Sports Arena Measure May Get House OK

Passage Would Allow Boost In Building Levy, Start Of Construction

Action is expected to be taken on the bill for the proposed University Sports Arena sometime within the next week, Lester Rosen, director of public relations, announced this week.

The bill is now before the Kansas House of Representatives. It has passed the Senate, and the State Affairs Committee in the House has given a recommendation for favorable action to be taken on it.

If the bill passes the House and receives the governor's approval, the funds secured by the bill will be used to begin construction of the sports arena and auditorium on the campus, Mr. Rosen said.

Will Allow Increase

The bill, which is known as Senate Bill S.B. 87, will permit the University to increase its building fund levy from one to one and one-fourth mill.

"It will also allow the University to raise its bond indebtedness from $1,000,000 to one and one-fourth per cent of the assessed valuation in Wichita," Mr. Rosen stated.

May Begin In Fall

If the bill is passed, construction of the Sports Arena will be expected to begin next fall. It will be ready for use by December in 1954.

Mr. Rosen added that this increase in funds would also provide for other University building needs within the next few years.

Waiting For An Interview

Kenton Believes Jazz To Stay Has Been His Living, Job

"Yep, afraid it is!"

This was band leader, Stan Kenton's answer when asked whether he thought jazz was here to stay in an interview with a Sunflower reporter at the Military Ball last Saturday night.

He went on to state that he wasn't sure why he had put it that way, since it had given him an interesting occupation and a profitable living.

He was born in Wichita, but moved to Los Angeles, Calif., when six weeks old. He organized his band in 1941 and has been touring ever since. "There isn't one of the original members left," he said.

Kenton's present band is composed of five trumpets, five trombones, five saxophones, one drum, a bass, a guitar, and a piano. This is a total of 20, counting Mr. Kenton, who both directs the band and plays a piano. Added to this number is a female vocalist, Chris Connors.

Arranging for the band and orchestra is shared by Mr. Kenton, Bill Russom, Bill Coleman, and Bob Graettinger. He arranges only for the orchestra.

"Touring is interesting and fun," stated Kenton. He has toured the United States, Canada, and Europe several times. "However, it isn't so good when we don't get enough sleep, but I find that mostly the tours work out well, with plenty of time for rest between performances."

Mr. Kenton and band are on a tour now which will take them to Chicago, Ill., and the "Blue Note Club." They have been out of Hollywood, Calif., for six weeks. This summer, the group will tour Europe and then disband for a two-month rest. They will add stringed instruments and again tour as an orchestra next November.

"I don't know where we will go then, but we will probably start in Boston, Mass.," Mr. Kenton said. "The tour is being set now and will probably include Canada."

During the dance Saturday night, students and faculty alike, stood three and four rows deep to watch and listen to the band. At intermission, a line of autograph seekers formed, keeping Mr. Kenton busy writing his signature. During the evening the band took one 20-minute break.

"One of my most popular numbers seems to be "September Song." I am glad that we were asked to be here and we've enjoyed it very much," Mr. Kenton said at the close of the interview.

More People Smoke CAMELS than any other cigarette

Yesterday, once again, was election day on the University campus. This time the election was for May Queen, rather than for the offices of campus government. But the two have a point in common: of the two candidates up for election, one was put up by the only coalition on the campus. The other was sponsored by an independent organization.

The political situation at the University has gone from bad to worse. It was bad enough that only a few students voted. Things went to the worse when one of the two coalitions on the campus disbanded, leaving only one to put up candidates. These would be almost certain of election.

The same thing held true in this election: one coalition, with one candidate, who stood a good chance of winning. It is this sort of monopoly over elections that leads to dictatorships.

In principle, however, the existence of a single coalition is bad. Even though there may be other candidates, the coalition, because of better and more support and organization, will stand the best chance of winning.

However, since there is but one coalition on the campus, why not turn the selection of persons to honorary posts over to the student council? True, this would eliminate elections. It would also allow a better chance for the candidates, if there were any, who were not sponsored by the coalition.

There is a drawback to this solution, although it is a workable suggestion.

This is the drawback: since there is but one coalition, it is in control of the council. There exists the possibility that persons selected through the council might be selected in the same way that they are now by elections.

That is, since the one coalition controls the council, they would solely pick from their own coalition. This would save the expense of an election, but the result would be the same as the result of an election under a one-party government: no matter who wins, it is still the same party behind them.

We don't claim that things could be this bad on the University campus, but it is possible that they could easily develop into a situation similar to that. The "elections" are dominated by one coalition now, on a campus where there are enough students to form some sort of opposition.

