Handful of gimme...

WSU education costs will soar next year

By W.E. TURNER
STAFF WRITER

Wichita state University students will find the cost of a college education 21 to 25 percent higher next year, Roger Lowe, Vice President for Business Affairs said during a recent interview.

"The biggest jump will be in tuition," he said. "Last spring, the Board of Regents approved increases of 21 to 25 percent in tuition. These increases already have been projected into the fiscal 1978 Budget."

The increase for a Kansas resident student will be from $14 per credit hour to $17 or 21 percent. A student carrying 15 or more credit hours will face a 24 percent increase, from $205 to $255.

Non-resident students will face a slightly larger increase of 25 percent. The per credit hour rate will jump from $40 to $50 and the full course load will increase from $600 to $750.

The last tuition increase was in 1974 when it rose from $13.65 per credit hour to $14, a two-and-one-half percent increase.

The increase in tuition will be coupled with an increase in dormitory rates, if approved, and, if present trends continue, an increase in student fees.

"The Dormitory Fee Committee has recommended an increase of $75 per semester for next year," Lowe said. "We need to evaluate this recommendation as to its necessity and if a need is found for it, the University will approve a fee increase. Whether this increase will be $75 or not, I cannot say at this time. We will try to maintain any increase as low as possible."

Present rates for dormitory rooms at WSU's Fairmount Towers are $1,250 per semester for the 15 meal-per-week plan or $1,300 for 19 meals. At Brennan Hall, rates are $1,175 for an 18-meal plan or $1,200 for a 20-meal plan.

Campus use fees have increased an average of 15 percent each year since the last tuition increase. In 1974 fees jumped from $3.90 per-credit-hour to $4.75. In 1975 they rose from $4.75 to $5.18 and in 1976 they increased to $5.85.

"We don't know what the budgeting requests for next year will be as yet," Lowe said, "so we don't know if an increase will be called for," he added that these requests should be in by March 1. "When all requests are in, they will be evaluated by the Student Fee Committee and if the SGA feels that they are legitimate, they will be more receptive to an increase in student fees."

"Based on past experience," Lowe said, "it is my impression that tuition will not go up again for at least two or three years. Any future increases depend on two factors: inflation and new or improved programs."

Tuition income from a Kansas resident student, he explained, generally covers approximately 25 percent of the costs of educational programs, the remainder is covered by state revenues. With recent inflationary trends in the economy and new buildings and programs at WSU, this percentage has decreased below the 25 percent level.

Inflation figures since the last tuition rise show the necessity of the new increase, Lowe said. In 1974 the rate of inflation, as shown by the consumer price index, was 11.7 percent. In 1975 it was 6.7 percent and in 1976 6.1 percent, or a combined 24.5 percent.

"Therefore the Board of Regents decided a tuition increase was warranted," he said.

"This 25 percent parity should remain for a few years at the new tuition prices," he continued, "unless there is a dramatic increase in inflation or a great increase in the costs of new programs."

Lowe denied that the tuition increase is related to WSU's drop in enrollment in 1976. "The increase was approved in April of '76 and the decreased enrollment

Volunteers sought to help juveniles

By Jay W. Watson

The Sedgwick County Court's People And Courts Together (PACT) program is seeking volunteers for between 150-200 youths on probation in 1977.

Julie Wright, Director of PACT explained that since the regular Probation Officers spend so much time in court, they can not give the youths in trouble the one-to-one contact that is essential.

"What we try to do is place kids who are on probation to the court with a community volunteer" Wright said.

"Hopefully they'll be able to work with a volunteer more closely than they would with a Probation Officer."

Although Sedgwick County's PACT program has been in existence for about five years, Wright said similar programs exist in every major court in the country.

PACT was started by a group of Jr. League people, and was funded by a grant from the Governor's Committee.

The court eventually took PACT over and hired a paid staff to administer the project.

"That's really the only way you can do it. In order to get the referrals from the Probation Officers, you have to be a part of the court. We're giving it some direction," Wright said.

The number of community volunteers needed corresponds with the number of youths PACT plans to place in 1977.

Wright stated there is no limit on the number of youths that may participate. She said last year PACT placed 250 youths with volunteers.

"We're not trying to place every kid in the court, because every kid in the court does not need a volunteer. But I do want to place the ones who do get referred to me. And I'd like to place them quickly."

She emphasized that PACT needs more male volunteers for the coming year than females.

"We always have an abundance of women. But with men...they just don't have the time. We're always behind on men."

For 1976 PACT had 58.6 percent women volunteers, and 41.4 percent men.

PACT deals with youths between the ages of nine and 18. Most of them have been involved in anything from truancy and shoplifting, to burglary and assault. PACT's goal is to catch them before they have to be institutionalized.

Wright said that many times a breakdown has occurred in the family, and the children find themselves in awkward positions.

"It's not anything that can't be dealt with" she said.

The process PACT follows is integrated closely with the Juvenile Court. PACT received all its references, along with background information on the youths, from the Probation Officers.

