Science supreme court concept advocated in Eisenhower talk

By JEFF GRIFFITH

The establishment of a board of scientists to inform both the government and public about scientific problems was advocated Thursday by Dr. Dixey Lee Ray, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ray, first speaker of the fall semester Eisenhower Lecture Series, said the board could operate similar to the United States Supreme Court, but would be more inclined to advise and instruct than make judgements.

One possible area for the board would be alleviating unwarranted fears about alternate energy sources, particularly atomic energy, Ray, the first woman to head the commission, said.

"When people hear the phrase atomic energy all they can think about is that giant mushroom cloud of an atomic bomb, and right away they feel it is unsafe," she said.

But, she explained, in the more than thirty years atomic reactors have been in use, no serious accidents have occurred. "That's a safety record that's hard to equal anywhere," she said.

One of the greatest fears of nuclear reactors stems from disposal problems with radioactive wastes. "At this time though," Ray commented, "The amount of waste is very small because only a small amount of atomic fuel is used."

"Besides, there are already methods by which the waste can be used constructively," she added. When exposed to stored grain radioactive cesium, a by-product of atomic waste, cuts down the amount lost to fungus and rodents, which sometimes amounts to 40 per cent, she explained.

State aid sought for vets

The office of Veterans Affairs at Wichita State University is proposing that the Kansas legislature approve a bill that would pay tuition fees for eligible veterans at state educational institutions.

The proposal for a state G.I. bill will be considered at a meeting Saturday of the Kansas Association of Veterans at the Kansas Technical Institute in Salina.

Richard Barnes, assistant director for the WSU Office of Veterans Affairs, will attend.

"There are currently about three different plans for state tuition assistance," Barnes said in an interview. "An aim of the meeting is to agree upon which plan or parts thereof should be presented to the legislature in Topeka."

As of Jan. 31 of this year, 13,176 out of the 398,000 veterans in Kansas were taking some kind of training under the federal G.I. Bill. Slightly under 9,000 were attending institutions of higher education in Kansas and elsewhere.

Under the WSU Veterans Affairs plan, Kansas would join 13 states already providing aid to veterans and their dependents in addition to benefits received from the federal government.

Gov. Bennett to talk with state educators

Kansas Governor Robert Bennett will address a conference of public school administrators, Board of Education members and other education leaders at Wichita State Saturday.

Bennett will speak in room 208 of the Life Sciences Building at 9 a.m. on the topic: Wise Use of Human and Fiscal Resources in Education. The governor will be introduced by WSU President Dr. Clark Ahlberg.

Other conference speakers are Dale Dennis, director of school finance and statistics for the State of Kansas, and Don Dagley, professor at the University of Georgia.

Yesterday, Gov. Bennett was in Wichita to announce his appointment of Richard C. "Pete" Loux, the minority leader of the House, to the Kansas Corporation Commission. The appointment of Loux, an 11-year veteran who admittedly wanted to be Speaker of the House someday, effectively disarms a long-standing political foe of Bennett's, many observers believe.

Bennett told newsmen that he picked Loux because of his abilities as an accountant and legislator, and despite their political differences, he believes Loux to be "a man of high integrity, considerable experience and a person endowed with the attribute of basic fairness."

Aid for vets sought

Office offered six main points for its adoption:

Due to the high unemployment rates among veterans, payment of tuition by the state would be an incentive and an alternative to those veterans drawing on community services and agencies to further their education.

The payment of tuition would aid veterans who are under-employed or who are able to hold only part-time jobs.

The attrition rate for students leaving school for financial reasons would more than likely decrease if their tuition was provided.

The students who are currently enrolled part-time would be financially able and more willing to increase their hour load.

Because the average age of the veteran population is higher than that of the regular student body, they are more apt to remain in Kansas, thereby benefiting the state. Because of their age and experience, these veterans are more apt to complete their educational goals in a specified period of time.

The great number of educationally disadvantaged veterans would be induced to complete some level of education, thereby eliminating a portion of this economically distressed population.

In addition, said the supporters of the proposal, each veteran attending a state educational institution under the federal G.I. Bill brings more outside money into the state's economy, more than offsetting the amount spent on tuition.

Senate to meet Monday

The University Senate will hold a meeting 3:30 p.m. Monday in Room 126 of Clinton Hall. Committee reports will include one on academic standards and practices by Dr. David McFarland. President Clark Ahlberg will introduce new business regarding City of Wichita funding.

Dr. James A. Berlin, has been appointed assistant professor in the English Department. Dr. Berlin recently completed the requirements for his Ph.D. in Nineteenth Century studies at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Beatriz N. Santos, the wife of Ben Santos, a member of the creative writing faculty at WSU, has been appointed assistant professor in the English Department. Dr. Santos earned her Ph.D. in education at the University of Iowa. She also holds a Masters Degree in English from Legazpi College in the Phillipines. She earned her second master's degree, in education, at the University of Iowa.

