The topsy turvy position of Southern Illinois Saluki Gary Wilson (30) as he leaps over Robert "Mo" Elmore's (53) shoulder in pursuit of a loose ball, suggests that basketball is not always a non-contact sport. Wilson kicked the ball from Elmore's hands and was called for a foul on the play. The Wichita University Shockers Saturday pulled off its 100th Valley win in Henry Levitt Arena in a double overtime 91-90 over Valley rival SIU.

Wichita leads nation in gonorrhea incidence

Epidemic may be stopped through detection, treatment

BY W.E. TURNER
STAFF WRITER

Wichita is number one! Number one city in the entire nation! This, however, is not cause for rejoicing because the category in which Wichita leads the nation is the incidence of Gonorrhea. One in 34 Wichita area residents between the ages of 13 and 21 has the disease, statistics released last week through the Wichita/Sedgwick County Department of Community Health show.

"Actually, though, an accurate number of gonorrhea cases in Wichita can't be obtained," said Kelly Bracken, Sr. Nursing student, "because many people may have the disease and not know it."

The gonococcus bacteria that causes the disease has mutated in recent years, Bracken explained. Approximately 40 percent of males with the disease now are asymptomatic and more women are having symptoms from the gonorrhea.

"Now the whole thing has turned around," Morris 'Moc' Matthias, also a Sr. Nursing student said. "Many of the men don't know they have it because they don't have the symptoms (pus, or drip, from the penis and painful, burning urination) and the symptoms in women (abdominal pain, cramps) can easily be confused with other things, such as menstruation." This change in the classic symptoms of gonorrhea, he continued, often leads these VD carriers to continue to spread the disease.

Helping to stop the spread of VD in the Wichita area has become the task of Bracken, Matthias and other WSU nursing students in the Community Health Rotation of the College of Health Related Profession's Nursing Program.

"When the statistics were released," Bracken said, "the Wichita/Sedgwick County Community Health Department decided that its methods of educating the public about the spread of VD weren't very effective. The Health Department contacted WSU and CHRP decided to set up a Nursing Department Outreach Project to help educate the public about this problem."

Since the 13 to 21 age group is most effected by the spread of gonorrhea in the Wichita area, he continued, the most logical people to operate the project are persons from the same age group.

The VD education project, under the advisement of Ida

Unsain, assistant nursing instructor, will attempt to contact all Wichita area high schools during the next few weeks to present VD information to students. Radio and TV spots and newspaper publicity are other information channels being discussed.

"But that's only half the solution and doesn't solve the problem," Matthias said. "A person can know all there is to know about VD but if he doesn't come in to get checked and treated, just having the information doesn't solve anything. He can still have VD."

A factor that compounds the problem of the new strain is it is more resistant to treatment. Formerly 100,000 units of penicillin would cure gonorrhea, now 4.8 million units are needed to arrest the disease.

Bracken and Matthias emphasized that gonorrhea can not be cured without treatment and that many serious afflictions can be the result of an untreated case.

Among the conditions from gonorrhea are sterility in both the male and female, stricture of the male urinary system so that surgery is required to reopen it, blindness if the gonococcus comes in contact with the eye, heart disease, arthritis, a general infection and even death.

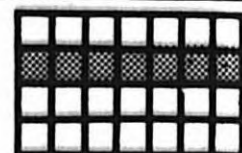

Even if the gonorrhea is cured, Matthias said, these resulting conditions will not go away. Therefore it is urgent for people to be checked out before the damage is done if they think they might have gonorrhea.

The Health Department VD Clinic is completely confidential, Bracken said. All records are kept secret and nothing is released to the public.

"If there is any doubt in a person's mind about whether he has gonorrhea," he continued, "come in and get it checked. It's no crime to have gonorrhea but there is a lot of danger from the disease. We have to stop this epidemic before it gets any worse, and the only way that can be done is through treatment."

People who think they might have VD are urged to come to the Health Department, 1900 E. 9th, or to call the "VD Hotline, 268-8241. The Clinic is open Monday, Tuesday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Wednesday, noon to 7 p.m.; and Thursday 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — More than 300 black Rhodesian students allegedly kidnapped by black guerrillas from a school last week refused Sunday to return with their parents, reporters on the scene said.

