Senate Meeting Cut Quorum Not Present

By Bil Whitehead
Sunflower Staff Writer

Student Senate acted upon four pieces of legislation before three senators left the Tuesday meeting, reducing the group to less than a quorum.

To vote upon any issue or enact something, the Senate must have a quorum present. The chairman declared the quorum present at the start of the meeting, which stood until a senator's discretion required a roll call to establish the quorum.

Agency Proposal

Legislation passed included a proposal sponsored by Ombudsman Bob Downs to create a Student Consumer Agency which was sent to the Operations Committee. The agency would protect students from consumer fraud and would work in conjunction with businessmen in the community such as the one at Kansas State, according to Downs.

John Morse, SGA president, supported the proposal saying that it pointed the ombudsman in the right direction and would refer students to the right agency for help.

Other senators felt that a clear definition of the agency structure should be in the proposal. Downs hoped to get the proposal passed so the proper offices would take action.

In other business, a Tall Grass National Park resolution was passed. The proposal supports creation of a national park in the state of Kansas. The bill is pending before the United States Senate.

An amendment to define and force more and greater participation of senators was also passed and a proposal to support funding of the College of Health Related Professions was defeated.

Morse said, "It would look like students would only support the funding of one college and would not care what happens to the others."

Senators Absent

The Senate then moved to allocations given to organizations and was to reconsider the $3,200 allocation given to Model UN. Many senators who are also Model UN delegates are in St. Louis this week for a Model UN conference.

Since several senators are in St. Louis this week for the UN program, the credibility of the Senate to make an allocation was questioned. Morse said it would be a "cheap and dirty trick."

Downs then called for the official roll call, found that a quorum no longer existed and the Senate voted to adjourn.

After the meeting Downs called his move a point of legality and added he did not want the Senate to act illegally.

Campus Crime on a Plateau 'No Expected Increase' Stone

The crime rate of WSU appears to have reached its plateau, according to statistics of the University security office.

Chief of WSU security, Arthur Stone, said the total number of reported crimes for 1970-71 was 513. The period from August 31, 1971, through February 29, this year, shows 200 crimes on campus.

"Considering the growth in student population and the crime rate, we don't expect a per capita increase," Stone said.

One of the most disturbing figures of the crime report is that only five per cent of the incidents committed on campus are perpetrated by WSU students. The other 95 per cent are committed by persons who find the University to be a fertile field for their various skills.

Burglary and theft are the most numerous crimes on campus. Each has been cited 70 times during the past report period.

Much like a city, WSU suffers from the bolder criminal activity, as reflected by one robbery and six assaults, and the more cautious culprits who stole 12 bicycles and one lone drunk who was apprehended.

During the past two statistical periods, the security division has cleared more than 40 per cent of reported crimes; almost twice that of the national crime clearance rate for colleges.

Chief Stone said, "Naturally, we're proud of this record, but I want everyone to know that much of the credit for this record belongs to students, faculty and staff of the University. They have aided us by reporting suspicious persons on campus or persons in areas where they are not supposed to be."

Many times, incidents are not reported immediately and the result is that certain types of crimes reoccur repeatedly before the offender can be arrested.

Stone explained this was particularly true of an indecent exposure case last year. A man was reported four times (both on and off campus) during approximately five hours committing

Dormies Nothing But Talk In Quest for World Record

Approximately 150 WSU dorm students have proved they are nothing but "all talk."

As of 8 a.m. today, members of the three residence halls have been talking with each other for 60 hours without a break, in an effort to set a new world's phone marathon talking record of 600 hours.

Dates have been made, parties and "secret rendezvous" arranged, and new friends found in the quest to raise money for KPTS, the educational television channel in Wichita.

The topics have ranged from the inane to the sublime. Women is one of the predominate subjects the men talk about, while the women in turn discuss the men.

The tremendous problems of the world, war, poverty, race relations, are all discussed in the three-way conversations over the "hotline."

