University Bid Decision Slated By Board Today

by Cheri Basta

The Board of Crestview Country Club will meet today to discuss a bid of $1,550,000 offered by Wichita State University for the Crestview property.

The bid by the WSU Board of Trustees was made following notification by Crestview officials that Kansas City developer Allen B. Kipper was in default in his option to purchase the 149-acre tract of land.

This offer, made by WSU, does not include the 10.9 acres on East 17th on which the Wheatshocker Hall dormitory is built.

The WSU Board met in a special session Saturday at noon in the CAC to discuss a proposed finance plan for the purchase.

Upon notification of approval of two-thirds of Crestview stockholders, the University will make an initial payment of $300,000.

Another $300,000 would be paid on May 1 of this year. The trustees also would assume an $800,000 mortgage and pay $150,000 upon possession of the property.

Financing for purchase of the Crestview property will be obtained from the following sources:

*The Fourth National Bank will back up the $800,000 mortgage and subsequent payments.

*Some $200,000 will be used from unallocated funds from the 1-1/2-mill city levy.

*The trustees will borrow $400,000 from the University Endowment Association.

Wesley Sowers, head of the Finance and Investment Committee, emphasized that no state funds are involved in the proposed transaction. The Board of Trustees, not the University as such, is purchasing the property.

Sowers noted that the University is a logical purchaser of the Crestview property for two reasons. First, is the need: the proximity of Crestview to University land and the need of the University for future expansion.

Secondly, is finances. The University has offered a sound financial plan which the Seldin-Kipper interests have failed to do.

Members of the Board said they were pleased a method of financing the land purchase had been worked out, to protect the future of the University.

A letter sent to the Crestview Board reminding them of the University's continued interest in acquiring the Crestview property opened the door for further negotiations. The Crestview Board's invitation to three WSU trustees to attend a meeting to discuss the Crestview transaction ensued.

William Higgins, attorney for Kipper, had been notified about Feb. 17 that his client was in default on the option agreement.

Kipper had proposed a community unit plan which could include a shopping center and apartments. The WSU proposal is at a price less than half the $4.85 million at which Kipper offered to sell the property to the University, had he acquired it.

Possible legal action growing out of the Kipper interests' failure to exercise the option by the deadline (Feb. 2), is also a possibility, the Board recognized. This legal action would involve attempts to recover $300,000 put in escrow by Kipper, as "good faith" money. The only money which has changed hands in the entire transaction between Kipper and Crestview is another $300,000 paid for the Wheatshocker property, according to Wayne Coulson, WSU trustees' attorney.

Kipper's original purchase price was said to be $1.85 million. Under the new arrangement, the University would pay

Help Desperately Needed For Brain Injured Victims

Volunteers are desperately needed to help in administering cross-pattern therapy to brain injured children in the Wichita area.

A group of local women are in the process of forming an organization, Volunteer Aid for Brain Injured Children (VABIC) to aid this call.

Neurological patterning therapy, a relatively new method of treatment, involves techniques that include crawling movements as a chief part of the treatment.

In patterning, the patient lies relaxed while other persons put his body through various movements. Repetitions of these movements, day after day, eventually ingrain their patterns in the patients' memory.

Motion Filed By Grist For Return Of Seats

George Grist, local attorney and basketball fan, has filed a motion in the District Court asking that WSU be ordered to return his two seats in the Field House for next year's basketball season.

The intent of the motion is to have the court grant such relief upon evidence already presented and the court's ruling on the hearing for a temporary injunction made Feb. 13.

In that hearing the injunction was denied on the grounds that the seats had already been given to another party and that it was a useless action to leave them empty. However, Judge Noone also ruled that Grist had clearly had agreement with WSU and that the University had violated that agreement.

A summary judgement granted in Grist's favor, based on the old evidence, would eliminate the necessity of presenting new evidence. The motion, filed Thursday, states that the action will be heard by Judge Noone on March 16, unless an earlier date can be agreed on.

Grist also filed an affidavit that he had tendered the court, on Nov. 15, 1966, the purchase price for the two seats and that he would tender the same for the 1967-68 season.

Grist said the University had made no move to give him the tickets for next season and settle the litigation.

WSU President Emory Lindquist appeared reluctant to take action without concurrence of the State Board of Regents, Grist said.

The Board of Regents, in written answers to the suit, stated that it is the responsibility of President Lindquist to make athletic policy for the University. Judge Noone will decide March 16.

Cheating Scandal Shakes Academy

Twenty-seven Air Force Academy students have resigned as of last weekend as the second cheating scandal in two years rocked the institution Friday. The students, including some athletes, were charged for cribbing in the classrooms of the nation's newest service school.

Lt. Gen. Thomas J. Moorman, academy superintendent, said 24 cadets were forced to resign for violating their honor code. He said another 26 had been implicated. Officials said the cadet honor committee was continuing to question suspected participants and more resignations may result.