Sorority housing shuffle slowed by city red tape

Action on the proposed move of Sorority Row from near the Library to an area west of Bluff and north of 21st Street has been "very nil this summer," according to Dorothy Harmon, president of the house corporation board of Alpha Chi Omega, one of the sororities to be affected by the move.

According to Harmon, all five sororities involved in the move, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma and Gamma Phi, have hired architects, but they are "waiting for everything to get through the City Commission" before any definite planning can begin.

She estimated another two months could pass before all problems are ironed out.

Negotiations have been underway for over a year for moving the sororities from their current location, which is to be used for the construction of the new Liberal Arts Building.

Most of the sororities planned to have a good idea of just where and when they would be building by now, but approval by the City Commission has taken longer than expected.

According to Cletus J. Pottebaum, business manager of the Board of Trustees, "We are trying to push this as fast as we can," but all progress hinges on approval of the final plan by the City Commission.

Ray advocates science court

activities are unwarranted, Ray said. Rigid security around the fuel and the lack of expertise needed to handle the fuel would make construction of a bomb virtually impossible, she said.

Commenting on the need for communication between science and government, Ray said the relationship is uncomfortable because few scientists hold administrative positions, making it difficult for the government to find solutions to pressing problems with ecology and shortages of food, energy and raw materials.

She said that only one man in the Congress, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), has a worthwhile education in science.

"At this point in time," she also said, "half of the public thinks scientists can do anything, and the other half is afraid they will."

"Better communication to the public would help to ease the fear surrounding atomic energy," she added.

In addition, "We must begin to seriously consider energy alternatives," Ray said. She said if the U.S. became energy self-sufficient, which she expects the government to try, its supply of petroleum would be extinguished in six years at the present rate of use.

Aside from atomic energy, Ray said other energy alternatives should be studied, such as geothermal, coal, solar and thermal energy.

"The most important thing to remember," she said, "is the answer must be found here on earth. I seriously doubt that anyone is going to want to live elsewhere even if it were possible. Besides, the cost of living on the moon or surrounding planets would be prohibitive."

Ray said finding answers to the problems will take time. "It's just like having a baby," she said smiling, "regardless of how many doctors you hire and how much money you spend, it still takes nine months. And nothing on earth can speed it up."

"We are extremely pleased to have a man of Dr. Rodenberg's stature as our new dean," said Dr. D. Cramer Reed, vice president for health education at WSU. "I am sure he will provide the leadership our growing programs in health education require."

Alternative adult studies program offered

Wichita State University will offer a new adult education program this fall. An Alternative Adults Studies Program at Marcus Center for Continuing Education will offer The Bible as Literature, America and the Future of Humanity, and Renaissance and Baroque.

The program is designed to serve the educational needs of adults whose aim is to stay informed, to enrich their lives by being exposed to areas and fields of study largely of their own choice, and who want to read, listen and discuss their studies with highly qualified and carefully selected professors.

Prof. Robert Meyers will teach The Bible as Literature Tuesday from 1:15 to 3:15 p.m.

The course studies the bible as a literary artifact with readings from Old and New Testaments. Literary techniques are pointed out and their meaning for the manner of composition of the Bible is discussed.

Prof. Mira Merriman will teach

Renaissance and Baroque, a historical survey of art from the Renaissance to the 18th century, including discussion of art produced in Italy, France, the Low Countries and Germany. The class will be Thursday, 1:15 to 3:15 p.m.

America and the Future of Humanity will be team-taught by Professors Phillip Thomas, history; A.J. Craig, engineering; Alvin Sarachek, biology; and Martin Perline, economics.

The course is a perspective on the historical development of the "American Dream." Reading material would be selected from a variety of disciplines including history, political science, economics, sociology, engineering and genetics. The class will be Wednesdays 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Enrollment for fall courses will be Monday in the Marcus Center for Continuing Education from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. Enrollment for each class is limited to 50 students.

WSU Theatre season honors bicentennial

In honor of the American Bicentennial, WSU's University Theatre roster for the 1975-76 school year will include plays from the English and American stages.

Opening the season will be "A Little Night Music," the elegant Sondheim-Wheeler musical based on Ingmar Bergman's film, "Smiles of a Summer Night."

The musical, which is being cast this week, tells the story of three couples who spend a weekend together in the Swedish countryside.

The score includes the song, "Send In the Clowns," recently made popular by Judy Collins.

The production will be staged Oct. 16, 17 and 18.