The hope is that students, faculty, staff and Wichita businessmen will become interested enough to contribute money per hours spent on the phones.

To facilitate this desire, approximately 1,100 letters have been sent out to members of the University community explaining the purpose of the marathon. The letter explains how and where the individual or group can make their contribution.

A number of administrators and faculty members have already pledged to the fund. Bob Lautz, director of testing, has the highest pledge to date at five cents per hour. Don Nance of counseling is contributing three cents per hour for the second highest pledge. The total pledges from faculty so far total to over $100.

There have not been any pledges from individual students as yet, but one class is contri-

City Residents at Odds With Street Planners

While children paraded the street outside with placards supporting their parents, residents along 1st and 2nd streets took odds Wednesday night with the city planners on the proposed street improvements in their neighborhood.

More than 450 people were present at the Traffic Commission's public hearing to discuss the relationship of 1st and 2nd streets to I-35W (canal route), presently under construction.

The public listened for more than 45 minutes as the city staff presented their side of what should be done as far as reconstructing the two streets. The city proposes widening them from Hillside west to the canal route. The staff supported this saying that when the highway is completed, there will be a great need to provide additional outlets between Douglas and Central to move traffic into the downtown area.

Increase Considered

Robert Lakin, director of planning, told those opposed to the city plan that they must consider the increase in traffic which is projected for the two streets. Lakin said the increase must be allowed for, because to ignore it won't make it go away.

Mary Ellen Barrier, representing the Committee to Save Our Neighborhood, testified that the city's proposal to widen the two streets is ill-conceived and represents poor planning.

L. B. Kappleman, also speaking on behalf of the citizen committee, said the area would become a "variable noise junkyard" if the city plan were approved.

Citizens' Proposal

After presenting the Traffic Commission with petitions containing more than 2,500 signatures, the citizens offered their own proposal for settling the controversy. Monte Robbison submitted the citizens' plan and explained the objectives.

Robbison said, "What we are trying to do with this plan is to eliminate the east-bound traffic from coming off the canal route onto 1st street." This is the traffic "that would add traffic to the neighborhood. Likewise, at 2nd street, we are proposing to eliminate the access from 2nd onto the canal route. We feel that this would keep unnecessary traffic off the two streets and thus eliminate the need for them to be widened."

Wayne King, chairman of the Traffic Commission, responded to the proposal saying, "there are some obvious faults in this particular plan. Number one is that there are no exits for south-bound traffic except at buting as a group. The personnel and guidance class under Walter Freisen, University College dean, and Mike Williams has pledged one cent per hour.

The competition among those students participating in the marathon to see who can talk the longest is friendly, but fierce.

Larry Shrecongost of Fairmount Towers and an announcer for KMW, started the competition with a statement that he would talk for six hours without a break.

Teresa Siebert, also of Fairmount Towers, immediately responded with a goal of 12 hours.

The action then shifted to Brennan Hall, where Elsie Kopczick doubled Siebert's goal of 12 hours. Her 24-hour pledge was immediately matched by Pat Christy, also of Brennan. Kopczick then raised her time to 30 hours.

The campaign to raise money for channel 8 has not been limited to the phone marathon. Staff members of Brennan Hall have challenged the Morrison Hall Administrators basketball team to a rematch of a game played earlier this year.

Each team will donate ten cents for every point the other team scores. The game will be played today at 4 p.m. in Henrion Gymnasium.

Bob Miller, cochairman of the campaign summed up the feelings of everyone involved with his opening statement to start out the marathon. "One small step for 'dormies,' a new life for KPTS."

In the News

Editor's car destroyed in suspected arson

WICHITA (AP) Arson is suspected in a fire that destroyed a car owned by the editor of the Wichita Times, a weekly, black-oriented newspaper.

Jack Hudson, 41, the editor, said his 1969 model auto apparently was stolen from outside the newspaper's office late Wednesday night.

Chief Fire Investigator Carl Jones said the vehicle was found ablaze by a motorist at 12:30 a.m. in north Wichita almost ten blocks from where it was taken.