Volunteers are screened before they're accepted. The screening consists of an interview with Wright. She said not many people are rejected.

"The only time we would reject somebody, is like if there's a woman who comes in and she has five kids aging from one to seven. We more or less stress to her it's going to take more time than she thinks." Applicants are also asked whether they have ever had a police record.

The volunteer and youth are then assigned to each other. Volunteers are asked to call the Probation Officer before they begin working with the youth. Any problems that arise can be dealt with through PACT or the Probation Officer.

The volunteers are asked to meet with their kids for a minimum of once a week for three hours.

"Most people will find that as they get into it, if they get a good relationship going, the kid is going to want to talk to them more, she said.

"Kids don't have problems on Saturday afternoon from 3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m., they have them all week long." Wright said the volunteer is encouraged to do family-type things to give the youth a better idea what a typical family would be like.

Such "simple pleasures" are enhanced because PACT receives community support. Volunteers may take their kids out to see movies, go bowling, or eat meals.

Seneca Bowl, Sky Bowl and Pizza Hut are several establishments lending support.

Local colleges have also helped the PACT program. "We've had a lot of help from Wichita State University," Wright said. "The Sociology and Psychology Departments have let us come in and talk to their classes."

Last summer, Kansas Newman helped by donating personnel and campus space for some intensive, small group sessions.

Troubled youths are not coerced into participating in PACT. The organization is based in friendship, not authority, Wright emphasized. She noted the youths dealt with enough authority figures, and now need someone to talk to on their level.

"These increases in tuition are a part of a general policy," he continued. "Students want (and require) new or improved services and tuition must increase to pay the 25 percent support of these programs. Also new or improved programs will attract more student to WSU and slow or prevent any future drop in enrollment."

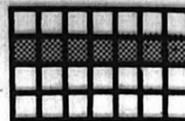

Lowe cited continuing improvements in Health Education, the Administration of Justice programs, Computer Sciences and increased Library services as examples of programs designed to attract more students to campus.

"These programs have to be paid for and students have to pay for their share. If they want increased services.

SALISBURY — Black guerrillas burned and looted offices of a second Christian mission, the government said Tuesday, while security forces search rain-soaked bush for raiders who killed seven white missionaries Sunday.

No casualties were reported in the raid on Nyashanu mission 125 miles southeast of Salisbury near the Mozambique border. The government did not say which church operated the mission or when the attack took place. It said the attackers took about $5,400 and burned a mission workshop and office.

ROME — The 27-year-old son of a middle-class shopowner in Milan has become Italy's most wanted criminal, a fugitive who is hardly averse to bragging about his zest for crime and money.

"I was born to be a gang leader," Vallanzasca was quoted as telling 16-year-old Emanuela Trapani, his latest kidnap target and the daughter of an Italian executive of the American cosmetics firm Helene Curtis. "I am not a victim of society."

INDIANAPOLIS — A man who demanded release from a $130,000 loan took a loan company director hostage today and forced him, with the muzzle of a sawed-off shotgun wired to his neck, to drive a stolen police car to the gunman's apartment, police said.

Later, police said, the gunman threatened to detonate nitroglycerine unless he was released from the loan.

WASHINGTON — President Carter said today he believes the United States and the Soviet Union are roughly equal in military might and advocated initiatives on both sides to restrain arms while maintaining the overall balance of power.

At his first White House news conference, Carter disclosed that he is considering cancellation of a projected sale of advanced concussion bombs to Israel.

TOPEKA — The Kansas Senate gave final approval Tuesday to an amended "death penalty" bill, which provides for a mandatory 30-year prison term, without parole, instead of imposing death sentences.

The original death penalty bill would have reinstated capital punishment in Kansas, but the measure was amended Monday during a highly emotional floor debate. Final approval came on a 25-14 vote in favor.

Gov. Robert F. Bennett has ordered establishment of a division of services to the aging within the state Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services.

In a letter to legislative leaders Tuesday accompanying the order, Bennett said he was recommending elevation of the present section on aging to divisional status in order to give the elderly a higher profile in the administration.

A report to the University Senate Monday indicates a team of eight communications specialists will analyze the efficiency of the flow of communication and information at the administrative level at Wichita State University this spring. A second report detailed progress of the administrative development and the faculty internship programs.

Richard Reidenbaugh, vice president of the Wichita State University board of trustees and chairman of the Kellogg Communications Task Force, turned the Senate meeting over to Gerry Goldhaber and Gary Richetto, members of the International Communications Association (ICA) team which will conduct the communications audit.

Richetto, a consultant with the Williams Consulting Co., is vice president of ICA. Goldhaber, associate professor of communications at the University of New York, is a former vice-president of the association. Richetto and Goldhaber said the audit will utilize four methods of gaining information on the WSU communications systems.

The mechanics of the audit include a questionnaire to be completed by 100 percent of the faculty and staff, two interviews with a selected group and an overall network analysis.

