Activities, High Grade Averages Mark 5 Outstanding Senior Men

Five senior men have been named to the Men's Honor Five, the University honorary organization for men active in campus organizations and maintaining high grade averages.

A speech major was selected, Lance Hayes, active on the KM-UW radio staff and currently working as station manager. He is also a member of University Players and has appeared in numerous plays. His grade average is 3.1.

Two Engineers Honored

Bana Kartasamita, an aeronautical engineering major with a 3.2 grade average, was tapped. He is the senior class president, an SGA congressman, and a member of ASTE. He is also a member of IAS, International Students Club, and Phi Mu Epsilon. He will serve as secretary for the Honor Men.

Art Larson, art editor of Mikrokosmos and president of a campus political party, also was chosen. He is majoring in industrial engineering, has a 2.5 grade average, and will be the group's president.

Also tapped was Dennis Prouty, Student Forum Board president, a member of Beta Theta Pi, and former Sunflower staff reporter. He is an English major with a 3.486 grade average.

Selected by '60 Group

Serving as a student court justice and president of Young Democrats, Frank Vannerson who is majoring in economics and has a 3.3 grade average, also was elected to the group. He is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha.

The five men were selected by last year's Honor Men with a board of review.

SGA Voting Date Change Is Approved

The annual all-campus political election will be held at "a more favorable date" this spring by virtue of the overwhelming approval given to a SGA constitutional amendment in the Tuesday vote.

The amendment, calling for the dates of the general election to be moved back, was passed, 169-8. Any amendment to the Student Government constitution needs student body approval.

Election Commissioner Woody Thompson, (CHANGE), said after the count was taken: "Although the turnout was very small, I'm happy there are still some students interested enough to vote."

The elections, originally set for late March, will now be held April 13 and 14. Sedgwick County voting machines will be used in the election, according to Thompson.

CAC Plans Picnic In Fairmount Park

The CAC is sponsoring a "nice weather" picnic in Fairmount Park, Sunday, March 19.

All students are invited to come to the informal picnic from 4-6 p.m. Food may be purchased at the picnic.

Official WU Enrollment Figure Set at 5,186 for Semester

The official University enrollment count for second semester stands at 5,186 students.

The official figures, released Wednesday afternoon by Dr. Worth Fletcher, registrar, shows a drop of 471 from first semester and 178 from second semester a year ago.

Decrease Cause: Tuition

The marked decrease has been attributed to the continued raise in tuition over the past few semesters.

Of the seven colleges and schools which make-up the University, the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences once again lists the heaviest enrollment with 1,449 students.

Following in order of size are:

School of Engineering 788

College of Business Administration 745
Graduate School 674
College of Education 656
College of Adult Education 492
College of Fine Arts 382

The total includes 3,486 students on the 15 semester hour basis and 4,358 on the 12 semester hour basis.

Majority from Wichita

Also, of the 5,186 enrollment total, 4,020 come from Wichita and 1,166 from out of the city. An enrollee is considered a resident student if he lives within the city boundaries and a non-resident if he lives outside the limits.

The figures also show that University women "enjoy" more than a 3 to 1 ratio. There are 3,806 men enrolled this semester compared to 1,380 women.

In the class breakdown the figures put the freshmen class with the highest enrollment at 1,129. The sophomores have 1,087 students; seniors 1,024; juniors 692; and graduates 674. There are 492 enrolled in Adult Education classes and also 88 special students.

Veteran enrollment is 488.

AWS to Vote Today

"All women students are urged to vote in the AWS elections today," said Sidney Watrous, AWS president. Voting will be from 8:50 a.m. -1 p.m. in the west corridor of the CAC.

Ancient Heritage Marks St. Patrick Celebrations

By ELVIRA Q'VALENZUELA
News Editor

Begorra and begosh and it's St. Patrick's Day!

It's the day of the green and the feast of St. Patrick. It'll be a celebration for the Kennedy's, O'Brien's, and O'Harra's as Ireland's national holiday is celebrated the world over.