Either way, it still takes two parties to give everyone an equal chance.

Only 129 Gave Blood

Only 129 students on this campus could find time last week to save someone's life. Only 129 students out of a nearly 2,000 took time to participate in a very worthy cause, the campus blood drive.

Even the low goal of 200 points was not met. Thursday, 53 students contributed, and on Friday, only 76 took the time to give their blood. There can be no satisfactory excuse, other than illness, that can sanction such poor representation.

Giving blood seldom took over 30 minutes and students were excused from their classes to contribute.

We point a shameful finger at the students and faculty that could give blood and failed to, and take off our hats for the ones who did.

We hope this pitiful representation does not express our concern for the soldier in Korea or for those at home who might need our blood to save a life.

Liberal Teaching Should Prepare Students For Work: McIntosh

Liberal arts colleges have been too afraid of the word "vocation," Pres. Millicent C. McIntosh of Barnard College, New York, declares in her biennial report, released here recently, adding that "teaching which is truly liberal will fit students to use subject matter for work, and at the same time will relate to the human problems faced by every individual.

"Courses which deliberately make these connections should be given side by side with those purely theoretical or historical, just as we have for years accepted the necessity of laboratory work in the study of science and statistics as a tool for the economist," she says.

Quoting the Oxford English Dictionary definition of the word vocation—"the particular function or station to which a person is called by God"—President McIntosh continues: "We cannot escape from the broad vocational implications of a college curriculum, even though we may resist them as allowing the market place to invade the world of the scholar.

Remember Purpose

"Always, however, we must keep in mind the primary purpose of the liberal arts, which will guide us in avoiding work that is trivial or purely technical. We will expose our students to great ideas."

President McIntosh holds that whatever trains and cultivates the mind and spirit is fit material for the curriculum, and that whatever problem of society presents a need for solution "by devoted, educated human beings" may be the business of the enlightened college teacher.

Looks To Future

"I look forward to a day when the woman's liberal arts college will no longer be self-conscious or defensive about academic learning," she says.

Asks For 11 Greats

An American history professor asked his class for a list of the 11 greatest Americans, reports the Postscript, Richmond Professional Institute, Va. While the students wrote, the teacher strolled around the room. Finally he paused at one desk and asked the student if he had finished his list.

"Not yet," said the student, "I can't decide on the fullback."

Library Books

Four Months Top Circulation

September, October, December, and January seem to be the heaviest months for book circulation, according to figures released recently by Miss Florence Hildebrandt, assistant librarian.

Ga. Tech Adds Math Degree

Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta, recently announced the addition of a new degree to its list beginning with the fall quarter, 1953. The new degree will be a bachelor of science in applied mathematics.

The Georgia Board of Regents, acting on the recommendation of President Blake Ragsdale Van Leer, has approved the plan to offer the degree.

This is the first time in Georgia Tech history that an undergraduate degree in this basic science has been offered.

This degree is not available in any other unit of the University System of Georgia or elsewhere in the state. As a result, no duplication of courses is possible.

Students working for the B. S. in applied mathematics will simply take the same courses along with the regular engineering students who are taking mathematics as required. Courses from the engineering schools may be freely used as electives by the students aiming for the math degree.

The action taken by the Board of Regents in installing the new degree will bring Georgia Tech up to the same standards as Carnegie Tech, Case Tech, Penn State and other well known engineering institutions around the country. It means that students from Georgia can now obtain the degree in their home state and will no longer have to go to school in other sections of the country.

Although this is not a clear indication of study habits of University students, they checked out 1,785 books or over a ton of printed material at the main desk in September alone.

Of this number loaned to the students, this was an increase of 311 books over the same period of time during 1951.

Faculty Also Borrow

Faculty members also borrowed more books during this time. However, in February of this year as opposed to February of last year, there was a drop of 145 books checked out by faculty members.

Reserve books have had the highest rate of circulation of any books in the Library. Comparing total figures for the first six months of the last academic year with the same months this year, there was an increase of 2,500 books or practically three tons of library volumes, which were borrowed from the Reserve room.

Grad Students Check

Because of much research going on, more graduate students have been checking into government publications and technical pamphlets now for material than at any other time.

"This, however, is not a true picture of library circulation," stated Miss Hildebrandt. "We, the library staff, feel that this month will prove to have the higher amount of loaning than any other month of this academic year."