Jones said the interior was destroyed and the cause of the blaze is "very suspicious." Hudson, who started the weekly in June of 1970, said he does not know why anyone would have stolen the car and then burned it.

Senate completes foreign aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) The Senate completed action Thursday on a $3.2 billion foreign aid appropriation bill, winding up a four-month congressional battle.

The roll call vote was 45-36. The money bill, providing funds for the 12 months ending June 30, now goes to the White House.

During the long congressional impasse, which began Oct. 29 when the Senate insisted upon a split of military and economic aid, foreign aid programs have been continued under temporary funding resolutions.

The bill appropriated $2.62 billion for foreign aid itself, and the balance for related programs including the Peace Corps and international development banks.

Included in foreign aid is $1.45 billion for military assistance and $1.17 billion for economic aid.

Remain single, live together, it's cheaper

AP NEWS SERVICES At most income levels it's cheaper for two working people who earn about the same income to stay single than to get married and file joint returns.

New changes in the tax law, which were adopted to relieve the long-time burden of single taxpayers, are unwittingly favoring the "new morality" of living together or the old morality of only one working partner.

For instance, an unmarried man and woman each earned $12,500 in 1971. Taking the standard deduction and one exemption each, each will pay $2,177.75 in tax this April--for a combined total of $4,355.50. If they were married and filed a joint return, they would pay $5,068--or $712.50 more.

Of course, it's only a bargain when the earnings of two singles equal the total earnings of one married couple. An unattached bachelor earning that $25,000 all by himself, for instance, will pay $6,320 in federal taxes this April.

Senate kills environmental measures

TOPEKA (AP) The Kansas Senate killed two environmental measures relating to air pollution Thursday but passed a third ecology proposal as well as a tuition grants bill and a bill creating a Mexican-American Affairs Commission.

Passed 24-12 and sent to the House was a bill which would prohibit the state or any of its subdivisions from contracting to do business with any company which had been held to be in violation of the state's anti-pollution laws.

Soviets aid Bangladesh

MOSCOW (AP) Sheik Mujbur Rahman signed an agreement with Kremlin leaders Thursday to release $42.2 million in Soviet aid to the impoverished new nation, Bangladesh, sources said.

It was the first concrete public result of talks the Bangladesh prime minister has had with Soviet officials since arriving Wednesday to seek massive economic aid.

The sources said the funds had been set aside for projects in former East Pakistan, now Bangladesh, under economic and technical assistance agreements the Soviet Union had made over the years with Pakistan.

Walk-in Federal Exam

A special walk-in Federal Service Entrance Examination (FSEE) will be administered at 8 a.m. Saturday 201 Math/Physics.

The FSEE is the primary method for college graduates to enter professional federal service. Those persons who pass have the opportunity to be considered for over 200 occupational fields in some 50 federal agencies.

The examination is free and takes approximately two hours to complete.

Any WSU senior or graduate student interested in taking the examination is advised to contact the Career Planning and Placement Center, 001A Morrison, in advance of the exam to pick up free information and sample questions.

Women's Softball

WSU Nursing Reflects Health Care Philosophy

A new philosophy of health care is emerging today. It accentuates keeping people well—and out of hospitals.

The change from crisis to preventive care is reflected in WSU's nursing department.

Initiated September, 1969, the department graduated its first six students last year. Currently, 68 juniors (students aren't admitted until their junior year) and 31 seniors are enrolled in the program.

It's easier, and less expensive, for people to stay healthy than it is for them to try to restore their health, contends Dr. Pat VanderLeest, chairman of the nursing department. The professional nursing graduate at WSU is prepared to help people keep fit, she said.

The scope of the nursing program extends into community nursing homes, rehabilitation centers, genetic counseling centers and clinics, VanderLeest said. "Students receive about 50 per cent of their education in health agencies like these."

Training in hospitals is equally important, she said. The nursing curriculum includes work at St. Francis Hospital, Wesley Medical Center, St. Joseph Hospital and Rehabilitation Center and the Veterans Administration Center.