The feast day honors the 5th century Christian missionary to Ireland who founded more than 300 churches and personally baptized more than 12,000 people. He was also responsible for founding numerous schools in Ireland.

As for the flurry of shamrocks that make the scene on St. Patrick's: they're symbolic of the Trinity.

To St. Patrick goes the distinction of making Ireland Christian and saving Europe from the barbarians through his contributions to education.

So if you run into many wearers of green today, take it in stride. They're not members of any known subversive group. And if your patron saint is St. Patrick—you'll know it's no blarney!

May Queen Voting Set For March 24

In order that one of the six candidates may wear the May Queen crown, students are to vote March 24.

Voting is scheduled from 8:50 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the FAC, CAC, and Neff Hall. The results of the election will be announced immediately after the votes are counted.

Students must present their ID cards in order to vote. Large portraits will be displayed at each voting booth, so that voters may select their choice.

Those vying for the crown are Myrna Schenck, Delta Gamma; Marlene Dirks, Grace Wilkie Hall; Sidney Watrous, Alpha Chi Omega; Henrietta Nye, Gamma Phi Beta; and Diana Brewer, Delta Delta Delta and Beta Theta Pi.

High School Speech Fair Starts Today

The University speech department is hosting the annual Speech Festival today and tomorrow.

Students from 39 high schools in Harvey, Butler, Cowley, Kingman, Sumner, Harper, and Sedgwick counties are entered in the Festival sponsored by the Kansas State High School Activities Association.

Participants will enter competition in one-act plays, duet acting, humorous and dramatic readings, original orations, extemporaneous speaking, poetry, prose, and informative speaking. The plays, 25 in all, will be held in the Commons Auditorium and the individual events, 144 readings, will be held on the second floor of the CAC.

Entrants receiving a one-rating will be eligible to enter the state contest. The public and University students are invited.

Clayton Hawes is serving as chairman for the event. Marci Welsh, speech sophomore, is coordinator of individual events, while Patti Woolsey, speech sophomore, is coordinator of drama.

9-8 Vote In Comm. Kills Bill

The Kansas House of Representatives State Affairs Committee wrecked the University's state aid express Tuesday by a vote of 9 to 8.

The action followed a Republican party caucus on Monday night where the controversial proposal failed to garner needed support. The meeting, instead, recommended support of the recent resolution authored by Rep. Odd Williams (R-Lawrence), calling for an additional two-year study of the University's state aid needs.

The caucus also recommended that the University be given some state aid—around $178,000—for the coming academic year. This figure is some $200,000 short of the amount the University would have been receiving had the original state support measure passed.

New Proposal Has Support

The new proposal for state aid should have a bright outlook since the opponents of the original bill are in favor of the latest recommendation. The new plan was scheduled before the State Affairs Committee late in the week.

In Tuesday's Committee meeting, the state aid bill mustered support from two Republicans and five Democrats.

Following the original bill's defeat, Gov. John Anderson, Jr., voiced support of state aid for the University. He said that he could see very little value in the proposed two-year study of the issue.

Aid in Future

However, he did point out that state aid for the University now might pave the way for the school to be taken into the state system.

At any rate, Senate Bill No. 139, passed by the Kansas Senate on Feb. 23 by a vote of 23 to 15, has now been officially killed. It has been replaced by the two-year study period and a possibility of some aid for the school for the next academic year.

Budgetary Matters Top Lengthy SGA Meeting

By JIM COLLIER
Managing Editor

At the outset of the SGA meeting Tuesday night, congressmen were presented with the proverb, "Real difficulties can be overcome; it is only the imaginary ones that are unconquerable." And after nearly three hours of extensive legislative labor, the campus leaders knew well the meaning of that adage.

A dozen items of business were put before the Student Government members. The last entry on the long list, the proposed SGA budget, brought on the only real difficulty.