When the mailman makes his deliveries, nearly everyone is eager to discover what he has left. The mails bring an assortment of things—letters, press releases, bulleting, and almost anything else that can be mentioned.

The other day, an item arrived which declared, in part, that "This nation spends five times as much . . . on dogfood as it does on college textbooks . . ."

No doubt this is good news for the dogs of the nation, as well as for their owners, who probably had no idea that they were spending such a sum yearly. However, the canine population of the nation, in part, at least, has no contact whatever with dogfood.

This portion of the number of dogs in the country are those which live off the table scraps, or rely on their own ability to catch their own dinners.

They are probably just as well, if not better fed, than the dogs which subsist largely or entirely on dogfood. This is bad news to the manufacturers of dogfood.

Should the nation's dogs ever come to realize that they are having such an amount of money spent on them, more of them might become dependent on dogfood. The city-bred dog would thus convince his country cousin to move to town and forget about table scraps—he too could benefit from the amount of money being spent on dogfood.

This, also, would dull the average dog's individuality, and soon he would become like many humans today—merely another dependent, dull animal with no individuality left and a part of a group.

The same article also comments, "Hunting and fishing . . . account for over 12 times the amount spent for . . . textbooks."

Well, about all that proves is that the populace of this country, whether they are rich or poor, with or without a college degree, still like to hunt and fish.

The sum of money (listed as $500 million) spent on hunting and fishing equipment is no doubt a source of constant worry to the fish and game of the nation. They probably don't realize that they are the sole object of such a tremendous sum. If they did, they would probably worry until they had ulcers.

And who likes to eat duck—with ulcers?

Terms Of 3, 9 Weeks Slated; Open In June

Two summer sessions will be available to University students, according to Dr. Hugo Wall, summer school director.

Plans for the sessions are nearly completed and a bulletin of information is now available at registrar's office. The schedule of the courses offered will be published soon, Dr. Wall disclosed.

The first of two sessions will begin on June 2 and continue through July 31. A second three-week term will run from Aug. 3 through Aug. 21, Dr. Wall said.

During the two summer terms a maximum of 12 hours of graduate or undergraduate credit may be earned.

Twenty-five departments will offer courses for graduate and undergraduate credit. These include accounting, art, journalism, library, logopedics, mathematics, music, physical education, philosophy and religious education, physics, political science, psychology, sociology, Spanish, speech, teacher training, and zoology and science survey.

There will also be several workshops in various subjects offered during the summer terms, Dr. Wall said.

Savaiano Attends Topeka Meeting

Dr. Eugene Savaiano, head of the Spanish department, will preside over a meeting of the Kansas Modern Language Association to be held at Topeka Saturday.

Also attending the meeting will be several other members of the University.

COMMENCEMENT IS MAY 31

Commencement exercises at the University of Wichita are set for May 31 this year.

IF YOU CAN WIN

THESE WINGS YOU CAN EARN OVER $5,000 A YEAR AFTER GRADUATION

Important facts about the opportunities for YOU as a Commissioned Officer—Pilot or Aircraft Observer—in the United States Air Force

Must I be a college graduate to take Aviation Cadet Training?

No. But you must have completed a minimum of 60 semester hours or 90 quarter hours toward a degree. In addition, under the new Aviation Cadet training program, you must be between the ages of 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition—with high requirements for eyes, ears, heart and teeth.

How long before I get my commission?

60 calendar weeks. You will receive the finest aviation training in the world—training that not only equips you to fly modern military aircraft but prepares you for executive and administrative work as well. At the completion of your training, you will have acquired a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant and the coveted silver wings of the United States Air Force.

Where do I take my training?

Pre-flight training will be at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. Primary, basic and advanced training will be taken at any one of the many Air Force bases located throughout the South and Southwest.

What happens if I flunk the training course?

Every effort is made to help students whose progress is unsatisfactory. You can expect extra instructions and whatever individual attention you may require. However, if you fail to complete the course as an Aviation Cadet, you will be required to serve a two-year enlistment to fulfill the minimum requirement under Selective Service laws. Veterans who have completed a tour of military service will be discharged upon request if they fail to complete the course.

What pay do I get as an Aviation Cadet? And after?

As an Aviation Cadet you draw $109.20 a month pay. In addition, you get summer and winter uniforms, flight clothes, equipment, food, housing, medical and dental care and insurance . . . all free. After you are commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant you will be earning $5,300.00 a year—with unlimited opportunities for advancement.

Are all Aviation Cadets trained to be Pilots?