Improved Intramural, Recreational Facilities Hoped for Distant Goal

Improved intramural and recreational facilities at WSU are still a distant goal.

Robert Holmer, chairman of the physical education department, said, in addressing the Inter-fraternity Council (IFC) Wednesday night, that each time more money is requested to improve gymnasium facilities, the request is turned down.

"What actually supports the intramural program now is the small entry fee paid by the participating teams and what can be spared from the PE department's academic budget," Holmer said.

Budget Too Limited

"With such limited funds it's impossible to give University students a really good place for intramural competition and recreation."

The PE department is allowed

$6,000 per year to be divided among the men's and women's sections. Holmer said usually about $2,000 is left from all priority costs to buy additional equipment, and the men's department receives a three to one priority over the women's department. This amount, Holmer said, is insufficient.

"We have used what money we have to buy tennis court equipment, including free lighting, basketball goals in the parking lots and weight machines for the entire student body," Holmer said. "We just don't have enough to improve the gymnasiums."

Need New Building

The only time the Henrion gyms were in good condition, according to Holmer, was when PE was a core requirement. The costs for a new building with good furnishings would depend on what is desired by students. The building can be as simple as just large open courts or as elaborate as squash and handball courts, swimming pools, etc. Holmer was doubtful about obtaining a building.

"Nothing in the way of gym improvements is included in campus planning," he said. Student cooperation and backing is necessary to secure new facilities: the more active participants there are, the more demand will arise for better areas."

Intramurals Shut Out

Some scheduling of Henry Levitt Arena has been made, but Holmer said that all renting groups are able to override intramural scheduling.

Future plans for the department which show more promise of attainment are the instituting of more coeducational activities, such as softball and volleyball and a possible committee with a director to take charge of University intramurals. This would result in much more efficient programs.

Women Ask Transportation For Institute of Logopedics

Church Women United and other religious organizations of Wichita are asking student assistance on a project to provide transportation for people in need.

The organizations are concerned particularly with transportation to the Institute of Logopedics. Last year, 20 spaces were open at the Institute but were unfilled because of lack of transportation for children needing to go to the Institute.

One suggestion offered by the organizations is that students enroute to campus pick up someone in their area and take them to the Institute or pick them up after classes.

Students available to provide transportation for someone are urged to contact Beth Hoben or Evelyn Lyon at the Volunteer Bureau, 264-9301.

Future Aged Cared for by Concerns of Today's Young

In this country there are millions of people receiving some kind of financial welfare support. Of all these, perhaps the most neglected group is the aged, the people who have already made their contributions to the society and now try to survive on what little money the government sends them each month.

To these people there is very little hope of a brighter future. They know their living conditions are not likely to improve. And society prefers to forget that these old people exist because they are no longer productive.

The whole situation has become worse because the society tends to be built around the wants and needs of the young. But this situation will change. One of these days all the young people will grow old and will face what today's old people are facing. When that happens, wonder if anyone will care enough to help them?

Unless we change our priorities and start taking care of the old people we have now, it's absurd to think the aged of the future will be any better cared for.

The solution is not easy. It means caring. But there is something WSU students can do. As November gets closer, more politicians will be trying to grab the youth vote. Although these politicians will probably not bring up the subject of old age benefits, they will at least consider reform if they are subjected to enough questions and demands from the young.

Additionally the "Adopt a Grandparent" program is currently being organized on campus by Steve Fairchild. The program assures the aged that they have not been totally forgotten. By offering help and friendship to old people students will gain insight into the many problems of the aged. It also helps create the atmosphere for much needed change in our views toward our neglected parentage.

Penal System Antiquated Today

The U.S. penal system is such an antiquated social institution that there is no way it can offer "rehabilitation" to convicts before they are released. When the convict is freed he is expected to carry the stigma with him for the rest of his life. He is often ostracized and discriminated against by the same society that insisted that he pay the debt and then refuses to honor his payment.