Also coming are Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," Nov. 13, 14 and 15; "A Taste of Honey," by Irish dramatist Shelagh Delaney, Feb. 5, 6 and 7; "The Children's Hour," by Lillian Hellman, March 4, 5 and 6; and "Androcles and the Lion," by George Bernard Shaw, April 15, 16 and 17.

The first Readers Theatre production will be Sept. 13 and 14. Entitled "The World Is Round," the show is based on works of Gertrude Stein, and is directed by Joyce Cavarozzi.

Also in rehearsal are the opening offerings of the Experimental Theatre season. "The Games People Play," directed by Bela Kiralyfalvi, and "Room Service," directed by Robin Salem, will be presented on a double bill Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Abstract art exhibit opens Sunday

A retrospective exhibition of major paintings by Richard Pousette-Dart, one of the original pioneers of abstract expressionism, will open at the Ulrich Museum of Art at Wichita State University Sunday.

The Pousette-Dart exhibition was featured earlier this year at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York.

The exhibit will remain in the museum through September, and Pousette-Dart will visit the WSU campus Sept. 14-16. A public reception in his honor will be held in the Ulrich Museum from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 14.

Many of the paintings in this current exhibition of Pousette-Dart's work were completed during the past decade.

Pousette-Dart was one of the group of artists which included Jackson Pollock, Willem de Kooning, Mark Rothko, Clyfford Still, Franz Kline, Barnett Newman, Bradley Walker Tomlin and Mark Tobey who brought new international recognition to American art.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., in 1916, he was the son of painter, Nathaniel Pousette-Dart and poet, Flora Louise.

In 1936 he plunged into avant-garde abstraction and three years later he exhibited in New York.

Over the years Pousette-Dart has resisted the pull toward action painting and critics have described him as a pioneer, a transcendental expressionist and an artist whose spiritual convictions amount to religion. Jack Kroll, of "Art News," called him "an excellent idiosyncratic and particularly American painter . . . cantankerous and even 'eccentric' American original."

Pousette-Dart has had retrospective exhibitions in 1963 and again in 1975 at the Whitney Museum. In addition, he has had one-man exhibitions in New York.

In 1969 the Museum of Modern Art circulated an exhibition of Pousette-Dart's work throughout the United States, but the current show at the Ulrich Museum is the first major retrospective of his work ever held outside New York.

Marathon marks KMUW birthday

By MIKE TAYLOR

A musical celebration of KMUW-FM's 26th year of broadcasting in Wichita will be heard for the next three days.

The "Music Marathon" will devote each of the four days to a different type of music interspersed with fund raising and some new programming.

Kansas media members to be university guests

The Wichita State University Office of Information and Public Events will host members of the Kansas Press Association, Kansas Association of Broadcasters and local media personnel for "Media Appreciation Day" Saturday.

Included in the events are a tour of the Edwin A. Ulrich Museum in the McKnight Art Center, a dinner in the Campus Activities Center and the first Shocker football game of the season, WSU vs. West Texas State.

"This four-day music celebration is to give our listeners a lengthy sampling of our music programming, raise funds of $6,000 for the coming year and to celebrate our 26th year of broadcasting," said KMUW Program Director Tom Donoho.

KMUW receives funding from federal and state governments but listener support is a big part of keeping the program on the air, Donoho said.

"The biggest problem we have now is getting an identity," Donoho said. "Since our programming is so diversified, listeners tune in at certain times as opposed to the whole day. People don't think of KMUW as the radio station they listen to."

During the next year, Donoho said, there will be additional musical programs including a Classical Showcase, the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra series and a new country western music show on Sunday afternoon.

"We try to play what is not already on commercial stations because we are alternative radio," Donoho said.

Listener suggestions and requests are taken into consideration, he said.

Music favorites of the past started the Music Marathon Thursday and the station will be playing soul and Mexican music Friday with rock and jazz Saturday and an entire day of classical music Sunday.

Yearbook seeks subscribers

Students who do not get their subscriptions in soon for the 1975-76 Parnassus will have problems getting a copy of the yearbook, according to Ramona Logan, Parnassus editor.

Logan said the subscription drive is "not doing as well as expected." Less than 2,500 of the 4,000 subscriptions needed to send the book to press have been secured.

"Even if we don't get the needed 4,000 signatures by our Sept. 15 deadline, we will try to get out some kind of book," Logan said.

She added, "I don't think students realize that if they don't order their Parnassus now, it's going to be almost impossible to get one in May, because we won't be ordering that many extra."

Logan said this year's hardbound Parnassus will attempt to achieve a medium between the traditional college yearbook and the creative attempts of the last few years.

Senior pictures will be included in this issue. Anyone graduating between Dec. 25, 1975, and Aug. 26, 1976, is eligible to have a picture in the Parnassus.

The Parnassus is looking for writers, photographers, illustrators and graphic designers to fill vacancies in the staff, Logan said. Interested students should contact the Parnassus office, 1810 Yale, 689-3645.