No. You can choose between becoming a Pilot or an Aircraft Observer. Men who choose the latter will become commissioned officers in Navigation, Bombardment, Radar Operation, or Aircraft Performance Engineering.

Do Aircraft Observers get flying training, too?

Yes. Aircraft Observer Cadets receive approximately 200 hours of "in the air" instructions. The primary phase of Aircraft Observer training is the same for all branches (navigation, bombardment, etc.). The basic and advanced phases of training vary, depending on the specific course you pursue.

What kind of airplanes will I fly?

You will fly jets. The Pilot Cadet takes his first instructions in a light, civilian-type plane of approximately 100 horsepower, then graduates to the 600 horsepower T-6 "Texan" before receiving transition training in jets. You then advance gradually until you are flying such famous first-line aircraft as F-86 Sabre, F-89 Scorpion, B-47 Stratojet, B-50 Superfortress. Observer Cadets take flight instructions in the C-47 Dakota, the T-29 Convair, and the TB-50 Superfortress before advancing to first-line aircraft such as the F-89 Scorpion, B-47 Stratojet.

Will my commission be in the Regular Air Force or Reserve?

Aviation Cadet graduates, both Pilots and Aircraft Observers, get Reserve commissions as 2nd Lieutenants and become eligible to apply for a regular Air Force Commission when they have completed 18 months of active duty.

How long must I remain in Service?

After graduation from the Aviation Cadet Program, you are tendered an indefinite appointment in the United States Air Force Reserve and are called to active duty with the United States Air Force for a period of three years.

What recreation and leisure time will I have as a Cadet?

Discipline will be rigid—especially for the first few weeks. However, it is not all work. You'll find swimming pools, handball courts, movies and other forms of recreation on the post.

Where will I be stationed when I get my commission?

You may be stationed anywhere in the world . . . Hawaii, Far East, Europe, Puerto Rico, elsewhere. During your tour of duty, you will be in close touch with the latest developments in new flying techniques. You will continue to build up your flying experience and later should have no difficulty securing a CAA commercial pilot or navigator rating.

Your future is assured if you can qualify! Here's what to do:

- 1 Take a transcript of your college credits and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.
- 2 If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination at government expense.
- 3 Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.
- 4 If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

Shocker Cagers Establish New Season Records

Ralph Miller's Shocker basketball team not only cracked a season's record in wins and losses, but also broke most of the existing attendance records for a single campaign.

During 1952-53, the team played 14 games in the Forum before record crowds totaling 46,299 fans. With the addition of two games at the Hutchinson arena, the total attendance was boosted over 47,000.

Previous season record was 36,051, set during the 1951-52 season. The new record was 13,000 more than last year's record.

Past records show that since Ralph Miller came to coach the basketball team two seasons ago, attendance has been on the upgrade. His first season produced the most recent record, when an average of 2,994 attended each game. This past season, fans jammed the Forum at a rate of 3,300 for each game.

The Aggie-Shocker game in the Forum, was watched by 4,204 fans, a single game record for the season. St. Louis University brought out 4,193 fans for a close second.

Last season's smallest crowd was counted when San Diego State played WU before 2,651 fans.

Wichita University's tennis season came to an abrupt halt this week—before it ever even got started. It seems only one man eligible for varsity tennis reported for practice and as only one man doesn't make a team, the sport will be abandoned for this season at the University, according to Coach Pete Tillman.

The team was to have competed in five dual matches, all of which have been cancelled, and the Missouri Valley Spring Sports Carnival here in May.

The coach, now without a team, requests that freshmen interested in tennis report so that the school will be assured of a tennis team next spring.

When the New York Giants and the Cleveland Indians meet here next Thursday, baseball fans will probably get to see one of the city's outstanding products in action.

Darye Spencer, who is trying to nail down the shortstop position with the Giants, will undoubtedly be given a chance to play for his home town fans by Manager Leo Durocher.

Henry Iba, Oklahoma A and M's "Iron Duke," was named the basketball "Coach of the Year" in the Missouri Valley Conference by the coaches of the other Mo-Valley teams. This season marked the third time in the past five years that Iba has won the award. His Aggies copped their seventh Valley crown in ten seasons this year and were runners-up to Kansas University in the NCAA regional playoffs.

Championships in golf, tennis, and track for the MVC will be decided at the Spring Sports Meet on May 8 and 9 when the University hosts the other conference schools for the annual event.

Another highlight of that sports-laden week end will be the Shocker intrasquad football game at Veterans' Field. The game will close out the meet and spring drills for the gridders.