All of those who have resigned were members of the second class (juniors). The academy is not releasing the names.

A spokesman said four of the 27 weren't directly involved in cheating, but knew of it and failed to reveal the information.

The mass resignation stunned the 12-year-old academy. Two years ago, it experienced a cheating scandal which resulted in the loss of 109 cadets, including about 48 recruited athletes. The 1965 incident involved the stealing and sale of examination papers.

Students Working On Campus May Get Regulations

Wages paid to WSU student employees will be regulated by minimum wage laws if court rulings now pending bear out a recent decision of Kansas college officials.

Administrative officials, university business managers, and the Kansas assistant attorney general met Jan. 19, and agreed to comply with the new federal minimum wage law. Previously, colleges and universities were exempt from minimum wage law requirements.

The new law will not effect wage increases for WSU employees until Feb. 1, 1968. The minimum wage set by the law is $1 per hour. WSU has paid this rate to all student employees since Sept. 1, 1966. The law provides for minimum wage increases by annual steps of 15 cents to reach $1.60 per hour by Feb. 1, 1971.

Because the proposed budget for the fiscal year 1968 did not account for these increases, a supplementary request has been made.

Students Favor Vigorous Policy Says KU Study

University of Kansas students were surveyed by their psychology department concerning military policy in Viet Nam. Results of the study showed three to one in favor of a more vigorous military policy, said Dr. Joseph Lyons, visiting professor of psychology.

A tabulation showed 76.83 percent in favor of strengthening military pursuit of the war, with 19.69 percent preferring a lessening of military power, and 3.49 content with the present policy followed by the Johnson administration.

The study consisted of a seven-point scale on questions ranging from immediate and total withdrawal of our troops to "Bomb them back to the Stone Age! With any kind of weapon." Those favoring immediate withdrawal represented 9.21 percent of the total responses and 8.8 percent advocated the use of any kind of weapon including atomic ones.

In answer to a separate question concerned with negotiations as a means of ending the conflict, 87.28 percent of those in favor of lessening military force favored peaceful settlement talks with the Viet Cong. However, of those wishing for more vigorous military policy, 49.03 percent also favored some form of negotiation to end the war.

Lyons said, "The results suggest that perhaps many persons separate military and political considerations. They favor the most vigorous possible means of persecuting and ending the conflict, but they also are open to negotiations as an alternative approach."

Accident Claims Life Of Student

A WSU student was killed early Sunday morning in a one-car accident in Butler County, one-half mile west of the Greenwood County line.

James K. Gustin, 20, a Liberal Arts junior from Toronto, Kan., was a passenger with Richard Harber, 20, also of Toronto. Highway patrolmen said Harber apparently fell asleep at the wheel, and the eastbound car ran off U.S. 54.

Harber was admitted to Susan B. Allen Memorial Hospital in El Dorado, Kan., with minor injuries.

Services for Gustin will be at 2 p.m. today at First Christian Church, Torontot. Burial will be in Toronto Cemetery.

Film Group Sees Audience Change

The Wichita Film Society reports sharply fluctuating attendance at their showings. They feel this is due to a change in the location of their programs from Duerkson Fine Arts Center.

Dr. Walter J. Duerkson, dean and professor of fine arts, explained that the Fine Arts Center is used by many for clinics, symphonies, workshops and classes. There is a growing problem in obtaining its use because of the increased demands from both the campus and the community.

The present film schedule is as follows: March 1, "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner," CAC Ballroom; March 15, "View from the Bridge," Wilner Aud.; March 29, "Miss Julie," CAC Ballroom; April 12, "Wild Strawberries," CAC Ballroom; April 26, "The Entertainers," Wilner Aud.; May 10, "Hallelujah the Hills," CAC Ballroom.

Faculty-Artist Series Presents 3 In Recital

Wichita State University will present the tenth recital in its 1966-67 faculty-artist concert series at 8 p.m., tonight in the DFAC Concert Hall.

The performers to be featured on this concert are: Mary Bickford, harp; Harrison Boughton, tenor; and Don Hummel, trombone.

Mrs. Bickford joined the WSU faculty as harp instructor in 1958. She is a member of the Wichita Symphony Orchestra and president of the local chapter of the American Harp Society. She is a past president of the local alumni chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon music sorority and currently serves as faculty adviser to the WSU chapter.

Mrs. Bickford will present one selection in tonight's concert, "Introduction and Allegro" by Maurice Ravel. She will be accompanied by Douglas Lee, assistant professor in piano at WSU.

Boughton, assistant professor of voice and choral music, came to the faculty in 1961. He had previously taught at William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., and Evansville College, Evansville, Ind. In addition to teaching private voice at Wichita State, Boughton is also conductor of the University Madrigal Singers and the A Cappella Choir.