$3,325 Allocated

By the time a lengthy debate ended, $3,325 had passed through SGA hands in the form of allotments made to various campus organizations for expenses.

Arguments arose when several of the representatives fired questions at the SGA Finance Committee and organization chairmen present concerning detailed expenses of the groups.

The first allotment request came from AWS. The group asked for $500 but only after a tedious question and answer period did the organization get what they wanted.

SGA Debates AWS

As part of its budget AWS wanted SGA money for a Parnassus picture spread, a $50 scholarship offered by the group, and a sizable amount to send representatives to a national convention. SGA members took issue with these three budget items.

Representative Bob Cressler, (CHANGE), took a stand for Better Luck Next Time

The University's state aid fire winked out early this week as the state Republican caucus decided to turn thumbs down on the proposal.

It was a bitter pill for the University—especially with hopes for state aid at an all-time high.

Never before had the chances for support looked brighter. The fire started early last fall when the Republican platform endorsed state aid for the University and Gov. John Anderson, Jr., personally crusaded in its behalf. In November, the GOP's were decisively swept into Topeka and things looked even brighter.

On Feb. 23, the Kansas Senate passed the state aid bill by a 23 to 15 majority, with Sen. August Lauterbach (R-Colby), leading the firefighters.

In the House, on the other hand, well-organized opposition formed quickly. Representatives from Lawrence and Manhattan began to attack the bill on all sides and Senator Lauterbach continued his verbal barrage.

The bill soon floundered in the House State Affairs Committee where hearings on the matter were held last week. The coup de grace was performed Monday night when the Republicans, supposedly the supporters of state aid, axed the measure.

Logic was apparently abandoned by the caucus when the group voted to propose $178,000 in state aid for the University for the next academic year. State aid without state control? We understood this could not be done.

Also, what is the reasoning behind granting the school immediate state aid—yet the bill for this practical purpose was thrown out? The whole procedure is beginning to look like so much legislative double-talk.

Governor Anderson said Wednesday that he could see very little value to the additional study because "the facts are pretty well known now." This would seem to uphold Rep. A. F. Casado's charge that the two-year study period was merely a defensive move to halt progress on the University's state aid measure.

A cry heard often during the latter days of the struggle was "we haven't had time to look into the problem and become acquainted with the facts."

State aid for Wichita University was one of the planks of the Republican party platform in Kansas. It was the very platform that Republican Representatives were on record as being in favor of. Yet they didn't even become acquainted with the issue.

Are platforms merely flags to wave at the public and then discard after the election? Apparently so, since the GOP's bitterly opposed the move in both houses.

The present plan calling for $178,000 in direct state aid for the University will be a great help to the school—if, indeed, it passes. Less than two legislative weeks remain and it must be agreed to by both the House and Senate.

The word from Topeka is that chances look good for passage of the new proposal. For the sake of the University we hope they're right.

Half a loaf is better than no state aid at all.

As An Outsider

Dear John, We All Thank You

By RON SMITH

I should like to take this space this week for a letter to Gov. John Anderson, Jr., concerning a few thoughts arising from the student body.

First of all Governor, I should like to thank you for your unswerving support of the state aid bill. We of the student body know how much time and trouble you went to in support of your campaign promises. We realize that in the position of Governor, which calls for integrity, honor, and strength, that you have honestly and earnestly striven for our cause.

We of the student body would also like to thank you for your skillful handling of the legislature in support of our cause. It is hard to estimate just how much you have done for the future of our school.

Secondly, I should like to thank you, and perhaps offer a word of consolation. There is no more lonely position than that of a leader. I realize that even though you were for our bill, that there must have been certain constituents of the legislator's that hindered passage. You can rest assured that the entire mind of the student body is centered upon you and your noble cause.

In your short term of office, you unflinchingly supported any legislation that would help the general good of the state. Please remember, sir, that we realize all that you have done. Those of us who cannot show our true feelings in any other way, perhaps can, someday, show a token of our esteem when we vote.

