their expression of opinion was so overwhelming that the CAB counteracted Present's earlier ruling.

The board put off any decision on a petition to abolish the discounts until a study of whether the fares are reasonable in relation to carrier costs was completed.

U. S. airlines were split on the issue during the following examiner's investigation. Fourteen of the carriers offering youth discounts supported them and ten opposed them or didn't take a position.

At this point the airlines will continue to operate with youth discounts unless the CAB decision rules otherwise.

Over $300 million is spent each year by people traveling on youth fare tickets. Annually one million youth fare cards are bought by young people who feel they are entitled to its benefits until age 22. Youth discounts save between 20 to 33 per cent off the regular fare. Privileges of the card would be revoked if the fare is abolished.

Charles M. Brooks, regional director of Continental Airlines, said, "In all years past, Continental has been a strong supporter of the youth fare. We have tried to promote ease in communications and travel for the youth market. We would have to comply to a CAB ruling, but will continue to offer youth fares as long as we are legally able to do so."

Carroll Little, district sales director for Braniff International in Wichita, said, "We are not attempting to drop the fares. We like the youth fare for two reasons. First, it gives the young a chance to do some traveling they might not otherwise get to do. And second, it helps us fill some seats that might not otherwise get filled."

If the youth fare were to be dropped, the question is raised as to whether military discounts would be continued, since they operate in a similar manner.

However, according to Jim Figgins of Trans-World Airlines in Wichita, which was one of the first carriers to offer youth discounts, fares are under constant study and change from year to year. "In the event of the cancellation of the youth fare, another type of fare could be substituted which could possibly be better for youth travel in the long run," Figgins said.

Engineering prof to attend series

Dr. Yi-Yuan Yu, WSU's Distinguished Professor of Aeronautical Engineering, has been invited by the General Electric Company to present a four-day lecture series to its engineering managers.

The lectures, which will be delivered by Dr. Yu on Oct. 23-26, will be part of a six-week Modern Engineering Course organized and conducted by General Electric.

The course is designed for the company's engineering managers from all over the country and from some European countries. Professors from various universities across the country who are experts in their fields are invited to lecture in the course which covers all facets of science and engineering.

Dr. Yu's four-day lecture series will cover the analysis of stress, stability, vibration and shock.

A Guggenheim Fellow, Dr. Yu has been an invited lecturer for the Modern Engineering Course since 1963, almost from the time the course was first organized by General Electric.

WSU joins library group

WSU has recently been elected to associate membership to the Center for Research Libraries, Chicago, according to Jasper G. Schad, Ablah Library director.

He said that the library center will afford all Shockers a tremendous amount of research materials that have been unavailable in the past. "Unlike the inter-library loan service which supplied materials to only faculty and grad students, this membership will serve all students who need research materials," he explained.

Thoburn Taggart Jr., WSU assistant professor and coordinator of public service, will be in charge of administration of requests for services of the research center.

Information pertaining to the new services may be obtained in 132 Ablah, Schad added.