In Wichita there is a group that wants to change this. The members are ex-convicts who know the problems and are trying to get other people to understand them. The group's program is called "Operation Impossible" and it seeks to educate citizens of Wichita about the convict's problems once he gets out of prison.

Presently, members of the group are trying to raise $50,000 to help support the Stratford Halfway House at 320 N. Market which houses ex-felons who are on probation. Members are speaking to various groups around Wichita to help raise the amount needed for the house and also to familiarize citizens with their problems.

Operation Impossible can do a lot of good for a lot of people and it deserves student support. Students who want to make contributions or get information can do so by calling 267-9591.

Cite Senate Initiative

Right now the U.S. Senate is trying to decide whether to give its support to the proposed establishment of a Tallgrass National Park in Kansas. Unfortunately, that decision has been too long in coming and WSU's Student Senate has taken its usual initiative and passed a resolution supporting the park's creation.

The park is a good idea; the plan calls for part of the prairie in the Kansas Flint Hills to be set aside as a protected tract, where natural prairie grasses will be able to grow freely without being chomped on by cattle.

Environmentalists support the park because they want America to preserve for future generations the prairie as it was before it became a giant pasture.

Cattlemen oppose the park because they think it will take too much land which could be better used raising cattle to feed people. Their argument is based on business interests and not on the acknowledgement that the prairie is beautiful and worth saving, at least part of it.

For this reason The Sunflower also supports creation of the park and congratulates the Student Senate for its concern. But of course, this support and congratulation will be withdrawn if the Senate votes to increase student fees to help pay for the park or to help pay for a Student Senate hide-away somewhere deep in the Tallgrass National Park.

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay has said he will seek support in Kansas for his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, but he has been unable to find support in the Wichita area.

A Lindsay campaign aide spent last weekend trying to find someone to run a Lindsay organization in the Wichita area. He was not successful.

The Lindsay aide talked with several local Democrats, including WSU students Kelly Pinkham and Eddie Peterson. He sought an informal agreement among more liberal Democrats to join forces in selecting national convention delegates, rather than factionalizing. Pinkham expressed agreement with the idea of forming some sort of loose coalition to cooperate in the election of delegates. Both Pinkham and Peterson are associated with Sen. Blood Clots Greater Risk

Pill Users Not Cancer Prone

Women who use oral contraceptives for a few years are no more prone to develop cervical cancer than women who do not, according to recent studies at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

However, women do face a greater risk of blood clots, according to David Thomas of the Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Dr. Patricia VanderLeest, chairman of WSU's nursing department, urges all women using birth control pills to see one of Wichita's gynecologists.

VanderLeest said, "WSU's student health services don't give PAP tests," which detect presence of cancer in the female reproductive system. "So it is important for a woman to go to a practicing gynecologist."

Research at Hopkins, which was conducted with 324 women using the pill, showed no evidence of early signs of cervical cancer. The study covered women who have used the pill for about two-and-a-half years.

Thomas explained, "Some cancer causing substances are known to act only after a long period of latency, so the pill may yet prove a major cause of cervical cancer."

Another study at Hopkins, conducted by Drs. Phillip Sartwell and Gerald R. Greene, showed women who use the pill are more likely to develop blood clots after accidents or surgery than women who do not use oral contraceptives.

The study was based on comparisons between 60 women who developed clots after injuries or operations and a similar group which did not. It showed the chances of clotting for pill users were six times greater than those who do not take the pill.

University College staff women "took the initiative" Tuesday, as required by Leap Year tradition, by surprising Raymond Wiebe, assistant to the dean and assistant professor.

When Wiebe, the office bachelor, arrived for work, his door was decorated with a colorful, three-by-five foot sign, which read: "University College's Most Eligible Bachelor LEAP DAY, GALSI!"

He found that the "propos-

The only mail I receive is a letter from my sister and that is about one every two weeks. It is pretty lonely setting here waiting for a letter and hardly ever getting one. I am writing this letter to the whole student body in the hopes that I can get someone to write to me and someone that I can write to find out what's going on in the outside world.