Thirdly, I should like to say, that we here at the University will do all in our power to facilitate any further investigation into our school's standing.

We are quite happy to see that you have seen fit, through the Legislature, to permit two fine bulwarks of education, Kansas University and Kansas State University, to assist in the unbiased two years of research.

In regard to the conflict which arose regarding the bill, we feel that you acted entirely to your capacity for leadership. Never have I seen a cause more nobly fought for.

I did want to drop you a line to let you know that regardless of what the general consensus of opinion may be, that all of us in Wichita realize that you did all in your power to help us.

We are not quick to forget favors. I am sure that you will reap the harvest of your unswerving allegiance a thousandfold. Rest assured that we shall do all in our power to see that you get all the attention you deserve.

As I said before, it is really hard to estimate how much you have done for the future of our school. Thanks again.

I WAS A TEEN-AGE SLIDE RULE

In a recent learned journal (Mad) the distinguished board chairman (Ralph "Hot-Lips" Sigafoos) of one of our most important American corporations (the Arf Mechanical Dog Co.) wrote a trenchant article in which he pinpointed our gravest national problem: the lack of culture among science graduates.

Mr. Sigafoos's article, it must be emphasized, was in no sense derogatory. He stated quite clearly that the science student, what with his gruelling curriculum in physics, math, and chemistry, can hardly be expected to find time to study the arts too. What Mr. Sigafoos deplors—indeed, what we all deplore—is the lopsided result of today's science courses: graduates who can build a bridge but can't compose a concerto, who know Planck's Constant but not Botticelli's Venus, who are familiar with Fraunhofer's lines but not with Schiller's.

Mr. Sigafoos can find no solution to this hideous imbalance. I, however, believe there is one—and a very simple one. It is this: if students of science don't have time to come to the arts, then we must let the arts come to students of science.

He will know that he is a fulfilled man...

For example, it would be a very easy thing to teach poetry and music right along with physics. Students, instead of merely being called upon to recite in physics class, would instead be required to rhyme their answers and set them to familiar tunes—like, for instance, The Colonel Bogey March. Thus recitations would not only be chock-full of important facts but would, at the same time, expose the student to the aesthetic delights of great music. Here, try it yourself. You all know The Colonel Bogey March. Come, sing along with me:

Physics
Is what we learn in class.
Einstein
Said energy is mass.
Newton
Is highfalutin
And Pascal's a rascal. So's Boyle.

Do you see how much more broadening, how much more uplifting to learn physics this way? Of course you do. What? You want another chorus? By all means:

Leyden
He made the Leyden jar.
Trolley
He made the Trolley car.
Curie
Rode in a surrey,
And Diesel's a weasel. So's Boyle.

Once the student has mastered The Colonel Bogey March, he can go on to more complicated melodies like Death and Transfiguration, the Eroica, and Love Me Tender.

And when the student, loaded with science and culture, leaves the classroom and lights his Marlboro, how much more he will enjoy that filter, that flavor, that pack or box! Because there will no longer be an unease gnawing at his soul, no longer a little voice within him repeating that he is culturally a dolt. He will know—know joyously—that he is a fulfilled man, a whole man, and he will bask and revel in the pleasure of his Marlboro as a colt rolls in new grass—content, complete, truly educated—a credit to his college, to himself, and to his tobacconist!

© 1961 Max Shulman

And while he is rolling, colt-wise, in the new grass, perhaps he would stop long enough to try a new cigarette from the makers of Marlboro—unfiltered, king-size Philip Morris Commander. Welcome aboard!

AWS saying that it was a worthy campus organization. But certain Congress members wondered whether it was worthy of SGA, in turn, to give them money for a yearbook picture, a scholarship (which one congressman said the SGA could just as well offer), and a journey to a national convention.

The Debate Society, asking only $400 to supplement part of its numerous expenses, got all that was requested with little question. Mel Moorhouse, debate coach, appeared before the SGA to answer any questions.