"We know our mothers were intimidated by Prime Minister Ian Smith's government to come pick us up against their will," one student who refused to go home reportedly said.

ROME — Police defused a time bomb on a crowded passenger train near Rome Sunday and said only a faulty fuse on another bomb saved the Milan apartment building that houses a Communist party office.

The bomb was wrapped in leaflets signed by the extreme rightwing organization Black Order which said, "We are avenging injustice."

LOS ANGELES — The man who headed the "Skid Row Slasher" murder investigation squad has been suspended a week before retirement in the fatal shooting of his son-in-law during a family dispute, police said.

Lt. Lynn R. Selby, 52, a 30-year police veteran, fired five shots at Maurice V. Kelly, 46, after his son-in-law reportedly overpowered him, Lt. Charles Higbie said.

PITTSBURGH — United Steelworkers officials have taken "every conceivable precaution" to assure fairness in Tuesday's election, a union official says.

Burke said in a statement the outcome of the election may not be known for several weeks if protests or alleged irregularities arise.

A bitter campaign for the 1.4 million-member union's presidency has been waged by the administration-backed candidate, Lloyd McBride, and insurgent Edward Sadlowski. Protests are almost certain.

EUGENE, Ore. — Officials at the University of Oregon have changed their minds about distributing 1,000 copies of the school's newspaper to parents and high school students on "Oregon Preview Day" this weekend.

The reason: Photos of nude models in a university art class.

It was just coincidence, said Emerald managing editor Wally Benson, that the issue included photographs of two nude models, one a frontal shot of a man.

"It's a pretty bonafide example of college life. It's a class," Benson said.

He's gonna win

Student seeks BOE seat

By MARY ANGELEE SMITH
STAFF WRITER

John Hambright, UC freshman, has become a candidate for the Wichita Board of Education.

"I think I'm going to win," he said confidently. He added he had a dual purpose for entering the race—to represent students' points of view, and—to win.

Slim, with dark brown hair, Hambright was student body president at East High School, and now works with the Student Government Association.

His competition for the BOE race is tough—20 other candidates include two incumbents, the mayor's wife, the present School Board president's wife, and the president of NEA.

Hambright's platform includes two main goals: to involve parents, teachers and students within the Board, and to remedy the discipline problem in the schools.

Students and parents, especially, Hambright said, have little input into the BOE. High school student councils are allowed to sit in on board meetings, but their roles are chiefly that of listeners. "No attention is paid to these bodies," he said. "They feel their power is useless."

There is a form for communication during board meetings, he added, but it is confined and restrictive. He said board members don't ask for comments from the public during the meetings.

Hambright hopes to institutionalize a parent, teacher and student organization that would serve a similar function to the BOE as the Citizen's Participation Organization does to the City Commission. The organization would be responsible for input of suggestions on a constant basis.

Hambright also has plans to end disciplinary problems within senior and junior high schools. He advocates the concept of middle schools—a regrouping of grades into elementary, middle and high school levels. Elementary grades would consist of Kindergarten through fifth grades. Sixth through eighth grades would comprise the middle level, and ninth grade would be added to senior high schools.

"Violence in the schools is not the fault of the school system," he said. He blames instead some administrators and teachers, who have no concern for the students.

He attributes alienation of some students to disciplinary expelling and suspending. "There should be other avenues," he said.

Another avenue, he suggests, would be for high school students to enter into the disciplinary processes by participating in student-teacher panels or courts—such as courts of appeal, and traffic and academic courts.

Telephone calling and knocking on doors will comprise Hambright's main campaign strategy. He also plans to telephone registered voters. He is soliciting help with his campaign from friends and WSU students.

Hambright, a member of the SGA library appeals committee and the Honors Program, is enrolled in 23 hours this semester.

Stereotypes of blacks are reinforced by movies

By BOB LINDER
STAFF WRITER

Donald Bogle, Forum Board lecturer, has documented the development of racist stereotypes of blacks in Hollywood films, an idea that has been a part of black rhetoric since before the Civil Rights battles of the 1960's.