I am asking that whoever receives this letter, to place it on the bulletin board or the newspaper or whatever it is that you have at the school that lets the students find out what is going on. I hope some of you will read this letter and will find some time to write to me.

I am 30 years old and I have been locked up now going on six years and have lost all contact with my so called friends. Until this past August we were only allowed to write to members of our family and two approved friends. Now we can write to anyone and I have no one but my sister and would love to hear from someone. I hope that you will read this and write to me. I will try to answer all the letters that I may receive, if any.

I want to thank all of you that have read this letter and I hope that I will hear from some of you in the near future.

Editor:

There have been some questions about what SGA has been doing this year aside from expanding its powers of recognition. Last week Women's Liberation found that dabbling in foreign policy has not been SGA's or at least John Morse's only past-time.

One of our members requested permission of Morse to use the mimeograph machine to print a newsletter. In the past other organizations have done this.

It appears though that things have changed. Morse refused to permit us to use the machine because they did not want to get involved with the organizations.

Since SGA is itself an organization, since it both recognizes and allocates money to organizations, since it exists to serve students and since students comprise the memberships of these organizations, Morse may have some difficulty in following his policy of non-involvement.

Far be it from me, a mere student, to question the wisdom of so august a person as the president of SGA. I therefore wish him luck at this difficult task.

Female Roundball Team Drops Play-off Game

The WSU women's basketball team led in a play-off game Tuesday night at Emporia until the final two minutes of play before bowing 38-32 to KU. With the score tied at 32-32 and 1:59 left in the game, WSU's Nancy Curry, who led all scorers with 20 points, took control of the ballgame as the Jayhawks scored the last six points of the game. The Shockers surprised KU using a two-one-two zone defense instead of their normal one-three-one. This shut off the intent inside game of the Jayhawks and enabled the Shockers to build an 18 to 13 lead at halftime. WSU was able to keep its one-point lead until midway in the fourth quarter when the Jayhawks started their furious comeback that netted them the victory and a berth in the state tournament.

The outside shooting of guard Terre White and the inside work of Reatha Stucky, along with a tight defense led

Season to Start for Men's Tennis

The Wichita State men's tennis team will open its season March 14 playing against Cowley County Community College. The Shockers will play seven tournaments en route to their quest for the Missouri Valley title. Allen Rappaport, assistant professor of business administration, is head coach of the team. He received his BS and MBA from the University of South Carolina and his Ph.D. from the University of Texas. Marvin Webster returns for his final season in search of a fourth straight Valley singles by Judy Bush and Janet Pew kept the Jayhawks at bay until the Shockers got into foul trouble. Six-foot Bush and five-foot-11 Pew, completely controlled the backboards until they fouled out in the fourth quarter. Bush left with six minutes left to play and Pew followed at the four minute mark. Stucky played the best game of her career as she led the Shockers in scoring with 11 points, most of them from close in under the basket. White was the only other Shock in double figures with ten points. Although the team lost, Coach Natasha Fife said they should be proud of the way they played. "This was their best game of the year," she said. "The girls should be really proud of themselves and the team."

Buffaloes, Eagles Are Final WSU Opponents

The WSU Shocker basketball team will close out its regular season play with home games Saturday against West Texas State and Monday against North Texas State. The Shockers defeated West Texas at Canyon on Jan. 17 by a score of 70 to 65. The Buffaloes were the top rebounding team in the country going into the game, but were out-rebounded by WSU 50 to 38. Forward Ron Harris led the Shocker attack with 21 points and 11 rebounds. Center Terry Benton contributed 14 points and was the game's leading rebounder with 14. Sophomore reserve Greg Boxberger saw a great deal of action for the first time and scored 11 points.