Debate Budgets Compared

Moorhouse startled the Congress when he related comparative debate budgets of schools around the area. "Even Hutchinson Junior College has a bigger budget than we do," he said.

Pep Council, which requested $600, was given only $500 because SGA felt that freshmen cheerleaders did not need new uniforms each year—which they have been getting in recent years.

Considerable discussion came about when the Orchesis budget request was introduced. The modern dance group asked for $20 from SGA to have a picture in the Parnassus. One member who objected was labelled, "uncultural." After the arguments were heard the Congress decided that Orchesis would have its photo in the yearbook, however.

SNEA was allocated $75 and Homecoming and Hippodrome $600 each to round out the budget requests.

Other Items Conquered

Preceding the budget problems SGA dealt with 11 other items which were more "conquerable."

Academic Committee Chairman Alan Gow, (CHANGE), introduced another project the fast-moving committee is about to set in motion. The current project is the design of a questionnaire to evaluate the student's appreciation of University courses and faculty.

Fact-Finding and Investigation Committee head Cressler, introduced a bill that would establish a set field of operation for the SGA and the CAC Governing Board concerning Homecoming and Hippodrome. Cressler's bill was met with favor by the entire body. Bana Kartasasmita, (BPOC), who chaired the Senior Week program, was congratulated by President Phil Saunsaucie for a job well done. Kartasasmita said that over 400 seniors ordered announcements this year for graduation. "This was 200 more than ordered them last year—no doubt because of the lower prices," he said.

President Saunsaucie told the Congress that the state-aid trip to Topeka was called off for obvious reasons. A flurry of reaction then erupted. Gov. John Anderson, who the SGA members felt, had turned his back on the University for not keeping with campaign promises concerning the incorporation of the University into the state system, was attacked by the group.

Vice-President Woody Thompson, (CHANGE), blasted the University's Buildings and Grounds unit for letting the campus take on the appearance of "one giant dandelion," as he put it. "They should alleviate our campus' dirty complexion—it really looks bad," he said.

Part III Academic Cheating Discussed

(Editor's Note: This is the third and final article of a series prepared to take a broad look at academic cheating. The first article defined academic cheating, the second one pointed out the methods, results, and possible causes, and this article will attempt to bring out means of preventing the problem.)

By ALAN D. GOW

Chairman SGA Academic Committee

The students themselves must take an active part and, in reality, help themselves. They must refuse to be an accessory to academic deception and in some cases it may be necessary to report deception to the teacher, but without giving any names—only how and when the deception took place.

And perhaps more important the students must learn to develop a sincere appreciation for those courses that are taught well and have been well prepared by the teacher, for interest in the classroom is not a unilateral situation.

On the other hand, the teacher must show an interest in the courses he teaches; part of his interest being reflected in the amount of preparation for class. Also the teacher must take appropriate steps to reduce the physical possibilities of deception such as using essay exams rather than the easy to grade, easy to cheat on, so called objective exams.

Where the objective exam cannot be replaced, an effort should be made to change and re-organize the exams substantially each semester so that old exams are useless. In addition some attention to class room organization and activity may help to boost a student's resistance to cheating.

The elimination of arbitrary grading scales will help take the pressure off the student to obtain a set amount of points and allow him to concentrate on the real purposes of the course work.

The punishment of those caught deceiving is not only important to the particular student involved but is also important in holding the respect of the rest of the students, for they will know then that their grade will not be affected by someone else's dishonest actions.

The school administration can also help in this problem and in some cases may be the key to initiate action among the faculty.

They can further help by standing behind the faculty's discipline actions and resist pressures to raise grades or show favoritism to certain students, or groups of students.

The author must admit that this series of articles does not show the complete problem of academic deception, but attempts only to point out part of the problem, some of the possible causes, and some of the possible steps to correct the problem. And it is readily conceded that the unilateral action on the part of the faculty, the students, or the administration would not bring about any appreciable change in the situation.

But the students are going to start to do what they can, through Student Government and through the Academic Committee.