Goldhaber said the systematic study of communication problems was a relatively new concept.

"We've completed audits on hospitals, businesses, a Senator's organization and a whole variety of other organizations including two small components of a large university. We have never undertaken an audit of an entire university," Goldhaber said.

In an interview after the Senate meeting, Goldhaber and Richetto went into details on some of the programs in which they have participated.

"One example was a hospital administrator who we discovered was isolated from the upward flow of information. The problem was a personal one. She was personally unable to establish close relationships.

"We presented the evidence we had gathered," Goldhaber said, "and she was able to make some adjustments. For instance, she started a policy of having a personal interview with each new employee."

"We did an audit on a county public school system in Florida," Richetto said.

"There were 33 principals. The only time the principals in the system got together was once a month when the superintendent called a meeting. The superintendent would bring in a variety of speakers who would read dull reports. There was no chance for communication between the principals. At least 24 of them felt

The University Senate, which met in a special session this week to hear the last two of four Kellogg task force reports, will not meet at its regularly scheduled time Monday, announced Orpha Duell, Senate president. The Senate agenda committee will meet early next week to determine the next meeting date, probably the last Monday of the month, Duell said.

completely isolated from the rest of the system.

"Once they saw the problem," he added, "a new system was established in which the meetings were shifted from school to school and were attended on a voluntary basis.

"Each principal sent items for the agenda and the host principal conducted a tour of his facility before the meeting."

"There was still a need for information meetings," Goldhaber said, "so they planned one meeting a month for information reports."

Roger Lowe, vice president for business affairs, gave a report on the Kellogg Administrative Development and Internship Task Force. The Kellogg grant provides for eight one-week internships for persons to visit other campuses in an effort to improve WSU administrative practices. The grant also provides for a small number of administrative internships to be provided on the WSU campus.

Lowe said the intern program would be limited to faculty and that applications from classified staff would not be considered.

Phyllis Burgess, professor emerita, will be coordinator of the selection committee. She will be responsible for establishing guidelines for the selection of interns.

"Every full-time faculty member will be invited. Applicants will be asked to furnish three letters of recommendation, including one from an administrator with whom the applicant has worked. Each applicant must identify their interest and previous experience," Burgess said.

Lowe said the program will be in operation for the fall semester of 1977.

SGA officers free to do as they wish

The Student Senate has begun considering amendments to the SGA Constitution, but seems to have forgotten, or is ignoring, the Constitutional loophole that vindicated the 'ICAA trio' for ignoring a Senate resolution.

This ruling leaves SGA executive officers—those elected to execute the whims of the Student Senate, the student's representative institution—free to do as they wish regarding Senate resolutions. This relegates the Senate to impotence when facing a disagreeing executive.

The Constitution provides a veto power for the executive, but also grants a united Senate power to override a veto. The executive now has the power to forget the veto and simply ignore the resolution. Senate has no Constitutional power to force the executive to abide by the resolution.

The only way Senate can regain the power balance between executive and legislature is to initiate a Constitutional amendment binding the executive to Senate decisions. The student body would ratify the amendment, recognizing that it is better served by a Senate representing the diverse types of students than by an individual representing only his own type.

Smoking is pollution

Editor:

This letter is the first step of Wichita GASP to involve young adults in the nonsmokers rights movement. GASP, the Group Against Smoking Pollution, is a nationwide public awareness campaign with two main objectives:

1. Educate tobacco burners that smoking is a privilege and a health hazard to many people.
2. Educate nonsmokers that they have the right to speak up when offended by tobacco pollution.

WSU is aware of the negative effects of tobacco pollution on the nonsmoking student. University policy allows for clean air classrooms. Sometimes, however, instructors need to be reminded. If you are bothered by smoke in class, don't remain silent. Two-thirds of your classmates will be glad you spoke up.

If you would like to be more involved in Wichita GASP, don't hesitate to call 262-6963. Smoking is pollution we can live without.

Leave PJ's column alone

Editor:

In regard to the recent criticism of Patrick Jennings column, "Meat and Potatoes," let me say that in my opinion, he seems to be one of the few members of The Sunflower staff that knows what's going on. I mean really now—just how long does it take to figure out who in the hell is in charge of this institution? More to the point—who cares? As far as I'm concerned, Ted Bredehoft can run this place any way he wants to.

As for Jim Smell (sic) and J. Phillips, I'd be interested in learning just what part of the country this couple hails from. Wait a minute—this is WSU, isn't it? Okay—what part of Wichita, then. My guess is that they're both graduates of Wichita Southeast. That would explain why their taste is all in their mouths. "Meat and Potatoes" might not be Reader's Digest, but it's a helluva lot more refreshing!

The Sunflower is a nice little school paper. It more than adequately reports the goings-on of Hillside High and the drab little metropolis that supports it. Seriously—if it weren't for Vern Miller and Michael Soles, would there be a Wichita? In fact, if it weren't for The Sunflower and a few anonymous administrators (who'd probably like to remain that way) I doubt if there'd be a WSU!