For his faculty recital, Boughton will sing two sets of songs. Among the works he will perform are: "Ye Foes of Man" by Bach; "Clair de Lune" by Faure; "How Do I Love Thee" by Dello Jolo and "Simple Gifts" by Copland. He will be accompanied at the piano by his wife, Patricia.

The University's assistant professor of trombone and music education, Don A. Hummel, came to Wichita in 1965 after teaching at Arizona State University and the public schools in Phoenix, Arizona. Tonight, Hummel will play "Cavatine" by Saint-Saens; "Sonata No. 2" by Bach; "Piece en forme de habanera" by Ravel and "Sonata" by Hindemith. Wichita State assistant professor in piano, Paul Reed, will accompany Hummel.

There is no charge for this concert. The public is invited.

State Senate To Consider Fair Housing Controversy

By Ron Loewen

The moment of truth is rapidly approaching for Senate Bill Six, a proposal relating to fair housing in Kansas. Public hearings on the bill have been concluded and the State Affairs Committee is expected to send the measure to the Senate for consideration within the next ten days.

Battle lines are drawn and supporters of the fair housing law admit that they face an uphill fight. The influential Kansas realtors lobby feels that Senate Bill Six is "forced legislation" and an infringement on personal property rights. Backers of the bill would like a stronger measure but are content to settle for the proposed bill because they consider it to be a step in the right direction.

Senate discussion on the fair housing proposal is expected to begin during the first week in March. Governor Docking told newsmen recently that he would sign Senate Bill Six if it came to his desk in its present form. The current feeling among the statehouse leaders is that the bill will never get past the Senate floor.

The fair housing controversy is a state-wide issue, and many people are actively lobbying on both sides. The only state-wide survey of public opinion, KAKE-TV's usually accurate TELE-VOTE, indicates that those polled are against a stronger fair housing act by a majority of two to one.

Kansas already has a fair housing law on the books, but state civil rights leaders charge that the Kansas Act Against Discrimination is full of loop holes. Senate Bill Six is designed to plug some of those loop holes.

Proponents of the bill point to Colorado where a strong fair housing act has been enacted and has been very successful. The Colorado law is considered the toughest in the nation, and according to Gerald Quiat, chairman of the Colorado Civil Rights Commission, the act was passed with the support of "property owners and minority groups alike."

Mademoiselle Set For Interviews

In the near future, 25 girls on the WSU campus will be interviewed by Linda Martin, Campus Marketing Representative for "Mademoiselle," a fashion magazine which cater to the college girl.

Interviews will take place on major campuses all over the United States and the information will be compiled into a fashion booklet which will be available in Wichita stores catering to the college girl.

This booklet will contain information on what type of clothing a girl should buy for college, what she will need in the dorm, as well as information about other accessories that will be helpful.

"In this way," said Miss Martin, "a girl can find what they areearing on the campus of her choice and buy accordingly."

From time to time during the semester, the Campus Marketing Program for "Mademoiselle" will send Miss Martin other questionnaires on the likes and dislikes of WSU girls.

Miss Martin, a sophomore in secretarial training, stated that she would be happy to help any girl with her fashion problems.

Large Grants Are Harmful To Education

Many prominent educators are beginning to think that the $2 billion the federal government spends annually to underwrite university research could be disastrous for higher education.

The March Reader's Digest reported that members of Congress are concerned that the massive research grants have harmed higher education by "excessively diverting scientific manpower from teaching." It quotes an estimate by Rep. Henry S. Reuss that over 40,000 teachers have left schools for laboratories. In Washington, more than two dozen college and universities employ lobbyists to compete for federal funds.

William Schulz, Washington columnist and reporter, disclosed that some colleges receive more than 40 percent of their operating budgets from federal research projects. Since most of these grants go to only a few universities, it is becoming common for large universities to raid the faculties of smaller institutions.

Dr. W. T. Lippincott, an Ohio State University chemistry professor, claims that government support of research is "potentially the most powerful destructive force the higher education system has ever faced."

Georgetown Prof To Give Lecture On WSU Campus

"The History and Problems of Translation" will be the topic of a lecture by Prof. George A. von Ihering from the Institute of Languages and Linguistics, Georgetown University. It will be given March 10 at 3 p.m. in Area 3 of the CAC.

Professor von Ihering has wide experience as a novelist, journalist, translator, and film writer. In the Germany of the Twenties he began his friendship with Erick Kaestner, the author of "Emil and the Detectives" and of much social satire in poetry and essays. He has also worked as an interpreter in French and English, and has written German dialogue for about 200 British and American film sound tracks.

The professor will sketch the history of literary translation and discuss some of a leterare translator's problems. He will also propose some "Rules of thumb" for prospective translators.

The German Department invites all interested faculty and students to meet Professor von Ihering and to join in coffee and discussion after the lecture.

that relate to the most recent trends in music, art, dance and treatre.