4 Debaters To Augusta

The Lions' Club in Augusta will be hosts to four University debaters Thursday night at a dinner there. The students will be a symposium discussing "Whether there should be free trade between NATO nations."

Those making the trip are, Jim Parrish, junior in the Business Administration; Frank Leek, junior in Liberal Arts; Ted Schweitzer, sophomore in Liberal Arts and Wess Farres, junior in the College of Education.

Baseball Work Starts Today

Organized practice for the Shocker baseball squad will get under way this afternoon with a meeting at 2 p.m. in Room 203 of the Women's Gym. Coach Dick Miller has asked all persons interested in trying out for the squad to attend.

Miller's squad will open their 1953 schedule on April 3 against Oklahoma A. and M. at Stillwater.

The 1953 Munie team will be built around a nucleus of nine returning lettermen. They are Gary Thompson, pitcher; Alex Chuk, pitcher and outfielder; Ben Lee and Bill Pace, outfielders; Gene Kuhns, Art Vigare, Curt Hightower, and John Walor, infielders, and Jim Haight, catcher.

During the 1952 campaign the Shockers won only three games and lost 10. Of those, six losses were in Missouri Valley competition. This year, there are four conference games on the schedule, two each with Houston and Oklahoma A. and M.

Shocks Take 2 Firsts

OU Captures A & M Relays

Oklahoma University won nine firsts and piled up 77 points to capture the annual Oklahoma A and M relays held in Stillwater last Saturday.

Only first and second places were determined in the event with Oklahoma A and M finishing second with 60½ points. The Shocker entries gathered only 9½ points with two first places.

In the freshmen bracket, Ford Duke, former Wichita High School North athlete, captured first place in the high jump, with a leap of 5 feet 10 inches. Ronnie Mahan got into a second place tie in the same event.

In varsity competition, Ron Summers took first place in the discus throw with a heave of 137 feet 11 inches. Don Graham tied for second place in the pole vault event. Curtis Hightower took second place in the broad jump by leaping 23 feet five inches.

There will be a dual meet tomorrow between the varsity and freshmen team members at old Shocker Stadium.

The next meet on the schedule will be Tuesday with Emporia State Teachers College. Track Coach C. A. (Ab) Bidwell said that he would take 22 men on the trip.

Club Sponsors Arts Contests

Kansas high school students will enter art and music competitions sponsored by the Kansas Federation of Women's Clubs to be held on the University campus Friday and Saturday.

The art exhibition and competition will be Friday, with exhibits hung in the Men's Gym. A general meeting and luncheon will also be held in the gym. Dr. Eugene McFarland, head of the art department, will speak on the "Benefits of Creative Experience" preceding the awarding of prizes.

During the afternoon, the club women and students will tour the art department, the Wichita Art Museum, and the Wichita Art Association.

Saturday, March 28, music auditions and competition in music for the students will be held in the auditorium.

"Cash awards and scholarships will be awarded as prizes," Dr. McFarland disclosed. "This is the first time these competitions have been held in Wichita," he added.