Patrick Jennings and "Meat and Potatoes" are an oasis in this desert of mediocrity. Thanks to him, the efforts on campus to organize a Marching Band, and the great "Locked Library exit controversy." WSU is slowly gaining in its fight to be recognized as a University. Do what you want with this exercise in trial and error that you call Wichita State, but leave "Meat and Potatoes" alone!

SPACE OUT—Readers Theatre is back in action in the Wilner Pit this weekend with Sound and Space. Unable to obtain a description of it, I can only speculate on the nature of the show. FULL ORCHESTRA—An All Orchestral Concert is to be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday and at 8 p.m. Monday by the Wichita Symphony Orchestra. WAR REQUIEM—Next week, Robert Shaw, conductor of the famed Robert Shaw Chorale, will be artist-in-residence for the College of Fine Arts 1976-77 Distinguished Residence program. Shaw will conduct Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem" at 8 p.m. Feb. 18 in the Century II Concert Hall. "War Requiem" juxtaposes the traditional Latin text of the Mass for the Dead with a soldier's poetry which decries the waste and futility of war. Shaw will lecture on the poetry of the work at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Miller Concert Hall. This is a once-a-year chance to learn from a distinguished artist, so do it!

Dated film retains appeal

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, directed by Frank Capra and starring James Stewart, Jean Arthur, Claude Rains, and Edward Arnold, plays at 7 and 10 p.m. Wednesday in the CAC Theatre. Admission is 75 cents.

James Stewart plays an idealistic, young Boy Scout leader who becomes a U.S. Senator quite by accident. His dream is to form a home for boys in his home state of Montana. As he begins to lay the groundwork for government support of the project, he uncovers a conspiracy to stop his work.

Smith's belief in truth, freedom, liberty, and justice is terribly shaken as he takes on the conspirators, which includes the senior senator from Smith's state.

The collaboration of Frank Capra and James Stewart helped this 1939 classic win an Academy Award. It has a sappy story line, and is pretty well dated, but it's always worth the price.

The Constitution provides a veto power for the executive, but also grants a united Senate power to override a veto. The executive now has the power to forget the veto and simply ignore the resolution. Senate has no Constitutional power to force the executive to abide by the resolution.

The only way Senate can regain the power balance between executive and legislature is to initiate a Constitutional amendment binding the executive to Senate decisions. The student body would ratify the amendment, recognizing that it is better served by a Senate representing the diverse types of students than by an individual representing only his own type.

Smoking is pollution

Editor:

This letter is the first step of Wichita GASP to involve young adults in the nonsmokers rights movement. GASP, the Group Against Smoking Pollution, is a nationwide public awareness campaign with two main objectives:

1. Educate tobacco burners that smoking is a privilege and a health hazard to many people.
2. Educate nonsmokers that they have the right to speak up when offended by tobacco pollution.

WSU is aware of the negative effects of tobacco pollution on the nonsmoking student. University policy allows for clean air classrooms. Sometimes, however, instructors need to be reminded. If you are bothered by smoke in class, don't remain silent. Two-thirds of your classmates will be glad you spoke up.

If you would like to be more involved in Wichita GASP, don't hesitate to call 262-6963. Smoking is pollution we can live without.

Parents praise music professors

Editor:

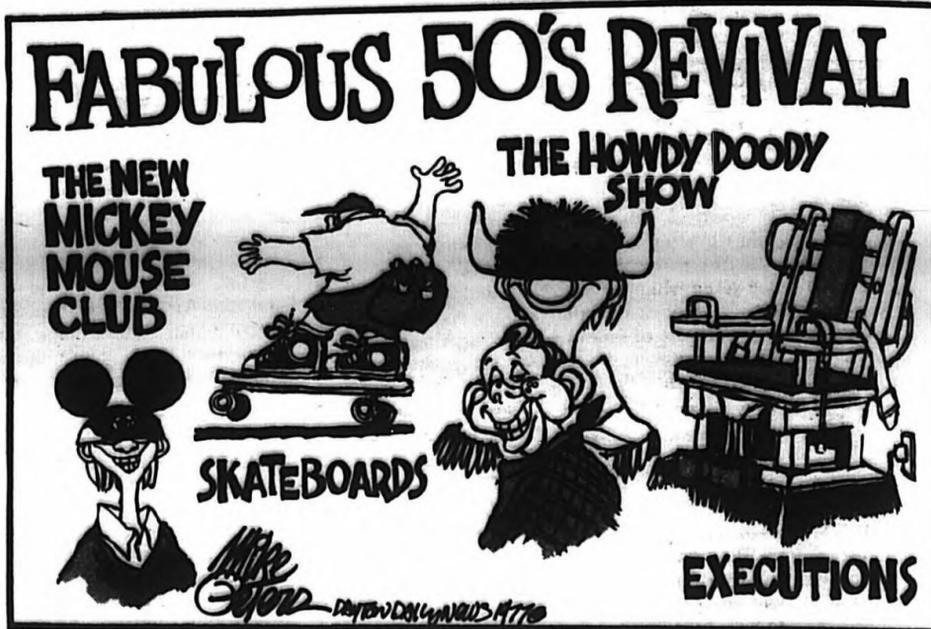

Too many times we neglect to voice the good things about our professional educators, so we would like to express publicly our gratitude to WSU and two of its music professors.