Yenne has been selected to sing the title role of Joseph Schweik in the festival production of the opera "The Good Soldier Schweik" by the late American composer Rubert Kurka.

This opera was Kurka's only dramatic effort. It was given its first performance by the New York CitOpera Company in 1958. Public reaction to the work was favorable and since that time the work has been presented with increasing frequency both in the U.S. and Europe. Kurka died some three months before the premiere of the opera.

Yenne, who joined the Wichita faculty in September, will be a featured soloist when the Wichita Symphony Orchestra presents Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem" on March 12 and 13. He also served as tenor soloist for the 1966 performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the Wichita Choral Society.

Campus Review Show To Host WSU Profs

On March 11, Dr. Paul Tasch, head of the geology dept., will present color slides pertaining to his recent trip to Antarctica.

Campus Review is coordinated by Frank Kelly, assistant professor and director of broadcasting at WSU. It is hosted by WSU students and gives information concerning campus news and events.

Eastward, Ho!

In a special meeting held Saturday noon, the WSU Board of Trustees outlined a plan for financing the purchase of the Crestview Country Club property.

The trustees are to be commended for taking prompt action on a notification by the Crestview Board that Kansas City realtor Allen Kipper was in default on his option to purchase the property.

Negotiations on the Crestview property have spanned the last two years and have tried the patience, at times, of all parties involved.

Hopefully the time is now ripe for decisive action on purchase of the property soon to be vacated by Crestview interests.

WSU has always been the logical party to obtain the property. The need for future expansion is a certainty for the University and this large expanse of land not committed to residences is ideal for that purpose. Now that a sound financial program has been constructed for the purchase of the property and an actual bid has been made, further action rests with the Crestview Board of Trustees, who meet today to discuss the offer made by the University.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon the University Senate backed the action taken by the Board of Trustees.

We would like to second their approval and express our hopes for a favorable response from the Crestview Board and stockholders. The University needs room to grow. Eastward, Ho!

'Honor' System?

The second cheating scandal in two years rocked the Air Force Academy this week. As of this writing, 36 cadets have been forced to resign, and 21 others are under investigation.

It is hard to believe there are that many "crooked" cadets. If one is to find an explanation for not one, but two scandals of such magnitude, one must look beyond such a pat answer.

The answer is just as obvious, however. The fault lies in the system itself. The Honor Code embodies two antagonistic concepts. One, designed to build "esprit de corps," holds that cadets are unique, elite, above the masses. Their loyalties are to one another, against virtually the rest of the world.

On the other hand the code, as it is set up at the Academy, holds that a cadet who has knowledge of cheating is exactly as guilty as the cheaters, whether he ever participates or not.

Therefore the cadet is bound to defend his comrades on the one hand, and to report them on the other. There are few young callous enough to "squeal" on a friend, even without the inculcated group spirit evident at the Academy.

What follows, then, is logical. Two cadets, driven by what-pressures, begin to cheat. Another cadet finds out about their activities. His conscience won't allow him to "rat." Knowing that he can be "hung for a goose as for a gander," he decides to begin cheating also. Each subsequent cadet who learns of the situation faces the same dilemma. Even if he never cheats he is held guilty. If he confides in a friend, that friend is implicated. The "conspiracy" spreads, until finally the administration learns of it, and then--scandal.

Many fine cadets and potential officers have been forced to resign, not because they cheated, but because they would not "squeal" on a buddy, who may not have actually cheated himself, but only knew of it.

All this, in the name of "Honor."

The Readers Speak

Reader Admonishes Minister's War View

Prophet Scorned

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to Cecil Findley and his "non-prophet corner."

Mr. Findley, in your article of Feb. 24th, you urged to commit ourselves to a negotiated peace in VietNam. Also that the United States should take the initiative by ceasing the bombings. We didn't want this war, Mr. Findley, but Communism must be stopped at all cost if we wish to remain free. It would had been easier for you to say that we should withdraw from Viet Nam and let the Reds take over, because the conference table will be a waste of time if we do not accept the conditions of the Viet Cong, who want to add South Viet Nam to the list of nations enslaved by Communist tyranny.

They will not be satisfied with a fraction of the country, but the country as a whole. That is why the real alternative in Viet Nam is Victory, which is the least we can offer those who have given their lives for freedom in this part of the world. This victory cannot be achieved at a conference table talking to a bunch of Communists rats. It can only be a military victory, to show them that we are willing to defend our freedom at all cost.

I know Communism, Mr. Findley, I lived under it and that is why I hate to see a nation fall under its chains. Sometimes, with the help of some that should be fighting it.

A. Campuzano
UC Freshman

P.S. As an after thought, Mr. Findley, it seems a shame that a person like you, dedicated to the doctrine of God, should condone a system, which by its very nature condemns and outlaws religion.