A former staff writer for Ebony magazine and story editor for Otto Preminger, Bogle's book, Toms, Coons, Mulattos, Mammies and Bucks, won the Theatre Library Association award for the best film book of the year.

The Eastern blizzard delayed Bogle's departure from New York. A crowd of about 100 people waited an hour while he was escorted from the airport. The title of Bogle's book represents the five stereotypes Bogle identifies.

The "Tom" stereotype started with an early version of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

"In the earliest films," Bogle said, "white actors would play black actors by rubbing burnt cork on their faces. Whites didn't believe blacks were intelligent enough to play themselves."

The scarcity of black actors for the original Uncle Tom didn't surprise Bogle. "Uncle Tom is beaten, flogged, chased with dogs and finally is shot. But he dies happy in the arms of his loving old 'Massa.'"

The "Tom" image, Bogle said, was continued in the concert with the early roles of Sidney Portier in which the black man always sacrificed himself for the white man.

Portier should have won an Oscar for his role in "A Raisin in the Sun." Instead he finally got an Oscar for "Lilys of the Field."

The "coon" stereotype, Bogle said, also started with white actors in blackface. Al Jolson was the best known example.

Jolson was replaced by Stepin Fetchit, a fine actor Bogle said was forced to do coon roles because other roles were unavailable. Stepin Fetchit was copied by several others including Willy Best, Mantan Morley, the chauffeur in the Charley Chan series, and Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, who co-starred with Jack Benny. Latter examples included Sammy Davis Jr. and the film "Cotton Comes to Harlem" where "whites were coons."

Farina and Baby Buckwheat were juvenile versions of the coon image and Butterfly McQueen, Scarlett's slave servant in "Gone with the Wind," was an example of a female in the role.

Bogle said black women stereotypes generally were in two classes, mulattos and mammies.

The mulatto's story was always tragic, he said, and the tragedy was that the heroine was a beautiful woman who looked white but was flawed by "one tiny drop of nigra blood."

By Patrick Jennings

I walked into Mid-Continent Airport and bent over to brush some of the dirt from my hair.

"That won't do you no good, boy," said a whiskey-and-cigarette voice behind me.

"What won't do me any good," I said, brushing the thick accumulation of dust from my eyes.

"That dirt is everywhere. Once you walk back outside you'll be covered head to toe. That's why we're called The Dirt Capitol City of the Midwest, y'know."

"I didn't know," I lied. "You wanna buy some dirty pitchers?" He asked, opening his coat to show me rows of cards.

I asked to see a few and he pulled several at random out of his numerous pockets.

These look like 4-H postcards to me," I quipped incredulously.

"Wadya expect." The grizzled old bastard croaked.

"You said dirty pictures. I expected maybe naked women. Lizards. Newts. You know, something exciting but not too kinky."

"Well, hell, you ain't a gonna see nothin like that around here. You a ferigner?"

"Not at all, I'm from Brazil. We have dirt there too, you know."

"Hmmm. You don't say."

"Of course not. My name is Ramon San-Ramon."

"The famous Brazilian janitor/detective?"

"One and the same. Are you 'Confused'?"

"Of course I am. Everyone around here's confused. We're all afraid to look at anything or listen to anything out of the ordinary. Might land us in jail."

"No, I mean are you the 'Confused' that wrote me the note I found in my copy of The Swinging Schoolmarm's?"

"I might be. I don't know. Let me check," he said, hobbling off into the crowded terminal.

I decided to browse through a few books in the Airport gift shop. Perhaps I could find another copy of The Swinging Schoolmarm's.

No such luck. Finally, though, I spotted at the bottom of the rack, an untouched, cellophane wrapped copy of Marie Osmond in Bondage. Not quite my style, but, any port in a storm, as they say.

I opened the book and began to skim the pages. She slowly, voluptuously began to remove the bright Christmas gift paper she was wrapped in. She cupped a hand sensuously around each

The rest of the page had been blacked out. I rifled through the rest of the book. It was all like that. Or, not like that, which ever you prefer. I took the book to the counter.