Our son is in his fourth year at WSU, majoring in music. His trombone professor, Don Hummel, has been an excellent instructor, advisor and friend. Paul Reed, piano professor, has spent many hours as piano accompanist, including out of state events, as well as being a professional advisor and Christian friend.

We truly appreciate and thank these two gentlemen as well as WSU. One of our daughters just started her college education there and has become an enthusiastic student and supporter of WSU. Wichita is indeed fortunate to have such a fine university.

Leave PJ's column alone

Editor:

In regard to the recent criticism of Patrick Jennings column, "Meat and Potatoes," let me say that in my opinion, he seems to be one of the few members of The Sunflower staff that knows what's going on. I mean really now—just how long does it take to figure out who in the hell is in charge of this institution? More to the point—who cares? As far as I'm concerned, Ted Bredehoft can run this place any way he wants to.

As for Jim Smell (sic) and J. Phillips, I'd be interested in learning just what part of the country this couple hails from. Wait a minute—this is WSU, isn't it? Okay—what part of Wichita, then. My guess is that they're both graduates of Wichita Southeast. That would explain why their taste is all in their mouths. "Meat and Potatoes" might not be Reader's Digest, but it's a helluva lot more refreshing!

The Sunflower is a nice little school paper. It more than adequately reports the goings-on of Hillside High and the drab little metropolis that supports it. Seriously—if it weren't for Vern Miller and Michael Soles, would there be a Wichita? In fact, if it weren't for The Sunflower and a few anonymous administrators (who'd probably like to remain that way) I doubt if there'd be a WSU!

Patrick Jennings and "Meat and Potatoes" are an oasis in this desert of mediocrity. Thanks to him, the efforts on campus to organize a Marching Band, and the great "Locked Library exit controversy," WSU is slowly gaining in its fight to be recognized as a University. Do what you want with this exercise in trial and error that you call Wichita State, but leave "Meat and Potatoes" alone!

Fine Arts events covered

Editor:

I wish to express personal appreciation for The Sunflower's excellent coverage of our many concerts, recitals, exhibitions and special lectures.

The College of Fine Arts presents over one hundred such events annually; we are heavily dependent upon the media to bring these events to the attention of the general public.

Please convey our gratitude to your associates whose support greatly assists the College of Fine Arts in maintaining its greatest professional contributions to members of this community.

SOLD OUT—A packed house will see the J.J. Cale concert at the Orpheum Theatre. The last of the tickets were sold Tuesday afternoon. If you have tickets, don't forget 8 p.m. tomorrow.

SPACE OUT—Readers Theatre is back in action in the Wilner Pit this weekend with Sound and Space. Unable to obtain a description of it, I can only speculate on the nature of the show. With its director (Weldon Carmicheal) and offbeat title, it should be an interesting program. Besides, what else can you do Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. for free?

FULL ORCHESTRA—An All Orchestral Concert is to be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday and at 8 p.m. Monday by the Wichita Symphony Orchestra. Under the baton of Francois Huybrechts, the orchestra will perform the works of Hayden, Schubert, and Mahler. As usual, the concerts will be performed in Century II Concert Hall and student tickets are available, in advance, at the Duerksen ticket office.

THE FORUM—Every weekend the Forum, 2148 N. Broadway, presents the best in home-spun humor, poetry, and folk-blues-bluegrass music. At 8 p.m. Friday, the Forum is sponsoring a poetry reading with an admission/donation of $1.50. At the risk of sounding pretentious, one might describe Forum poets as bards of the working-class. A group billed as "Beaunux Brown Blues Band" will present a musical program.

ROUNDBALL MAGIC—The Harlem Globetrotters makes its annual appearance at Henry Levitt Arena at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Billed as the "Magicians of Basketball", the team features Meadowlark Lemon, the clown prince of basketball. For ticket information, call 263-4717.

WAR REQUIEM—Next week, Robert Shaw, conductor of the famed Robert Shaw Chorale, will be artist-in-residence for the College of Fine Arts 1976-77 Distinguished Residence program. Shaw will conduct Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem" at 8 p.m. Feb. 18 in the Century II Concert Hall. "War Requiem" juxtaposes the traditional Latin text of the Mass for the Dead with a soldier's poetry which decries the waste and futility of war. Shaw will lecture on the poetry of the work at 1 p.m. Tuesday in Miller Concert Hall. This is a once-a-year chance to learn from a distinguished artist, so do it!

Dated film retains appeal

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, directed by Frank Capra and starring James Stewart, Jean Arthur, Claude Rains, and Edward Arnold, plays at 7 and 10 p.m. Wednesday in the CAC Theatre. Admission is 75 cents.