...will try for MVC win in opener

By MIKE SHALIN
SPORTS EDITOR

The 1975 Wichita State University football team makes its debut Saturday night against West Texas State. It is the beginning of Jim Wright's second season and you can count on the Shocks being scrappier and more aggressive.

This team makes the squad of a year ago look like a group of Sunday school teachers (which was often how they played). The Shocks have added bigger people and put some meat on the smaller ones.

"We are definitely a more physical, aggressive team," Wright has stated often since the start of spring workouts.

Football games are won and lost in "the trenches," the line. You have to have size or 59-0 losses become the rule rather than the exception.

The Shocks front four only average a little over 225 lbs. as compared to West Texas' line which is in the 230's and not exactly noted for its size either.

Wright and his staff feel they can go two-deep on defense without suffering much. The starting front four will be Bill Dwiggs and Willie Smith at the ends and Dennis Diedrick and Bob Larsen at the tackles. Diedrick is the biggest at 250. He will start in place of the injured C.E. Starkweather who is recovering from a shoulder injury but will play.

Backing up the front four are linebackers Dave Warren and Ronnie Shumon and nose guard Clem Jankowski. Warren is an All-Valley pick who is capable of covering any mistake of the front four. Jankowski is filling Diedrick's regular spot. Diedrick will switch back and forth depending on Starkweather's availability.

The defensive backfield is made up of cornerbacks Tony Sumler and Alvin Brooks and safetys Mike Landrum and Cliff Fanning. This is where the Shocks may get burned. One must only think back to the Alumni game when the old men seemed to pass at will on the Shocks.

Sam Adkins will direct an offense that should put some points on the scoreboard. The running backs will be Elbert Williams and freshman Jeff Shepler.

Shepler is getting his first exposure to college ball the hard way. C.J. Peachlyn's hand injury suddenly sprang Shepler into the spotlight.

Adkins will miss Stan Ricketts on the receiving end of his passes but Mike Copeland, Bob Cicero and Jim Billinger all seem to do a capable job.

Up front it's Ted Vincent and Dick Hedges at the tackles, Glen Parter and Rand Olsen at the guards and Mike Bales at center. We will also see plenty of 275 lbs. lineman Dave Crandell.

Kent Van Vleet will handle both the punting and place kicking with the sudden departure of Dan Vess. Van Vleet may be the best kicker in the conference and gives Wright what he didn't have last year—a way to score without a touchdown.

Shockers look improved for '75...

By MIKE SHALIN
SPORTS EDITOR

Still smarting from a 41-7 loss at Canyon, Texas, last year, Wichita State opens up its 1975 football season Saturday night against West Texas State.

The game is the 12th in the series which stands 7-4 in favor of the Buffalos.

Gene Mayfield's squad will run the wishbone offense with Tully Blanchard at the helm. Blanchard is a strong runner with an equally good passing arm. "He is one of the best quarterbacks we'll face all season," assistant coach Bill Baker said Wednesday in his scouting report. "He'll try to lull us to sleep with the run and then throw the ball at us."

Word from Canyon is that John Paul Lee and Freddie Turner will be the halfbacks and Mayfield thinks this may be the best set of Buffalo backs since 1968.

Mayfield feels he has answered his split end problem with Okie Scott Wiley. Wiley is small (5 feet, 8 inches) but has a great pair of hands.

The West Texas defense is a sure one with the only problem being the linebackers. Junior Jeff Nunn is plugging the void created by the departure of All-League player Bruce Davis.

There will be an interesting sidelight in the game. Both teams have outstanding kickers and the duel between Kent Van Vleet and WTSU's Bruce Wyre may be what decides the game.

This game is a big one for both teams. It's unusual to open with a conference battle but there are two such battles Saturday. Drake is at New Mexico State Saturday night. The Aggies are favored in that one.

It has come time now for what will be a regular feature this year... The Shalin Prediction. I figure WTSU to be up for what is to be their only Valley road game.

The Shocks should be equally up for their home opener.

I'm going to stick my neck out and go with the Shockers 20-17 in a great game. Don't shoot me if I'm wrong.

The Shocker ticket office will be open until 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Others will be tried out in the opener but the afore-mentioned will play most of the time. So how good (or bad) will the 1975 Shockers be?

"I think we're much better than we were last year," understated Wright. "We have a tough schedule but I think we can handle it better. We have more able-bodied people."

What is a realistic goal for the Shockers? How about four wins? Or maybe five. After winning only one in 1974, things have to improve. Just how much will hinge on the opening game. If the Shockers beat West Texas, they should do alright. If they lose the first game, watch out. The Shockers have a dangerous schedule but better players. Let's just wait and see what happens.