"Uh. Uh. Excuse me Miss. Some of the words seem to have been stolen from this book. Pages of words."

"That's the way it goes in Dirt Town, San-Ramon," said a silky, peach brandy voice.

I jumped back from the counter. "I know that voice. But I don't know that face. Have you done something to yourself? Who are you?" I queried.

"Lydia Lovebox," she breathed. Sweet screaming peafowl. Lydia Lovebox. Infamous star of such x-rated classics as "Deep Toe", and "Mr. Wizard Gets Strange".

Working behind the gift counter at a Midwestern airport. No wonder I didn't recognize her face—I'd never seen it. I'd seen all her films several times however.

"What are you do-do-doing in Doodah. Why are you working here? Don't you have to clean your nails or something? Are you 'Confused'," I asked.

"Well, San-Ramon," she gyrated vocally. "It's hard for a girl to do an honest days work around here anymore. Since HE took over as D.A."

"He who?"

"Don't ask stupid questions, you Brazilian Buffoon," she said vaulting over the counter. "Just follow me."

She grabbed me by the arm and spirited me through crowds claiming baggage. Once outside the terminal we fought our way through a minor dirt storm, and fell into the back seat of a waiting hack.

"The corner of Second and Main, driver," Lydia murmured.

"You was right Miss Lovebox," grated the driver, turning to face us. "He is stupid."

I recoiled in terror. It was the same dingy-gray old man who tried to sell me the postcards. I was (to quote the bard) in a world of shit. MORE NEXT WEEK

Alums thumb Deltas

Editor:

A group of men from a local fraternity have obtained a block of seats at Wichita State basketball games. We can understand that sitting with friends can make these games more enjoyable, but these men have turned the basketball games into a boisterous, drunken stag. Not only do these men belittle the visiting team and its coach with obnoxious remarks and gestures, but these loyal (?) fans show further immaturity by jeering at the Shockers. With this example of WSU fan behavior, we are amazed that WSU has not been labeled as the university with the most un-sportsmanlike behavior on the part of the fans. But then, what can you expect from the Delta Upsilon house?

Columnist possesses rare wit

Editor:

I would briefly like to respond to the controversy over Pat Jennings' weekly column "Meat & Potatoes." I only read this newspaper, now that I am a graduate, for the "Meat & Potatoes" column and the "Images" page.

Pat Jennings possesses a rare wit, in my opinion, and his talent for writing is obvious. His ability to create fresh metaphors, images, and revealing narrative all come through with flying colors.

Concerning the letters from Jim Snell and J. Phillips, it is remarkable that these people are so short-sighted and unappreciative of art. Jim Snell sounded like one of those people who voted for Farrah Fawcett-Majors in that student poll. His defense of her symbolic value seemed precisely communicated by Mr. Snell's statement that "No other pin-up girl has come close to selling the number of posters Ms. Fawcett-Majors can boast of." If he doesn't know what is wrong with that segment of our society which would choose a sex pawn as a national heroine, then he should have his head examined.

And Phillips seems bound and determined to rid The Sunflower of what valuable features it does possess. It takes Phillips over two hundred words to say she doesn't like "Meat & Potatoes" before finally resorting to ad hominem arguments those arguments which are always ultimately used against the truth.

I urge you Mr. Rau to continue featuring "Meat & Potatoes" on the pages of The Sunflower.

Find your Voice, ASK how your views are represented in the state legislature

Editor:

This letter is in conjunction with the Ask insert in some copies of today's Sunflower. For those of you who are unaware of what ASK is and does, this letter should be informative. ASK (Associated Students of Kansas) is a student lobbying organization which represents students of Kansas State University, Emporia Kansas State College, Fort Hays State College, Washburn University, Kansas State College at Pittsburg, and Wichita State University.

Each year, ASK lobbies at the state legislature in Topeka, representing students on vital issues. These issues are decided at a Legislative Assembly by representatives of students at the above institutions. Representing WSU at this year's Legislative Assembly were Susan Baird, Kerry Barnes, Elena Best, Dick Caffrey, Mike Caracciolo, Eric Davis, Marilyn Hudson, Barry Hughes, Randy Keiter, Kathy Kelty, Jeanellen Knight, Rick Krewson, Bruce McCandless, Marsha Mills, Lance Rutledge, Bob Tolleson, Tim Walsh, Shelby Douglas, Kathy Faires, Evelyn Hernandez, Greg Miller, Terri Hannon and Dwight Ensminger.