James Stewart plays an idealistic, young Boy Scout leader who becomes a U.S. Senator quite by accident. His dream is to form a home for boys in his home state of Montana. As he begins to lay the groundwork for government support of the project, he uncovers a conspiracy to stop his work.

Smith's belief in truth, freedom, liberty, and justice is terribly shaken as he takes on the conspirators, which includes the senior senator from Smith's state.

The collaboration of Frank Capra and James Stewart helped this 1939 classic win an Academy Award. It has a sappy story line, and is pretty well dated, but it's always worth the price.

"You would be surprised how many kids want friendship. They've come to the end of the rope and they think this is one more chance that somebody will listen to them, and maybe understand what's happening to them. 'I think volunteers are really far out' said one youth who has been involved with PACT. 'I think it's a nice program,' he added.

Julie Burner, who has been a volunteer since July 1976, believes PACT is doing its job. The girl she is dealing with used to be a constant runaway threat from the Monica House for Girls. "Now she loves it" Burner said. The girl is doing well in school and is involved in band.

Another volunteer feels PACT is a "good program," but admits there are some kids that just cannot be helped.

"Each kid is an individual" said John Roeser. "It's important to obtain their confidence because different kids will try you in different ways."

Roeser, who has dealt with some 20 youths over the years, said the environment the boy is living in plays a large role in determining whether PACT can be successful or not.

"The volunteer is not God, he's not going to change the world" Roeser said. Roeser said his present boy is "Damn glad to have a volunteer."

This one-to-one program is only half of PACT's function. Under the direction of Lyn Reynolds, PACT is also involved with the Youth Holding Center. At this detention facility, group activities are held five nights a week for those not comfortable in working one-to-one. According to Wright, PACT also supplies volunteers for the Star House and Youths Alternative.

Wright said that while not all the kids come from broken homes, they are certainly "weak homes."

"Whether it's that the parents are just frustrated, and they've just ignored the things going on, or they don't care what is going on—the kids know. 'The kids aren't stupid,' she said "they know how their parents feel. It's just hard on them. 'I don't want to point the finger just at the family, there is often just a problem there."

The problem is overwhelming when one considers the number of youths getting into trouble every year. Juvenile Court had 3,000 new cases last year—youths that were not repeat offenders.

"It's a community problem," she said. "It's not my problem because I work here, it's everybody's problem because we live here."

Does PACT do the job? Is it working?

"I'm not sure you can measure that" Wright said. "I'm not sure it is fair to measure that."

"I think if you can give a kid someone they feel close to, and can confide in it's worthwhile. If one can get them through a year of their life, then that's quite a bit. It's better then ignoring them."

Hurricanes conceal punch

Valley lead makes Shocks vulnerable

By STEVE PIKE

Shocker basketball fans beware. Don't count your Valley championships before they are won. Saturday night's heartstopping victory over Southern Illinois vaulted Wichita State to the top of the conference race with West Texas State, and every team from now on will have Shocker blood on its mind.

The first team to get a shot at knocking WSU out of the Valley lead will be the Tulsa Golden Hurricanes, hosting the Shocks tomorrow night in barn-like Fairgrounds Pavillion in Tulsa. The Hurricane had a tough time of it earlier this year against the Shocks, dropping a 68-48 decision in Henry Levitt Arena Jan. 20. Charlie Brent bombed in 26 points and Cheese Johnson grabbed 18 rebounds to pave the way for WSU in that contest.

In fact, Tulsa and second-year head coach Jim King have had a rough ride all season. TU dropped its last home game 80-78 to Bradley Jan. 5, and lost the home stand before that to tiny Quincy College. The Hurricanes stand at 4-15 on the season and 1-5 in the Valley.

Former Hutchinson Junior College all-American Teko Wynder is the big point man for Tulsa. Wynder is averaging 17 points per contest followed by 6-foot-7 Dan O'Leary's 16 points and seven rebounds.

The return of Tom Vincent to the Hurricane squad could take some of the pressure off O'Leary in the middle. Vincent, at 6-foot-8, is the tallest of the Hurricanes. He averaged 11 points a game and six rebounds last year but sat out most of this season after leaving the team.

The Shockers defeated the Hurricanes twice last year. The 70-61 win in Tulsa was the game that pointed WSU to the Valley crown.

Tough tip

Charlie Brent coaxes the ball up and in for two of his 26 points in the Shockers last game against Tulsa University, Jan. 20. WSU easily won that game, 68-48, in Henry Levitt Arena, but will have to handle Tulsa again on its home court tomorrow night if the Shockers want to stay on top in the Valley conference standings.