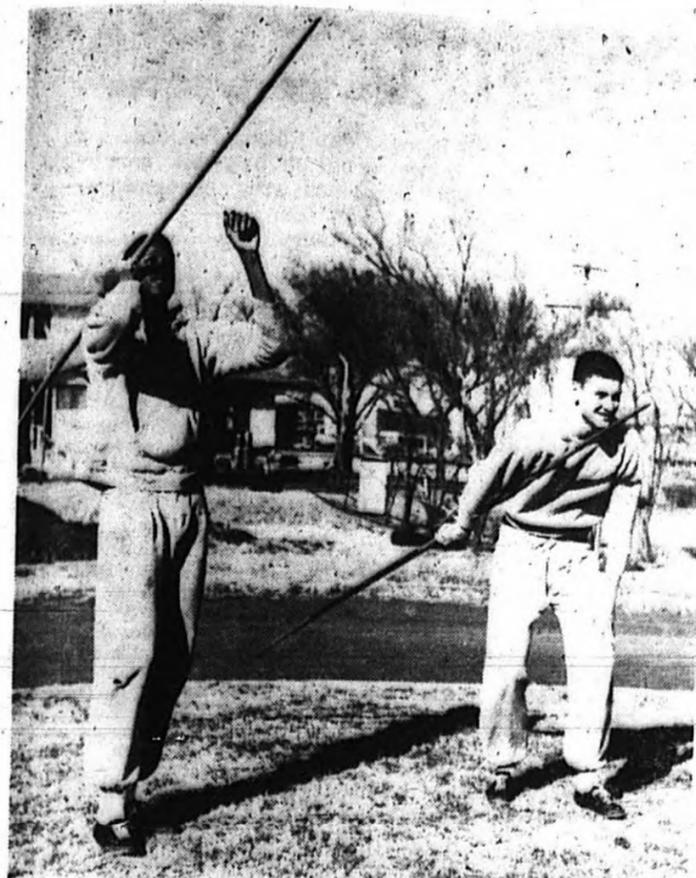

ROTC Rifle Matches To Close March 29

National ROTC Intercollegiate Rifle Matches will close March 29. At this time the tabulated scores will be sent to Fifth Army Headquarters at Chicago, Ill.

Final results will not be known for several months yet, according to Lt. Col. Robin G. Montgomery, instructor in military science and tactics.

The University Army ROTC Rifle team successfully competed in February preliminaries to enable them to compete during March in the National ROTC Intercollegiate Rifle matches.

Both the University of Kansas and Kansas State College had to bow to the University rifle team. University ranks 17th in a group of 53 colleges comprising the upper third in marksmanship with the M-1 rifle in the Fifth Army district.

Shocks Open Spring Grid Season April 9; Intrasquad Tilt May 9

Spring football practice will get underway for Shocker gridgers April 9, according to head football coach Jack Mitchell.

Mitchell explained that the conference ruling limits Valley teams to 20 practice sessions, over a period of 30 days. One of the grid mentor's chief worries is the weather, which has bogged down previous spring drills with excessive rains.

He said that most practice sessions will last from 1½ to 2 hours. He added that the Shocker coaching staff, Pete Tillman, George Bernhardt, and Dick Monroe, will spend most of their time directing gridgers in blocking, tackling, and passing fundamentals, both offensive and defensive.

Mitchell admitted that the Shockers will turn to the Oklahoma University version of the split-T formation next fall. He said that the Shocker footballers will have to play both offense and defense during spring practice, in order to prepare for next year's grueling schedule.

The Shockers have a nine-game schedule for the 1953 season with one tentative game with the University of Idaho, still in the negotiation stages.

4 Munies Named To All-Star Team

Four members of Coach Ralph Miller's successful 1952-53 Shocker cage squad were honored by being chosen by league coaches on the annual all-star Missouri Valley basketball team.

Cleo Littleton, the Shockers' high scoring forward, was chosen by the Valley coaches for the second successive year as a member of the All-Valley first team.

Jim McNeerney, Paul Scheer, and Gary Thompson received honorable mention honors on the team.

Other players nominated to the first squad were Tom Lillis, St. Louis, forward; Bob Mattick, Oklahoma A and M, center; Dick Boushka, St. Louis, and Dick Nunneley, Tulsa, at guards.

Henry P. (Hank) Iba, coach of the Oklahoma Aggies, was chosen as Valley "Coach of the Year," for the third time in five years.

Trinity Tries Twist . . .

Offers Public Service Degree

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., has announced establishment of a master's degree program in public service in a unique attempt to extend the liberal arts concept to graduate level education.

Dr. Arthur H. Hughes, acting president, stated recently that the new course will provide a broad non-professional group of studies to stimulate assessment of their public service by adults in government, business, and industry, whose vocations involve service, contact, and aid for the public.

"As a liberal arts college, Trinity cannot and should not attempt to give detailed vocational instruction in specific business or governmental activities," the announcement stated. "It can, however, present a coordinated program which will encourage broader and more effective thinking and action in the realm of public service."

Includes Government

The program will include requirements in government or economics, human relations, and social sciences, with a variety of courses fulfilling each requirement to provide a variety of studies which will best complement previous studies by enrollees with different backgrounds.

An elective course will give further opportunity for students to fill in gaps in their general education. All students will be required to take a public service seminar in which they will examine the relationship of their own vocation to the public interest, and will coordinate the courses of their individual graduate program.

The new program for part-time students may be completed in a minimum of two or a maximum of six years.

Complete In Two To Six Years
The new program was developed under the supervision of Dr. Laurence L. Barber, chairman of the department of government. According to Prof. Robert M. Vogel, secretary of the graduate committee, "Many persons engaged in public service do not wish to specialize in graduate study to the extent that our usual departmental majors require."

"They need, instead, a well-organized program of mature work on the graduate level which will enable them to build their knowledge, fill in gaps in previous educational and professional background, and coordinate their thinking and subject material, always with the high concept of public service in mind."