This insert in today's paper is a copy of our monthly newspaper The Voice which informs students on current issues. If you have any questions about ASK please feel free to contact any of the above people. Copies of The Voice should also be posted in buildings all over campus.

Congratulations

Theodora Todd and Gary Rust, students in the Wichita State University English Department's MFA degree program in creative writing, have had works chosen for publication in Intro 8, an anthology published by Doubleday & Company. Rust's "On Not Remembering My Dreams" and Todd's "Repulsion" were chosen from a nationwide competition by a panel of judges headed by the distinguished writer, George Garrett.

Contributors

James Mechem, author of "Crocodile Tears," is editor and publisher of the small press and little magazine Out of Sight. He is also a consultant to the small press Paper Tiger and the literary magazine Squeezebox.

Jeff Hixon, author of "Return," is a junior majoring in English with a creative writing emphasis. His work first appeared in "Images" last semester. A poet and short story writer, Hixon is currently enrolled in Tony Sobin's undergraduate poetry workshop.

OPEN POETRY READING AT THE FORUM

The Forum's monthly open poetry reading will be Friday. The public may attend. The reading is followed by coffee and roundtable discussion. The Forum is located at 2148 N. Broadway.

"IMAGES" ACCEPTING CONTRIBUTIONS

Since its inception, "Images" has featured the work of many fine writers. Some of these writers are widely published and their names are familiar. Other writers have appeared in print for the first time in the Sunflower's literary page. Short stories and poetry are being accepted for upcoming issues and submissions from students, faculty and area writers are encouraged. Contributions, together with a brief biography and a stamped, self-addressed envelope should be sent to Pat Williams, The Sunflower, Box O, Wichita State University, Wichita, Kan. 67208.

yesterday,
the winter wind blew a new smile onto every face
in kansas,
the holiday season, dressed like guy fawkes in tarnished aluminum and water-spotted velveteen took a deep breath and plunged resolute and heartless into the wincing black of useless memory.

just a few blocks from the places where all of it happens in the words of beatnicks from new jersey the lonely young one shivers and pulls the room tighter around his shoulders imaginary long hair rides in ripples over those shoulders imaginary whispers urge him to come to the loving.

glad, not to be from new jersey, he stares at his dreams cuts in his palms
drawing the blood and the warmth of ignorance out to where its death is more painful.
the urging hands may stay, but the hair must go the lonely young one must lose himself in others new others.

into the lusterless black must go everything, everyone from before the wind.
the wind has made the rules, he pretends they are his own.
the world has obliged and receded quietly behind the dying whine of an aquarium, while the reckless vicious housecleaning inside echoes the passion of the storm.

there is no storm
the wind has not forgotten to change its own smile he has seen this one before, he reaches out for another's hand—it is a movement of the ashes.
down where the lights are orange and swimming, real people shedding their rooms for the soul's spring laugh at the lonely, and praise the sage from new jersey.

Crocodile Tears

By JAMES MECHEM

The terrace was in utter darkness but at every flash of lightning the harmonious figure of a woman was revealed, illumined by a bluish light.

From the garden came the sound of rain hitting the earth, and the scent of wet roses somewhere in the blackness. Wet rose bushes and wet roses. No telling what was out there.

"Not to worry," she said.

She put a reassuring arm around my shoulders. "No telling what's out there," I said. "Maybe crocodiles."

She put a reassuring arm around my shoulders. I was having a nervous breakdown. Not to worry, she kept repeating with every flash of lightning. Her arms exerted a gentle pressure that I loved. Many women had put their arms around my shoulders.

I turned around and buried myself in the woman's arms, still standing next to me in the dark. I thought she was a childhood sweetheart. I was having a nervous breakdown. I used to bury myself in Jane Allen's wonderful girth. Where was that Jane Allen now? If this were really Jane Allen she would be gray headed. Edna May Oliver scurried through my mind, a flash from my frightened childhood, where the Bride of Frankenstein was born.