Despite fine shooting and fantastic rebounding, Wichita State center Robert Elmore dropped from sixth to 14th place in the balloting for the Pizza Hut All-Star Classic. Elmore picked up 40 rebounds in his past two games to raise his average to more than 15 caroms per game, which could possibly move him up to second in the NCAA national statistics, but he isn't faring as well on the ballot sheets. Ricky Green of Michigan and Marques Johnson of UCLA lead the respective East/West teams in balloting. The top eight choices from the balloting are automatically selected to play in the Pizza Hut Classic, and the rest of the teams are selected by the coaches.

Rich Waegner, a Wichita State freshman who ranks only as high as an alternate on the WSU men's bowling team, rolled a perfect 300 game on the way to a first place finish in the T-Bird Sweeper Saturday night at Thunderbird Lanes in Wichita. Waegner rolled 12 straight strikes in his fourth game of the five-game T-Bird series for his first perfect game ever.

Mike Vespoli, coach of the Wichita State crew team, could use a few more women rowers on his novice crew team. No prior experience is necessary. Interested women should contact Vespoli at 689-3274, or drop by room 3 of Henry Levitt Arena between 3 and 5 p.m. today, tomorrow or Friday.

If indoor sports are more up your alley, you might note that the entry deadline for intramural pool is at 3:30 p.m. Friday. The single elimination tournament will be played in the CAC recreation area at 6 p.m. Feb. 20. Lose once and you're out. The entry fee is 50 cents and the rules will be available when you pay your fee. All entries will be taken at the intramural office, 102 Henrion Gym.

Gifts and more gifts

A wedding gift is a special way of congratulating the newlyweds and wishing them luck. However, picking a gift can be a difficult job.

Many brides register china, crystal and silver patterns at stores near their home. The brides parents can usually inform friends of where the couple has registered.

For those couples who have not registered, duplication of gifts is a problem. Friends can avoid duplication by trying to purchase a gift that reflects the newlyweds.

Maybe the couple has a fetish for ice cream, an ice cream freezer would make an ideal gift.

It could be the couple enjoys inbibing occasionally in the fruit of the vine. A wine rack and some wine would be great. (Maybe Wedding Veil, 1973.)

Persons uncertain of the couples likes and dislikes, might try personalizing their gift. If decopage is your favorite past-time, you could dec-opage the wedding invitation. Your gift will help to preserve the memory of the day for the couple.

Maybe your hobby is working with stained glass. Give the couple an original piece of your work.

If time does not allow you to shop around or make a personalized gift, money is always appreciated. A savings bond or cash in any amount allow the couple to get any item that they still may need after the wedding.

Gingiss Formalwear

If you want to be the only man in her life, stand out from the rest on that special day in formal wear from Gingiss. Imagine you the groom, in this ivory tuxedo by Lord West. Here shown with matching vest and tie and trimmed in a deeper toned velvet. For the best looking formal wear that ever went down the aisle visit Gingiss today.

Gowns bring bride to life

Soft, romantic, simple or elegant a wedding dress helps to bring life to the bride's dreams.

Although wedding dresses remain basically the same, minor changes update the fashions from year to year. White and Ivory are the traditional colors for the bride's gown. The bride's dress should be chosen for the way it looks on her, the time of the ceremony and because she likes it.

For a formal daytime or evening wedding a full length dress with a cathedral, chapel or sweep train is appropriate. The veil, if it is long should cover the train. If it is short, it should be very full. Shoes should match the gown. If it is a short sleeved dress long gloves should be worn.

The formal evening wedding is any wedding after 6 p.m. The brides gown can be made of more elaborate fabrics for the evening ceremony.

For a semi-formal daytime or evening wedding,

Wedding Specialists

Our bride is lovely in this gown of polyorganza and cluney lace. The Queen Anne neckline accents the fitted bodice of cluney lace with full lantern sleeves.

Blossom with your bouquets

On her wedding day a bride should find everything coming up roses, carnations, daisies or any flower she desires.

Before selecting her flowers a bride should look at many pictures of arrangements to see what flowers are available. According to Opal Fahnestock of Dean's Designs, roses are the favorite of brides-to-be.

The brides bouquet can be anything from one flower to an elaborate arrangement. Color in her bouquet can pick up her attendants colors.

Arrangements for flowers should be made early, three months in advance if possible. This allows the bride to view many arrangements. Certain flowers are seasonal, a florist can advise on a substitution if the bride wants a flower that is not in season.

Wedding Specialists

Here is the look of crisp white eylet for our bride. Gently ruffled at the neckline with the full chapel trim. Matching hat and parasol. Her groom is in the new Seville from After Six.

A bride's roses are unique

Flowers should be given to all attendants, parents and grandparents. Musicians, any helpers: guest book, reception, and the minister, if he is not in robes, should all have a small corsage or boutonniere.

God parents or favorite relatives can be given flowers if the couple desires.

Flowers for the ceremony and reception should be planned to co-ordinate with attendants flowers.

Cost for the flowers is divided between the groom and the bride's family. The bride's family is responsible for the church and reception flowers and the bridesmaids bouquets. The groom buys flowers for the men of the wedding party, both mothers, the bride's bouquet and her going away corsage.