Final Road Game

Missed Free Throws Cost Win

Tulsa University utilized clutch free throw shooting to vanquish the Wichita State Shockers 88-83 Thursday night in a MCV basketball game played at Fairgrounds Pavilion. With two minutes remaining in the game WSU's Vincent Smith sank a jumper to make the score 80-79 in favor of Tulsa. For the next hectic minute, neither team scored as the Shockers missed two key one and one free throws. With 57 seconds left Tulsa's Willie Biles was fouled and converted two pressure packed free throws to give the Golden Hurricane a three point cushion, 82-79. Biles, a 25 per cent free throw shooter, going into the game connected on eight of nine free throw attempts in the game. Tulsa built a five point advantage with 35 seconds left. Art Louvar and Smith sliced the lead to 84-83 with only 15 seconds left in the game. Tulsa's outstanding shooting guard Jim Clesson then cinched the victory with two free throws. In the second half Tulsa hit a torrid 17 of 19 free throws, compared to Wichita's poor six of 15. WSU Coach Harry Miller pointed to this fact as the deciding factor in the game. "I thought we played well. In a nutshell, I would have to say the free throw shooting beat us."

The first half was a closely contested affair with neither team gaining a supremacy. The Shockers had their biggest lead of the half and the game when sophomore Bill Lang sank a free throw to give WSU a three-point majority, 17-14. Tulsa quickly capitalized on Shocker turnovers and the fluid offensive moves of their senior guard Steve Bracey to leap to a 27-20 lead. The Shockers came back and trailed only 45-42 at halftime. As in the second half, the referee's whistle was a bust tool as 29 fouls were called in the initial half. At the beginning of the second half, it appeared that the Golden Hurricane was indeed going to blow the Shockers off the court. In the opening two minutes they shot from a 45-42 lead to a 57-44 advantage as the Shocker ball handling had a high degree of ineptness. The Shockers regained their poise and finally knotted the score 65-65 on an Art Louvar jumper. From that point on the Shockers simply could not convert their free throws, sealing their own defeat. Though in a losing effort, WSU's Terry Benton had an outstanding game. He gunned in 22 points and pulled down 20 rebounds. Smith tallied 19 points with Ron Harris and Rick Kreher supporting with 11 each. Bracey, the quickest guard in the MVC, led all scorers with 27 points.

Wichitans Sent Back Musically by Dirt Band

By Gary Owen
Sunflower Sports Editor

Bluegrass, Cajun, folk, and "just plain ole" country pickin' music were the vogue as The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band gave Wichita one of the most exciting concerts in the city's history Wednesday night.

The Dirt Band, a group of five musicians who play almost any instrument invented, thrilled the audience with a diversity of musical styles rarely seen into today's conglomeration of hard-rock or folk-rock bands.

The group moved with ease through the differing styles of Mike Nesmith's "Some of Shelly Blues," Buddy Holly's old rock songs like "Rave On," Hank Williams "Jambolia" and Slim Carter's new song, "Baltimore."

The numbers were played with the confidence and ease only seen in performances of those musicians who truly know and enjoy what they are doing.

The first of many highlights in the show came only minutes after the band appeared on stage. "Mr. Bo-jangles," the hit that propelled the Dirt Band into national prominence, never seems to lose its charm, regardless of the number of times you hear it.

The biggest ripples of excitement flowed through the audience, when the band started playing their Cajun music. They were accompanied with hand-clapping and foot-stomping by small children, teeny-boppers, college students and little old ladies, all feeling in their bones the beat of the Cajuns.

Whether it was "Randelin Rag" by Earl Scruggs, "Alligator Man," or John McEuen's bango rendition of "Opus 36," the excitement of the fiddle and the banjo was felt by all in attendance.

The final production number by the Dirt Band displayed their talent for comedy and flair in addition to their music ability in a hilarious parody of life and music in 1956.

Although many in the crowd were not old enough to remember, everyone could enjoy Jeff Hanna's description of the dress and hair styles of that period.

The band came out with slicked back hair and jeans slung low on the hips with their cuffs rolled up the proper two inches to close out their "sock hop" with "Goodnight My Love."