I was being held. It was rainy and dark.

I struggled in her arms. The lightning flashed and I saw her face, strong and tender and affectionate. I gave up the struggle. She patted my head and pushed it down against her bosom.

How bizarre this life is, I thought. What am I doing in this woman's arms in the rain?

I was feeling sad and lonely and I was crying crocodile tears into her bosom. She didn't appear to notice. If they had been real crocodiles she would have.

At that moment I became aware that one of them was moving fast through the garden and I heard it slithering up the terrace steps. I broke away in a run.

I ran into a stone pillar. Amidst the stars, I felt her hand in mine, and I grasped it. I followed her into the house.

One of the nurses came up to us. "Where have you been? What were you doing out there?"

My bodyguard took a swing at her and laid her out on the floor.

I went to bed. "Not to worry," I said to myself and fell asleep.

'Whites didn't believe blacks were smart enough to play self'

Even the current black stars, Bogle said, like Tamara Dawson, Pam Grier, Diana Sands, and Roslind Cash, look whiter than a typical black female. One notable exception is Cicely Tyson, star of "Eastside Westside," "Roots" and the "Biography of Miss Jane Pittman."

Black women who are really dark, Bogle said, are forced to play mummies or the female equivalent of the Tom.

The first Oscar won by a black actress went to Hattie McDaniels for her role as the black mammy in "Gone With the Wind."

One of the most famous women who played the black mammy role, Louise Beavers, could not cook, hated housework and had to go on crash eating diets to be fat enough.

The latest black actor to gain prominence is the buck. The buck Bogle said, is a black male portrayed with his "full sexual intensity."

"The first experiment with this type was in "Birth of a Nation." The image was so frightening that it touched the very basis of racism in this country," Bogle said.

Bogle said when he had shown the film to a group of young black college students, they stood up and cheered when the little white girl being chased by the black stereotype buck jumped over a cliff rather than submit.

The current wave of black exploitation films are based on this character, Bogle said, including films by Melvin Van Peebles, Richard Roundtree and Ronald O'Neal.

Even with such inferior roles as most of the stereotypes provide, Bogle said black actors acquitted themselves well in films. "Most of them were able to individualize those roles and make their own statement."

"And quite frequently, the few minutes the black actor spent on film was the best part of the whole film."

EXTERN

Program facilitates job choice

By MARY SMITH
STAFF WRITER

Wichita State University sophomores and juniors will have the opportunity to hold internships in professional fields of interest through the EXTERN program in spring break.

The EXTERN program, in its first year at WSU is patterned after the Iowa State University model. It provides one to five-day internships in the fields of medicine, health related professions, accounting and marketing, law, radio and television, social work, and restaurant management.

"EXTERN provides the opportunity for a student to get an inside view of an area employer that's working in a certain profession," said Larry Reece, co-chairperson of the EXTERN committee.

The internships will be provided through the cooperation of local businesses.

The program will provide students with experience in their fields of study, so they can make better informed decisions concerning their chosen major, said Reece.

"EXTERN has a meaningful purpose," he said. "Students can go to a business and experience it themselves."

Although the program is open to all levels of students, sophomores and juniors are given priority, because they are able to change majors more conveniently. Students receive no payment for participation in the program.

Students will be selected for businesses through a regular resume of past employment, accompanied by a proposal of current occupational interests, career goals after graduation, and the type of work experience in which they are interested.

Information for applications is available in the Alumni Association Office, Room 218 of the Campus Activities Center. Applications are due Feb. 16.

Shocks triumphant in OT's

By STEVE PIKE

Double overtimes appear to be the trade-mark of a grudge match between Valley Conference rivals Wichita State University and Southern Illinois University, as was evident Saturday night in Henry Levitt Arena.

The Shockers edged SIU 91-90 in two overtimes before 10,813 emotion-charged fans, as was the case in a similar contest last year against the Salukis.

The victory, WSU's 14th against five losses, keeps the Shockers tied for the number one spot with West Texas State. Both teams are 5-2. The game marked the 100th Valley win for the WSU in Henry Levitt Arena.