Shamballa

Ova Ratliff, owner and manicurist of the Shamballa Salon invites you to come in and let hairstylists Marc Eads, Pamela Cain Coats, Emma Warne, Cathy Budensiek and Cindy Kimble help you look your best.

Plan to make your wedding dream come true

A wedding can not be planned hurriedly. The Sunflower offers the following checklist to help you plan the perfect wedding.

FOUR TO TWELVE MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING.

- Talk with clergy or other officials who you would like to perform the ceremony. Make any necessary arrangements with him.

- Make reception plans. Be sure to reserve all services you will need.

- Begin shopping for a wedding dress. A bridal consultant can help with this and other wedding plans.

- Decide on the number of guests. Draw up your invitation guest list.

- Ask friends to serve as attendants. Choose bridesmaids dresses and formalwear for the men.

- Select a photographer.

- Visit your florist.

- Plan music for the wedding ceremony.

- Begin planning furnishings for your first home.

THREE MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING:

- Buy wedding ring(s).

- Pick out wedding invitations and thank-you notes.

- Make all arrangements necessary for your honeymoon.

- Select your first year trousseau.

- Have both mothers select their dresses. Make sure they harmonize with the wedding colors.

- Register china, crystal and silver patterns with local gift registries.

- Visit your doctor. Have him or her complete all necessary forms you need to apply for a marriage license.

TWO MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING:

- Address your wedding invitations.

- Select gifts for your attendants.

- Apply for a marriage license.

ONE MONTH BEFORE THE WEDDING:

- The bride should have her hair styled as it will be for the wedding.

- Arrange a final fitting for the brides gown.

- Order the wedding cake and if desired, a groom's cake.

- Plan your rehearsal dinner, if you wish to have one.

- Mail your invitations.

- The bride should attend showers in her honor.

TWO WEEKS BEFORE THE WEDDING:

- Check on all wedding attire.

- Make the seating arrangement for the reception. Write out placecards.

- If the bride plans to change her name, the change should be made on all personnel papers, such as drivers license, social security and voter registration.

- Begin moving belongings to your new home.

Dressing informal or formal

From page 5 floor length dresses are appropriate but veils should be shorter than for the formal wedding.

For an informal wedding the bride can choose a floor length or shorter dress, or suit. A short veil or bridal hat is traditional. Complementary gloves and shoes should finish the ensemble.

When picking the bridesmaids clothing, the bride should keep the build of her attendants in mind. A cut that complements the figure of all the women will provide a more beautiful wedding.

Bridesmaids, by tradition wear floor length dresses with a simple cap or short veil at formal or semi-formal wedding. For an informal wedding the bridesmaid should wear the same length dress as the bride. Color of attendants clothing is always up to the bride.

Men in the wedding party have traditionally worn black or white. For spring however formal wear that matches or harmonizes with the bridesmaids is suggested by Janet Shoemaker, a bridal consultant with Wedding Specialists.

A cutaway coat or tails is appropriated for a formal wedding. At a semi-formal wedding a tuxedo or formal suit is appropriate. For an informal wedding tradition suggest a dark business suit.

All men in the bride and the grooms family should be dressed in the same attire as the wedding party. For example, if the groomsmen are in tuxedos then both fathers should be in tuxedos also. Any brothers not a part of the wedding party should still be dressed in matching attire.

Mothers of the couple should wear dresses that harmonize with the attendants.

The length for both mother's dresses should be the same.

Guests attire, unless stated in the invitation, is optional for men. Women should wear street length dresses during the day and long dresses in the evening to a formal or semi-formal affair. Street length dresses are appropriate for an informal wedding.

Honeymoon memories should last a lifetime. The Holiday Inn East offers an enclosed swimming pool atrium for swimming or just relaxing. The gigantic plexiglas bubble roof encloses the heated swimming pool and lush tropical garden, making a Polynesian paradise that can be enjoyed year 'round. Here, a waterfall spilling over rocks into the crystal-clear pool and over 50 varieties of tropical plants and trees nestled among planters formed of pilings and coils of giant rope create a delightful tropical setting that ignores Kansas winds or snow. In summer months, sunbathers can enjoy "the real thing" on an outdoor, landscaped terrace adjacent to the pool area through sliding doors.

Honeymoon excursions near and far

Kansas City offers shopping at the Crown Center or Country Club Plaza, dinner shows at the Waldo Astoria or Tiffany's Attic and the Nelson Art Gallery. The Truman Museum is only a short drive from downtown Kansas City.

Denver, which sits at the foot of the Rocky Mountains is especially popular during the winter months. The Colorado capital is near many well known ski resorts.

For couples with time and money, travel agencies and airlines offer honeymoon excursions to Hawaii and cruises to the Virgin Islands, or the Caribbean.

For between $300 and $500 a couple can enjoy a week in a sea-side hotel. Most hotel packages arranged by agencies include extras such as champagne, continental breakfasts, use of water sports equipment and fresh flowers.

It is important to check what honeymoon packages include.