Wants Writer

To the Editor:

I would like to get acquainted with one, or some, of the students that are studying writing. I went to Alaska when I was 17, and was in Alaska and the Yukon for 18 years. Since I have retired, I have written my memories of all that happened in the time I was there (554 pages - Memories of Alaska Sourdough).

This is a pretty rugged story, and it has to be rewritten and put in book form before it can be published. The writer that does this is sure to make himself some real money.

Hunt Worthwhile To See Showing Of Play 'Dylan'

By Garry Moore

If you can discover which of Wilner's side doors leads to the Pit, and if you don't take the wrong turn after entering, and if you make it to your seat without tripping over something or being struck by a falling spotlight, then you have a rare treat awaiting you in Mel Daigle's Experimental Theatre production of "Dylan."

The stage is occupied by only a worn wooden stairway, branching at the top in two directions. But this ingenious piece of scenery is used brilliantly for everything from the stairway of a Southern mansion to the gangplank of a ship, as this story of the romantic agony of a great lyric poet unfolds.

Twenty-four relatively disparate scenes make character development somewhat more difficult in this play than it would be in a drama constructed along more traditional lines. But Glenn Cunningham, as Dylan, and Sandy Womack, as his wife Caitlin, make their parts live in a way rarely seen short of the professional stage. The range and subtlety of Cunningham's voice injects an almost unbearable poignancy into this tragic tale. And Miss Womack's wonderfully expressive face rounds out a nearly perfect picture of utter pathos.

Unfortunately, the supporting cast was not of comparable quality. However, Dr. James Erickson, of the English department, did a commendable job as Angus Marius, a New York book publisher who supplied Dylan with women and booze on his trips to America.

The play focuses upon the last three years of the poet's life. Originally wishing to be the "drunkest man in the world," Dylan turns the end of his days into a steady descent into oblivion. His reading tours of the U.S. did little to help his stability, but the final cause of his destruction probably lay in Freud's fabled "death wish" and the inability of a poet's sensitive soul to accept the responsibility required of an adult in the 20th century.

Last Time Tonight

So, if you have an extra dollar and some free time tonight, go see this play. It would be difficult to find a better use of time and money.

A trilogy of plays directed by Louise Harrell, Larry Mc-Mullen, and Terry Kovac will be the next WSU Experimental Theatre production. They will be held March 16 and 17.

Letters To Campus

By Mother

Dear Les,

How are things in the big city? I hope the teachers aren't mean to you. If they are, tell them I'll write to the Board of Regents. Your grandfather sends his thanks for the birthday present. He says he really needed a set of corderoy toothpicks. We had a party for him last Saturday. Ninety-seven years old, and we had a candle for every one of them. We had a Devel's Food charcoal cake. We all chipped in and got him a new wheelchair with mud and snow tires.

Your uncle Wilbur had a birthday last week, too. He was forty. He's taking it quite seriously and is trying to decide whether to go on or not. He figures if he goes on the church'll want

Student Project To Assist Poor Set For Summer

Opportunities are available this summer for college students to work with Indian Americans, Spanish Americans, and Negroes, as well as other disadvantaged groups in your society.

Projects are planned in rural areas, inner city neighborhoods, and overseas areas. The projects will include remedial teaching, supervision of recreation, family service, voter registration, and community organization.

According to UCF campus pastor, Tom Townsend, the activities are constructed "to channel abilities and concerns of students to points of real human need; and to provide students a chance to grow in their understanding of aspects of contemporary society and to explore their own occupational interests."

Many thousands of students have participated in past summers. For further information, contact the UCF office in the CAC.

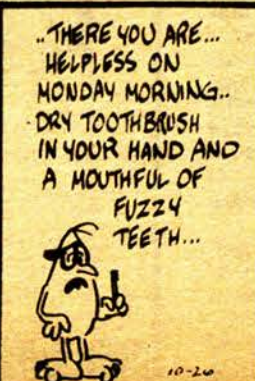

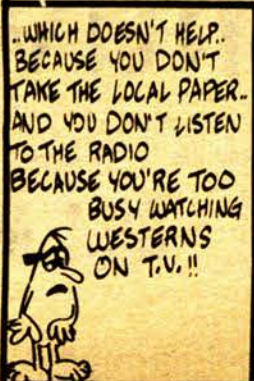

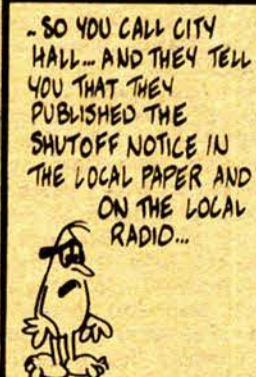

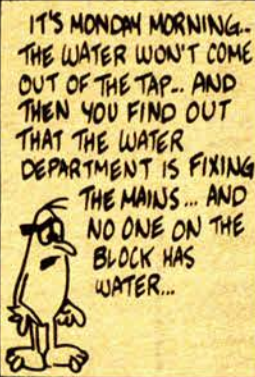

ten percent of his income. But if he quits, the undertaker'll take a lot more than that, but he'll only get it once. He's trying to figure if he'll save more at ten percent a year or a bigger bill just once. The whole town is split into two camps; the ten percenters and the undertakers. Everybody's hoping he'll make up his mind pretty soon before riots break out.

Did you hear about your little brother? He's forming a rock and roll band. They practice out in the barn where there isn't any electricity, so he saved his allowance and bought a kerosene guitar.

I'd better close now, the undertakers are having a rally and I don't want to be late. Don't forget to wear your over shoes to school, its bound to rain someday. I'm sure your teacher will help you get them off. You father sends his love (sorry, no money).

Film Society To Present British Movie Wednesday

"The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner" will be presented on campus Wednesday by the Wichita Film Society.

The 1962 British film concerns an 18-year-old slum-bred boy from England who is sent to a reformatory in Borstal. Despite his contempt for authority, he becomes the top runner of the school and the best bet to win in competition against a private school.

As he goes through his morning practices, his early life is revealed through flashbacks. On the day of the race the boy's surprising decision brings the film to a powerful climax.

Tom Courtenay and Sir Michael Redgrave star in this thoughtfully disturbing story, ac-

Miss Joyce Ann Greene, LA sophomore, was awarded a $150 scholarship at the honor breakfast last Friday at 6:30 a.m. Joyce was presented the award for having the highest grade point average during her freshman year by Mrs. Robert Armstrong, scholarship chairman.

Speaking at the breakfast was Kay Peer, president of the Alumni chapter. She spoke on the history of Mortar Board, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary on the WSU campus.

Dr. James Erickson, assistant professor of English, related his experiences as a member of his high school's honor society in 1949. A member of an "Elite" group within the society, he told of he and his friends being so overwhelmed by their own superiority that they failed to benefit from the opportunities provided by high school.

The breakfast was attended by 82 people.

Eighth Captured By Coed Archers In Unusal Event

Wichita State placed eighth in the Division of Girl's and Women's Sports Winter Intercollegiate archery tournament, held during the first part of December. Thirty-three schools entered the indoor event of 60 arrows at 30 yards. Wichita's high scores were made by Alice Boyd, Mary Haen, Kathy Johnson, Elaine Frick, Carol Sue Wilson and Donna Thomas. Few contestants entered other tournament events.

This tournament is quite unusual in that each team competed at its own school, then sent the team results through the mail to a national judging corporation. Several weeks later, the corporation compared the results, computed the scores, determined winners, and mailed each school's standing to them.

Where does an engineer intern?

Before you decide on the job that's to start you on your professional career, it's good to ask a few point blank questions . . . like:

- Will this job let me rub shoulders with engineers doing things that haven't been done before, in all phases of engineering?
- Will I be working for an engineering oriented management whose only standard is excellence?
- Will I have access to experts in fields other than my own to help me solve problems and stimulate professional growth?
- Will I be working with the widest range of professional competence and technological facilities in the U. S.?
- Are engineering careers with this company stable . . . or do they depend upon proposals and market fluctuations?

SHOCKS SURPRISE CARDS 84-78

by Mike Kiser

Before Saturday's WSU-Louisville game, Shocker coach Gary Thompson said that to win, the Shockers would have to have one of their best games, and the Louisville Cardinals would have to play one of their poorer contests.

As it turned out, the Shockers played their greatest team game of the season. But Louisville was only a shade, if that much, off their game. The Shockers simply wanted the win, were keyed for it, and knocked off the Cards, 84-78.

Louisville, paced by two Westley Unseld jump shots, flew to an early 8-4 lead, but a driving layup by Mel Reed and a short jumper by Jamie Thompson, knotted the score at 8-8.

From that point on, the Shocker man-to-man defense, both on the full court and half court area, forced the Cardinals into numerous costly turnovers. The Shockers were also getting the break on the speedy Cards, and receiving good layup opportunities, being fouled by the Cardinals, and converting their free throw opportunities.

The hustling Shockers added to their lead until it was 11 points 36-25. Then, with four minutes remaining in the first half, Louisville, behind the driving jump shots of forward Butch Beard and guard Fred Holden, narrowed the Shocker margin to 41-37 at halftime.

In the second half, guard Ron Mendell tossed-in three quick driving shots, and the Shockers moved to a 48-39 lead, as Louisville could pick up only two buckets in the opening 3 and one half minutes.

But the Cardinals, and Unseld in particular, made a strong bid to get back into the contest. The Birds' All-American center layed-in four baskets, guards Denny Deeken and Fred Holden scored one apiece, and Louisville moved to within two points, 53-51 with 12:11 remaining in the game.

But a sixpoint flurry by Warren Armstrong and Jamie Thompson quelled the Cards' hopes, and the Shockers refused to allow Louisville to mount another comeback effort. The Shockers amassed a 12 point lead, 73-61, with six minutes to play, and never allowed the Cards to get closer than six points the remainder of the contest.

Statistically, the game was won on the free-throw line. The Shockers went to the charity stripe 27 times, and connected on 22 of those attempts for a red-hot 81.5 percent. Louisville got only 18 tries from the line, and made good on 10 of them, for a 55.6 percent mark.

But in actuality, the game was won by five starters and three reserves who put together fine individual performances to form an excellent team effort.

The Shockers outrebounded the tough Cardinals 42-37, taking some of the effectiveness out of the Louisville fast-break—a phase of the game which really hurt the Shockers in their first meeting with the Cardinals.

The Shocker defense was another key to the victory. The Shockers kept the pressure on the Cards throughout the contest, but did so without fouling. The Cards went to the free throw line only 18 times.

The scoring duels between the Cardinals and Shockers were close. But the big asset in the Shocker scoring column came on the strength of Mel Reed's 24 points, which tied him for game leadership with Louisville's Unseld. Unseld, however, grabbed 17 rebounds and blocked at least five shots, and was the tower of strength for Louisville.

The Shocker frosh started the evening on a winning note as forward Ross Alexander, with 34 points and 17 rebounds, paced the Baby Shockers past Northern Oklahoma Juco, 91-81.

Young Democrats Discuss Future Campus Seminar

WSU Young Democrats will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Area 2 of the CAC to discuss preliminary plans for an "Insurance Seminar" to be held here. A complete financial report and distribution of copies of the new constitution are also on the meeting's agenda.

The seminar, to be held in early April, will be open to all Kansas students. Gov. Docking is tentatively scheduled as the keynote speaker, and it is a possibility that Robert Kennedy may also attend, said Steve Joseph, president of WSU's YD chapter.

A leadership conference will also be held in conjunction with the seminar. Primarily for state and individual club officers, the conference will deal with the local club organization and its problems.

Joseph recently returned from a meeting of Kansas CYD executives in Topeka. This executive committee set up a preliminary schedule for the annual state convention to be held this year in Hutchinson, April 27, 28, and 29.

Former Valley Stars Shine In NBA

Every Missouri Valley Conference basketball team abounds with talent. However, only the best of that talent can withstand the fast-paced action and the grueling travel schedule which is found in the professional National Basketball Association.

Eight former Valley stars dot the rosters of the ten NBA clubs this season. And, unlike college competition, in which five or six players can often lead a team to a championship, play in the NBA requires at least ten cagers of proven ability. The Valley has certainly contributed its share.

'Big O' Valley's Pride

When one mentions MVC basketball, the name that comes immediately to mind is that of Oscar Robertson. Oscar, who starred at Cincinnati University from 1957 to 1960, won the national championship three times as a Bearcat. Robertson, in his almost seven years in the NBA, has continued his super-star performances. This season, for example, he is scoring at a 30.4 clip, good for second place in the NBA. Oscar is also hitting 49 percent of his field goals from a guard position, connecting on 87 percent of his free-throws, and recording nearly 11 assists per game.

'The Jet' Lifts 76er's

A star in the Valley for three years while playing at Bradley, Chet "The Jet" Walker has come into his own at a forward position for the Philadelphia 76er's, in the NBA's Eastern Division. Walker, after four fair scoring seasons with Syracuse and Philadelphia, has played a big part in the rise of the 76er's this season. Walker is tossing in 19.7 points per contest and hitting 48.9 percent of his field tries.

'The Rave' Helps Knicks

When Shocker basketball followers talk about the cage sport, the name that most often comes to mind is that of Dave "The Rave" Stallworth, who set 18 WSU records before completing his eligibility in 1965. A rookie last season, averaging 12.9 ppg, Dave has played more regularly, acting as the first man off the bench whenever a forward or guard gets in foul trouble or is cold from the field. Stallworth's effectiveness is shown by the 35-point performance, his personal high as a pro, he had earlier this month against Cincinnati.

Missouri Valley basketball — a pipeline for protalent — a pipeline which should not run dry, with such underclassmen as Wes Unseld, Butch Beard, and Rick Roberson ready and waiting for pro teams.

Cage Meet Set;

Finals March 8th

The top teams in the five intramural basketball leagues began battling for the All-University championship last night, with Newman I meeting the Outsiders, Beta II squaring off against the Rebels, and the All-Stars facing Rebels II, and Beta III vieing with Kappa Alpha.

The winners of quarter-final play last night and tonight meet tomorrow night, March 1, in winner's bracket semi-final games at 6 and 7 p.m.

Semi-final winners meet Thursday, at 8 p.m., for the winner's bracket championship.

At the same time the winner's are battling, first round, quarter-final, and semi-final losers, vie for the loser's bracket championship crown.

The king of the winner's bracket tangles with the top team in the loser's round, meet March 8, at 7 p.m., for the All-School Basketball championship.

Copies of the tournament bracket are available in the Intramural Office, Henrion Gym.

International Club Holds Elections

The International Club held elections for officers last Wednesday in Area 2 of the CAC. Elected were Nancy Chabino, president; Faruouk Brahimi, returning vice-president, Orhan Kunter, treasurer; and Jean Bohannon, secretary. Activities chairman, a new position, was filled by Leona Durham.

Apathy Meets

Apathy Club will meet tomorrow in Area 2 of the CAC at 3:30 p.m. Reports will be made by the social and fund-raising committees, and by the Apathy delegate to the steering committee for the newly proposed campus coffee house.

Shocks To Tangle With Eagles In Return Conference Battle

by Steve Gresham

"It's a terrific struggle to win on the road in this league," remarks North Texas State head basketball coach Dan Spika.

Spika obviously realizes the odds against his Eagles defeating the Shockers Thursday night in the Field House. He should know, for the Eagles of North Texas State have yet to win away from home in any of their MVC games.

The Eagles bring a 4-9 Valley record into Thursday's contest and currently stand 12-12 overall.

Saturday night's loss to Bradley on the Eagle's home court deprived them of their fifth conference win which would have been a new record for them in MVC play.

The significance of Thursday's game for the Shocks is simple—they must win! Most of all they need a victory to stay in the race for second place in the Valley, but also the Shocks would like to make amends for an earlier 80-68 loss to the Eagles on the NTS court.

The main cog in the Eagles machine-like victory at Denton was 6-1 senior guard Rubin Russell.

Russell pumped in 23 points that night, 15 of which were scored in the second half.

This fine Ft. Worth, Texas cager is one of the leading scorers in the MVC this season, scoring at a 21-point clip for all games.

Another part of the Eagle's wrecking crew was 6-7 junior Hamp Hazelton.

Hazelton had one of his better nights against the Shocks, the muscular forward netted 19 points and was very effective on the backboards.

Still another devastating factor was 6-8 senior Willie Davis, who led the Eagles in rebounding and made things unpleasant for the Shocks' Melvin Reed.

Hot-shooting and strong rebounding brought the Eagles their earlier victory over the Shocks, as the Eagles fired in field goals at over fifty percent and held a comfortable margin on rebounds.

Shocker coach Gary Thompson summed up the game in this manner, "We were beaten by a better ball club tonight."

To win the Shocks will have to hold Davis and Hazelton off the boards and make the Eagles shoot from the outside in hopes that they will hit the fine percentage they did against the Shocks earlier.

Shocker Gymnasts Split Meets ; Baker Breaks All-Around Record

WSU's gymnastic's team scored it's sixty victory of the season Friday night by edging Ft. Hays State 160.20 to 156.05. But Saturday afternoon the Shocker gymnasts were turned back by Colorado State College 172.90 to 157.75.

The Shocker's overall record now stands at 6-7.

Taking honors for the Shockers in the Ft. Hays meet was team captain Bob Baker. Baker scored a record 50.20 points in the all-around competition.

In his performance, Baker scored victories in the side horse, long horse, and parallel bars.

Other winners for the Shocker team were Mike Young, free exercise and Sam Humphrey, rings.

Credited with a win in the trampoline was Mark Giese from Ft. Hays.

The loss leaves Hays with a four and two overall record.

In the Colorado State meet, Baker was the Shocker's only winner as he grabbed the top position in the parallel bar event and was once again victorious in the all-around competition, this time with a score of 48.15.

The fine Colorado State team took the six remaining events while chalking up their 15-point win.

WSU Men Compete In Karate Tourney

Four Wichita State University men traveled to Dallas, Texas Feb. 18 to compete in the United States Karate Championships.

A record breaking 630 competitors from all areas of the country entered the tournament.

Making the trip from WSU were Roger Carpenter, LA junior; Craig Henry, UC freshman; Doug Mitchell, UC sophomore; and Chris Wells, UC freshman.

Carpenter came up with a fifth place finish in the black belt division. First place in that division went to David Moon of Texas Tech.

Demonstrations were given by top karate instructors from Korea, Japan, Okinawa, and the United States.

The next competition for the men will be the second annual All-American Open and College Team Championships to be held in Oklahoma City, April 22.

Volleyball Tourney To Begin Wednesday

Intramural director, Bill Butterworth announces that an intramural volleyball tournament is set to begin this week.

Any interested six-man teams should sign up in the Intramural Office, Room 100, Henrion Gym.

Games will begin about March 1. An entry fee of $2.00 per team must be paid at the time of entry. Only 12 men are allowed on each team.

Michigan State had a record home attendance of 426,740 for its six football games in 1966.