The game was a contest to see if SIU's all-America candidate Mike Glenn could outscore the entire Shocker squad. The 6-foot-3 senior did hit a career high of 40 points. Glenn brought the Salukis back from a 14 point deficit late in the first half to a 70-64 lead with just more than two minutes remaining. The Shockers took the lead at 72-70 when freshman John Kobar hit the first end of a one and one with 41 seconds remaining in regulation play. The Salukis' Richard Ford tied the game with a jump shot with 22 seconds left to send the game into the first extra period.

Cheese Johnson, who scored a career high 28 points, and Charlie Brent, who added 17, took over in both overtime periods hitting pressure shots from both the field and the free throw line to give WSU the victory. Brent totaled seven of the Shockers nine points in the second overtime, and Johnson scored eight of 10 WSU points in the first extended period.

Robert Elmore dominated the middle once again for the Shockers, snaring 22 rebounds to go along with 12 points and four blocked shots.

Johnson grabbed 13 rebounds, 10 off the offensive boards, to give WSU a 46-42 rebounding edge.

Nebraska victory drops Shock women below .500

By HUBERT HUNT

The Wichita State University women's basketball team dropped below its seasonal .500 mark Saturday at the hands of the Nebraska Cornhuskers, 55-47. The seasonal record now is 11-12.

The Cornhuskers used a big second-half spurt to gain its second win of the year against WSU. Nov. 28 in the Springfield, Mo., Turkey Tournament, the Huskers scored a 57-49 verdict over the Shockers.

Nebraska shut down the Shocker inside game as Marguerite Keeley scored a season-low of only 14 points. None-the-less, Keeley now has 1298 points, during her collegiate career, the highest total for a woman in Kansas collegiate history.

After loses in several lopsided encounters, last Thursday night the WSU women had some fun of their own. Coach Larry Thye emptied his bench several times as the team blasted the Friends Falcons, 83-56.

Against the Falcons, the Shockers led from the outset and utilized a full court press that forced repeated turnovers. Thye replaced all five starters midway through each half and every Shocker scored with the exception of Becky McIntyre.

Sophomore Rowana Riggs kept the Falcons close in the early going with several shots from the 25-30 foot range. Riggs paced FU with 21 points while Ardity Rooney scored 15.

Keeley led the Shockers with 21 points and Beth Epp netted 15. Betsy Journagan came off the bench to score 11 and Marcy Wiebe gathered 10.

Wichita State will continue a four-game road trip tonight, taking on St. Mary's of the Plains in Dodge City. WSU took a 61-50 decision over St. Mary's Jan. 14 in Henrion Gymnasium.

WOMEN'S TRACK

Wichita State's women's track team set seven school records on the way to a 58-28 thrashing of host Fort Hays State in an indoor meet Saturday at Hays.

Beth Yoder set a school record in the long jump in her very first jump of the season, and then was unable to compete in the rest of the meet because she twisted her ankle. Her initial mark of 17 feet was good enough to hold up for first in the meet though, one of eight first places in the meet for WSU.

Ramona Breedlove put in a day's work as she was involved in four of those eight Shocker wins and three school records. The speedster freshman from Southeast High School won the 60 yard dash and the 176 yard dash, and then ran legs on the winning 4 x 176 yard relay and the winning mile relay.

School records were set in the 440 yard dash, the 880 yard run, the 176 yard intermediate hurdles, the long jump, the 176 yard dash, and both relays

MENS TRACK

Wichita State University's track team took advantage of a break from stiff Big-Eight competition to capture eight first places out of 13 events in an exhibition meet at Kansas State College of Pittsburgh last Thursday evening.

The indoor meet was the Shockers first competition all season in which it did not face tough opposition from a Big-Eight squad. WSU and KSCP were the only schools to enter full teams in Thursday's meet. No team scores were kept.

Shocker runners swept the mile run and the 60 yard dash with 1-2-3 performances, and WSU place first in the pole vault, the shot put, the 600 yard run, the 60 yard high hurdles, the 1000 yard run and the mile relay as well.