The Dirt Band introduced to Wichita one of the most pleasing acts to come along in quite awhile this offense. Late in the afternoon of the same day, the father of a female student called the security office and reported that this offense had been witnessed by his daughter very early that morning—if this student had telephoned the office immediately at the time of this crime, security could have, in all probability, prevented further offenses.

The University security office has policewomen and a patrol-woman; therefore if any female student has any case to report, in which she would not feel at ease in talking with the male members of the force she could discuss the incident with one of the women, said Stone.

He advised against leaving

For Childless Students

Insurance Not Needed

Unless a college student has children, as a rule he should not buy life insurance, according to a recent report by the Consumers Union of the United States, Inc. (CU).

The non-profit CU contends, "the last thing most college students need is life insurance. The exception would be the breadwinner on whom children will be dependent until they grow up."

Despite the atypical circumstance for a collegian, CU says "the life insurance agent has become a familiar figure on many campuses."

Bearing this out is an industry survey of more than 300 life insurance companies which turned up 20 per cent with sales programs aimed at college students and young professionals who are not yet earning enough to pay the premiums.

The Sales Pitch

The report states that "it isn't difficult to sell a policy to someone who can't afford it." Insurance men have their sales pitch so programmed to this hurdle that they can often turn it into a selling point. They approach the premium paying problem by offering to finance the first annual premium and frequently the second with a loan to be paid off perhaps five years later.

The interest on that five-year loan is usually paid at an annual rate of six to eight per cent or more. CU said "In many plans the policy-holder pays interest on the interest too."

Such loans are among the safest imaginable from the creditor's standpoint, CU claims. A full report by CU on the sale of life insurance to students, contained in the January issue of "Consumer Reports," explains why the lender's risk is so minimal.

An acceleration clause is built into the promissory note itself, which is a typical feature of retail installment contracts, CU reports. If the student fails to pay premiums, on time, the lender can demand immediate payment of the entire loan. Consequently, the creditor can readily obtain a court judgement ordering payment, by wielding the promissory note.

"None of the policies or promissory notes examined by CU had a provision for refund of premiums during the first year," CU further explained. "The policies examined tended to be relatively expensive cash value policies with lots of extra-priced features."

Special Campus Agents

Companies doing a big business in college policies often set up special agents in college towns, CU claims. "They like to recruit as salesmen popular campus figures such as fraternity leaders, recently graduated star athletes, former coaches and even faculty members and administrators."

In his article in "Life Insurance Selling," an agent of Cotton States Life took up various objections raised by student prospects and explained how he overcomes them. An objection often heard, as one might expect, is "I want to talk it over with my father." The agent suggests the following riposte:

"Bill, probably the first thing your dad bought for you when you were a child was a piggy bank, in order to get you in the habit of saving money. All you're going to do by talking to your father is to ask him if you may start a program to make you do what he has been trying to get you to do since you were a child. That's kind of silly, isn't it?"

Or, if that doesn't work:

"Bill, this program is designed for you in a way that will enable you to start it for yourself. You will be putting your money in the program, and you will cover your wife and family with it. This is why the decision would be one that you make. Don't you agree?"

These techniques are practiced by others, CU reports. "In another part of the country an irate father charged, in a letter to his son's insurer:

"My son was pressured into signing your note. When he wanted to wait to show me the policy first, your agent went into high gear. He knew perfectly well that if I ever saw the policy and the note, I'd never let my son take it."

Nix Citizen Plan

13th street and Kellogg. If this were installed, I imagine we would have a hearing larger than this with 13th Street residents wondering why all of a sudden they have 50,000 cars running in front of their houses. However, the proposal deserves discussion and consideration."

Thursday, R. L. Peyton, assistant state highway director, said the chances of adopting the citizen proposal are almost nil. Peyton said that since the highway is already under construction, it is nearly impossible to alter the present plans.

The Traffic Commission will consider all of the current proposals offered by the city along with the citizen proposal on or before March 22. Their recommendation will then be considered by the City Commission, who will make the final decision.