WOMENS GYMNASTICS

Grandview College of Des Moines completely dominated gymnastics competition in a triangular meet against Wichita State University and Oklahoma State University Friday evening at Henrion Gymnasium.

Grandview women swept every event except for the balance beam as the Grandview team easily won the meet with 131.67 points. Oklahoma State placed second with 116.72 points and WSU was a distant third with 54.86.

Wichita State was competing with a reduced squad as Kathy Osoba was out for the meet with a serious ankle injury. The Shocker gymnasts have also lost two premier gymnasts earlier in the season due to injuries.

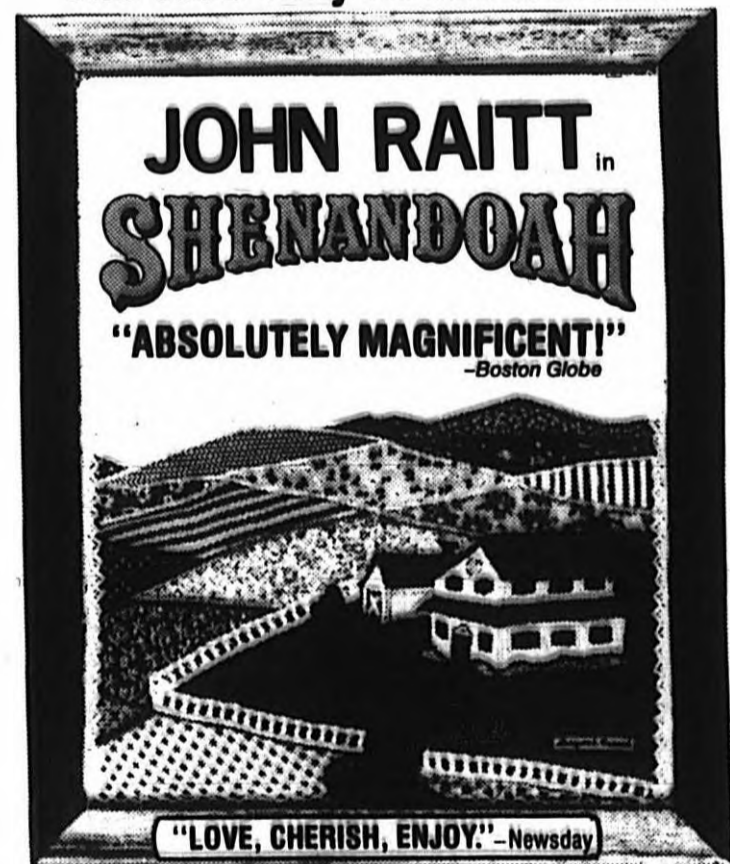

WSU freshman Cindy Cushing was the lone place winner for the Shockers, as she scored a 7.75 for her work on the balance beam, good enough for a tie with LeVrier of OSU.

Senate money allocated

By W.E. TURNER
STAFF WRITER

Student Senate Wednesday approved $4532.85 to fund campus organizations for the spring semester.

The money allocated leaves the Senate with $1592.15 in its organizations budget for the remainder of the spring semester.

The Senate also appointed John Myers to the Supreme Court, Greg Swank to the Traffic Court and Inman Boyd to the Forum Board.

Senate passed one resolution, drafted on the Senate floor, requesting Physical Plant Director Armin Brandhorst to keep all campus thermostats set to 65 degrees to help preserve supplies of heating oil. The resolution resulted from an observation by Jon Koerner, during the Public Forum portion of the Senate meeting, that the room seemed to be very warm.

Koerner's observation prompted several senators to observe that President Jimmy Carter's plea for energy conservation was being unevenly applied at WSU. The resolution was quickly drafted and unanimously approved.

Senate endorsed two Constitutional amendments, to be voted on by the student body during SGA elections later this month. The amendments stipulate that the SGA Treasurer must maintain summer office hours and that the President and Vice President must run as a team.

Two other amendments were tabled. One stipulated that SGA executive officers must be elected by a majority vote. The other provided guidelines for calling special Senate sessions.

Those campus organizations approved for funding were:
