Shockers, Cincy In Vital Tilt

The Wheatshockers will attempt to pull their second upset victory over the Cincinnati Bearcats this season when they meet them in UC Armory-Fieldhouse tomorrow night.

The Shocks dumped the Bearcats 52-51 earlier in the season. This victory ended a Bearcat winning streak which went back to last season. The Bearcats now own a lengthy winning streak on their home court which the Shocks will attempt to break.

The Shockers are somewhat weakened due to the ankle injury of Gene Wiley. Wiley may play in the Cat contest, but his effectiveness may be limited a great deal.

The Bearcats are greatly improved over their early season play. Their two outstanding sophomores, 6-foot 5-inch Ron Bonham and 6-foot 8-inch George Wilson, saw limited action when the Shocks upset the Cats in Wichita. Wilson and Bonham are now regulars with double-figure scoring.

Although there is still a chance for a three-way MVC playoff for the title, the odds are heavily against such. The Shocks would have to down Cincy and hope for a St. Louis victory over Bradley. Then they would have to take their remaining home games with North Texas and Tulsa to stay in the picture.

ROTC Queen Entries Asked

Today is the last day that queen candidate applications for the annual Military Ball will be accepted.

Twelve finalists will be selected March 1, one will be selected for Army Queen and another for Air Force Queen. Candidates must submit an 8 by 10 photograph, and include name, address, phone number, class, college, and the name of the sponsoring organization.

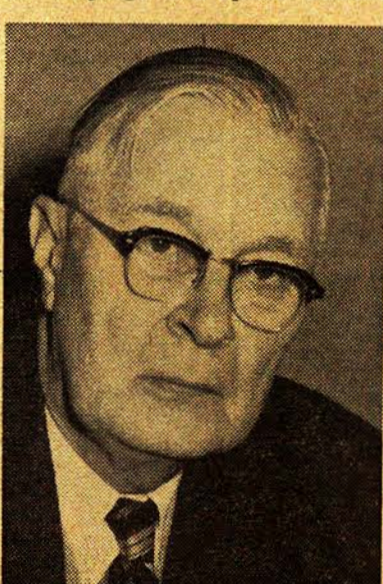

Applications must be turned in at the Armory by noon today.

3-Year Grant Given Institute For Cerebral Palsy Research

By MARY JANE DUNLAP
News Editor

Dr. Orvis C. Irwin, research professor of Logopedics, has recently been awarded a three-year grant of $10,000 per year by the National Institutes of Health.

The grant will allow Dr. Irwin to expand his research program on the language and speech abilities of cerebral palsy children. The $30,000 stipend also permits Dr. Irwin to train a research assistant on the post-doctoral level in the Department of Logopedics, and at the Institute of Logopedics.

"HELL YES I'M A SENIOR" badges will go on sale Monday, but senior officers, left, Gil Graham and Wally Duerksen, are offering a sneak preview to these anxious seniors. The badges will sell for 25 cents.

Senior Week Starts Monday, To Climax at Tulsa-WU Game

Next week seniors will take command as they kick-off the annual Senior Week, with a Senior Coffee and culminate with a Senior cheering section at the Tulsa game March 3.

Identification of the upperclassmen won't be too difficult as the "Hell Yes I'm A Senior" buttons will again go on sale at a booth in the main hall of the CAC Monday, according to Gil Graham senior class president.

Graduation announcements will also be sold at this booth which will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost of the announcements range from 75 cents for leather booklets to 45 cents for cardboard booklets. Senior buttons will be sold for 25 cents.

Graham said that all seniors wishing to sit in a Senior Section at the Tulsa game should turn in their ID cards at this booth by Tuesday in order to get the tickets on time. All ID cards would be returned at this booth throughout the remainder of the week.

Tuesday morning all seniors will be feted at a Senior Coffee in the Provincial Room of the CAC from 10 a.m. until noon.

"At the Tulsa game we will try to sit in a Senior Section. Angel Flight will march at the half-time

CAC Offers Film, Bridge, Chess Tonight

The CAC now offers quarter movies, bridge, and chess to build campus atmosphere on Friday evenings.

The various events are being undertaken, according to Gordon Temple, Vice-President of the Student Governing Board, for students without cars living on or near campus, however all students are invited.

Tonight, "10,000 Bedrooms" starring Dean Martin and Anna Maria Alberghetti will be presented at 8 p.m. in the FAC Concert Hall.

The CAC general entertainment committee will sponsor this "two-bit flick" shown in technicolor along with a "Road Runner" cartoon.

Students, faculty, staff, and the general public will be admitted at 25 cents a person.

Other activities include the Duplicate Bridge Club which will meet tonight in the CAC Dining Area at 7:30 p.m.

The bridge meeting is under the direction of Bob Conklin, certified master bridge teacher, and is open to students, faculty, and staff for 25 cents per person, and $1 to the general public.

The Chess Club will meet in the CAC Conference Area 2 at 7:30 p.m. Chess boards will be provided. There is no admittance charge.

Press Queen Forms Due

Today is the deadline for submitting applications for the annual Press Queen contest sponsored by the Sunflower.

Applications must be in the Sunflower office, Rm. 005, Commons Building, by 5 p.m. An 8 by 10 inch photograph of the candidate must accompany each application.

Sophomore, junior, and senior women who have a 2.000 grade point average and are enrolled for a minimum of 12 semester hours, are eligible to compete. The winner will represent the University at the Drake Relays queen contest.

SGA Agenda Filled; Election Dates Set

By DAVE HANKS
Managing Editor

Topping the agenda at the SGA meeting Tuesday night was the announcement of SGA general election dates and filing deadlines.

Election dates of April 5-6 were proposed by Bob Hunt, election commissioner, with filing of candidates starting at 8 a.m. March 9, and ending at 5 p.m. March 19. According to Hunt, each party and candidate has to file an application to run in the election.

Interest Report Given
A general report on Interestfest was given by Don Coulter, Engineering representative. He said a pavilion type display has been planned for the United States booth. Woody Thompson, SGA president, said two types of displays had been considered for the U. S. entry. Thompson also said that Friends University was working with the group on the American booth.

A booth will be set up from 8 a.m. till noon today, and Monday to help recruit students interested in working on the American booth or other displays that will be entered in Interestfest.

CAC To Handle 'Hippo'

Joyce Allegro, proportional representative, gave a short report on Hippodrome. She said Hippodrome responsibilities were being divided between three CAC Board members. "This is the 50th anniversary for Hippodrome and much emphasis will be put on this fact," Miss Allegro added.

A balance of $544 was left over from Homecoming, and SGA voted to transfer this money to help defray Hippodrome expenses.

Joan Roe, treasurer, reported that SGA was planning next year's budget. She said, "Any organization that wants money from SGA must have their request in the SGA office by March 6. The amount and reason for the request must also be submitted," according to Mrs. Roe.

The next scheduled SGA meeting will be on March 6.

DESIRE UNDER THE ELMS, Eugene O'Neill's classic tragedy will be presented in the Commons Auditorium March 1-3. Playing the lead roles in the play will be Piet Knetsch, and Jean Ann Stephens who are pictured above.

O'Neill Tragedy Poses Psychological Problems

By SALLY KARLEY
Staff Writer

"Desire Under the Elms", a tragedy of passion where conflicts run the emotional gamut, has posed many psychological problems for the cast, according to Mary Jane Teall, director.

"The chief problem in directing this play is to get actors to believe what they are doing on stage, and to build within themselves, through action, imagination, and concentration, the feelings of greed, loneliness, hatred, and the desire of the characters in the play and the conflicts by which they are torn," said Mrs. Teall commenting on the tragedy by Eugene O'Neill.

Portraying the son, Eben, Lloyd Thompson had to thoroughly analyze the conflicts of a young man torn between love and devotion to his dead mother and desire for his stepmother. Thompson said that he has had to "understand the motivations for what Eben does and to get underneath the character by putting himself in a similar role.

Piet Knetsch, playing Ephraim Cabot, has needed to mold his body, voice, and nervous system into that of a 76-year-old 'giant of a man', "a hard man who believes in a hard God."

Knetsch remarked, "I drew upon the memory of my old grandfather in the Netherlands, a very strong man.

Jean Ann Stevens, portraying Abbie the step-mother, a beautiful 35-year-old farm woman, has had to get "underneath the character" to understand a woman who at first, lusts for the land, and later for the stepson.

Abandoning their own speech for that of New England farmers, Brad Hammond and Wilbur Love portray the two older brothers enslaved by the land.

Hammond said, "I found myself observing other people to add certain traits to the character, which I would not practice in my daily routine. As I began to use these new traits, 'picking my teeth, slurping my coffee, and walking with shoulders bent to the plow,' physical changes seemed to come about as I sat and moved and suddenly a new character came to life."

Production dates are March 1-3.

Letters to the Editor

Dis-satisfaction greets us daily on campus, locally, nationally, and internationally. As college students we should be informed enough to have opinions, and to be able to intelligently express them.

The column entitled "The Readers Speak" is open to all. We not only invite, we encourage you to let us know what your opinions are.

Specifications for letters are: they must carry the complete name and school or title or address of the writer; letters of less than 300 words will be given preference and all letters are subject to condensation and editing; and letters containing obvious mis-statements or lacking in good taste and fair play will be rejected.

We also wish to initiate a new policy in the matter of interpretive and explanatory feature articles. Any student desiring to do a "think piece" of interest to college students will be invited to do so. We also encourage students and faculty members to submit reviews on books, plays, and the other arts.

This request to the student body for contributions is not offered because we feel our own staff to be inadequate, but because we are interested in giving the campus a stimulating well-rounded newspaper. We feel this is possible only by contributions from all areas and schools within the University.

The final verdict of the effectiveness of The Sunflower will not rest solely on the shoulders of the staff.

Sunflower Series

Final Interpretive Article Supports Journalistic Staff

By FRAN SMITH
Editor-in-Chief

This is the final installment of a series of three articles offered by The Sunflower to clarify the Mortar Board document of Feb. 12.

Item 6: Who Can Be a Sunflower Editor?

Mortar Board: "Why then if the Journalism Department is so ingrown couldn't there be an editor-in-chief from another department or college. From a further interview it was suggested that a student editor be selected who has intellectual curiosity, leadership on campus to command the respect of the students, and the drive to learn his position as a journalist. As the situation now stands, with such a limited choice of journalism students, the line of succession is necessarily slim and the results shallow."

The Mortar Board document declares the Department of Journalism to be "ingrown" so much that there can not be an editor-in-chief of the Sunflower from some other department. It also infers, that because of a mass communications major, the contributions will be "shallow."

The reason that few music, geology, or engineering majors achieve the top positions is because few seniors are willing to devote the long hours or to receive the small remuneration involved in the day-after-day production of a newspaper.

To want to be an editor is one thing, but to have the knowledge of effective and responsible journalism is another. These areas of knowledge and understanding can be acquired from one to two sources: either hard experience on the college-level newspaper or in the classes administered by the subdivision of the University best qualified to offer such knowledge and understanding, the Department of Journalism.

To date, the number of non-journalistically oriented students who have aspired to be editors, with the proper qualifications, has been small. Many student journalists find it necessary to enter the professional field as part-time workers, long before graduation. Thus, they eliminate themselves from the ranks of potential Sunflower staff members. Both these factors influence the limited number of applicants for positions.

Item 7: The Journalist and the Board of Student Publications

Mortar Board: "Finally, there has been a subtle shift in Student Publications Board membership. The numbers balance 7 to 4 with the Journalism Department's influence evident only in the two advisors and the two editors."

The Mortar Board document infers the very presence of journalistically-oriented students on the Board of Student Publications limits and retards the Board.

In fact, the broadest and most liberal aspect of the Board's present policy manual were those conceived and prepared by journalistically-oriented Board members. Through their efforts, the liberal philosophic concepts regarding the student newspaper were incorporated.

The Face of Pathos

By RON SMITH
Sunflower Columnist

Every person has one incident that stands out above all others in importance during their lives. The one incident that made the biggest impression on me and will continue to make an impression happened when I was ten years old. It was my first meeting with the face of pathos.

I had gone with my mother to visit an actress friend. This lady had once held a high position on the stage and retired to a small town to live with her husband and daughter. Fortune playing its game as it does, this woman was left with a scrapbook full of memories and her daughter, who had been blinded in an accident.

I don't remember how her husband was killed. I just remember mother telling me about how sad this lady was and how her little daughter would like someone her own age to talk to. As we drove along in the warm spring day, I tried to imagine what the actress would look like.

I had only seen actresses in movies and they all seemed to be very beautiful ladies with plumes and furs. It would certainly be thrilling, I thought, to meet one in person.

Her house was on a secluded street in Hutchinson. I remember when we first walked in how dark it was. It seemed as if there had not been any light in there for many years. My mother and I were shown into the parlor by the maid and I was fairly shaking with anticipation.

When the actress appeared at the door, I was a little confused. She had on a tight purple dress, with a big diamond pin. Her hair was straight and needed combing. She walked into the room with a hesitating step and sat down opposite me on the couch.

"This is Mrs. Adams," said my mother.

"How do you do," I said.

"What a charming boy... a charming boy... a delightful boy."

She started to hug me, but her breath was awful and stale. Suddenly her whole face melted into one hideous smile. Her eyes bulged and her red cheeks covered her mouth. "Its my heart," she said. "I need my medicine."

My mother called the maid and they fixed Mrs. Adams medicine. They poured it from a bottle into a tea cup.

"Ronnie... why don't you go meet Sandra," said my mother.

The maid took me into another room where a little girl with brown hair and blue eyes sat. She was holding a big furry bear in her lap. "Did you come to play with me?" she asked.

"Yes," I answered. She didn't look any different, I thought. What did being blind mean?

"I don't have many friends," she said. "I'm awfully glad you came today."

I said that I was glad to come today. I asked her about school and what she did and what she liked.

We talked for almost an hour and then she started to show me some dolls that she had been working on. As she got up from the chair, she fell and burned her hand on the radiator.

She began crying and in an instant, her mother burst into the room. "What have you done to my baby?" she demanded. She ran over and put her arms around her daughter. "There there... it's going to be all right."

I saw the strange look in her eyes and then I noticed that her dress was dirty and had spots on it. Her breath smelled like that bottle that I had seen downstairs. She started to stand up and fell. My mother helped her up and took her out. "She's tired," my mother said.

Sandra sat looking at the wall. There were tears in her eyes. "Mother's sick," she said. "Mother gets sick a lot."

THE MANY LOVES OF THORWALD DOCKSTADER

When Thorwald Dockstader—sophomore, epicure, and sportsman—first took up smoking, he did not simply choose the first brand of cigarettes that came to hand. He did what any sophomore, epicure, and sportsman would do: he sampled several brands until he found the very best—a mild, rich, flavorful smoke—an endless source of comfort and satisfaction—a smoke that never palled, never failed to please—a smoke that age could not wither nor custom stale—a filter cigarette with an unfiltered taste—Marlboro, of course!

Similarly, when Thorwald took up girls, he did not simply select the first one who came along. He sampled. First he dated an English literature major named Elizabeth Barrett Schwartz, a wisp of a girl with large, luminous eyes and a soul that shimmered with a pale, unearthly beauty. Trippingly, trippingly, she walked with Thorwald upon the beach and sat with him behind a windward dune and listened to a conch shell and sighed sweetly and took out a little gold pencil and a little morocco notebook and wrote a little poem:

*I will lie upon the shore,
I will be a dreamer,
I will feel the sea once more,
Pounding on my femur.*

Thorwald's second date was with a physical education major named Peaches Glendower, a broth of a girl with a ready smile and a size 18 neck. She took Thorwald down to the cinder track where they did 100 laps to open the pores. Then they played four games of squash, six sets of tennis, 36 holes of golf, nine innings of one o'cat, six chukkers of lacrosse, and a mile and a quarter of leapfrog. Then they went ten rounds with eight ounce gloves and had heaping bowls of whey and exchanged a firm handshake and went home to their respective whirlpool baths.

He did not simply select the first one who came along...

Thorwald's final date was with a golden-haired, creamy-browed, green-eyed, red-lipped, full-calved girl named Totsi Sigafos. Totsi was not majoring in anything. As she often said, "Gee whillikers, what's college for anyhow—to fill your head full of icky old facts, or to discover the shining essence that is YOU?"

Totsi started the evening with Thorwald at a luxurious restaurant where she consumed her own weight in Cornish rock hen. From there they went to a deluxe movie palace where Totsi had popcorn with butter. Then she had a bag of chocolate covered raisins—also with butter. Then they went to a costly ballroom and did the Twist till dawn, tipping the band every eight bars. Then they went to a Chinese restaurant where Totsi, unable to translate the menu, solved her problem by ordering one of everything. Then Thorwald took her to the women's dorm, boosted her in the window, and went downtown to wait for the employment office to open.

While waiting, Thorwald thought over all of his girls and came to a sensible decision. "I think," he said to himself, "that I will stick with Marlboros. I am not rich enough for girls."

© 1962 Max Shulman

Marlboro, however, is rich enough for anybody. It takes mighty good makin's to give you unfiltered taste in a filter cigarette. That's the flavor you get in the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia. You get a lot to like.

250 Seniors Visit WU

Between 200 and 250 high school seniors visited the university campus on Tuesday, according to Laura Cross, assistant registrar.

The students, from North, South, and West High Schools, assembled at 1:30 p.m. in the FAC Concert Hall. Dr. James Sours, Dean of the University College, welcomed them to the campus. They also heard a music number and were welcomed by SGA President Woody Thompson.

Sports Spindle

By ROGER DOYLE
Sports Editor

The entire complexion of the MVC basketball race was changed this week by the dismissal of Joe Strawder, 6' 8" pivot from Bradley University.

Apparently the action was taken after Strawder and two freshmen ballplayers attended a party that was more than they had bargained for. The administration stated that it was for the good of the school, but I'll gamble that there are many in Peoria, Ill., who violently disagree with the administration's viewpoint in the matter.

Of course, as in all matters of this kind, the administration has the final word on the case so the Bradley Braves are left badly weakened by Strawder's loss.

The effect was quite noticeable in the Braves play against the Cincinnati Bearcats Monday night. With Strawder, the Braves were given an even chance to beat the Bearcats on their home floor. Without Strawder, the Braves were largely out-played all evening.

The Braves have yet to play in Kiel Auditorium against the St. Louis Billikins. They will have to beat the giant-killing Bills to assure themselves a chance at the title. This is no easy task as can be attested by the Shockers.

DO-OR-DIE GAME

Saturday night's game is the do-or-die game for the Shocks. A win would give them a mathematical chance at the title and a loss would make us a third-place finisher in the strong MVC.

Much of the Shockers' success will depend on the ability of Gene Wiley to recover from his ankle injury in time to perform up to his well known capacity. He will make the trip but it is not yet known whether he will start. In the event that Wiley is spared for the first part of the game, Big Sam Smith will again handle the pivot spot. Sam has handled the bulk of the board work exceptionally well in the last two games.

Should Wiley be able to go the route, the Shocks will have the three forwards to help him patrol the rebound area. This could be where the game is won or lost for either team.

SHORT TEAM EMPLOYMENT

Probably the shortest coaching tour of duty in WU history was terminated Tuesday. Vic Spooner, hired only last week as end and line-backer coach under Coach Marcelino Huerta, resigned Tuesday to take a similar position at Mississippi State. Spooner came here from a Presbyterian college in Clinton, S. C. Coach Huerta was very disappointed with the loss of Spooner but promised to find a replacement by next week. Spooner was lured away from the University by his former coach at Texas Tech. This again leaves one position open on Coach Huerta's staff.

Okla. State's Bowling Team Challenges LaFever's Keglers

By DEL DANIEL
Staff Reporter

Oklahoma State's powerful bowling team will visit the WU campus tomorrow afternoon to take on Coach Ralph LaFever's keggers in a special three-game match. The squads are to start on the CAC bowling lanes at 1 p.m. The public is invited to attend without charge.

In preparation for the match, the WU team smashed Kansas State Teachers' College last Wednesday night by the lopsided score of 2,803 pins to 2,760.

High point man in the KSTC-WU match was Del Daniel of WU with a three-game cluster of 638. He was followed by his teammate Bruce Fischer who tallied 612. Darryl Mason shot 593 for high point honors for KSTC.

Coach Sees Bright Future
Following the match with KSTC the WU team traveled to Lincoln, Neb. where they participated with 14 other colleges in the Missouri Valley region in a giant tournament. The WU bowlers who made the trip were Bruce Fischer, Mike Burton, Gil Riley, Ed Brehm, and Del Daniel.

Coach LaFever's team is currently in the number two slot in the South Central Conference standings behind the Southern Illinois keggers. According to LaFever this year's team is the best that he has ever had at WU and he is looking forward to the State Bowling Championships to be held at Kansas University.

Team Tourneys Upcoming
On March 3, LaFever will take his team to Oklahoma State University to bowl in the OS Invitational Tournament. He will take five men, each of them are averaging over 180.

Results are now in on the first round of the Marlboro Bowling Tournament that is going on in the CAC. WU bowling team manager, Ralph LaFever is conducting the tourney. He announced that 30 men and 8 women entered the first week's activities.

Winners Announced
In the men's division Del Daniel captured first place with a total of 672 pins for three games and was followed by Ben Whisenand 637, and John Wilen with 634. Janet Harms tossed a 614 series to win the first round of the women's competition although she barely managed to get by Lena Hartshorn who rolled a 606 total.

The second round of the tournament is now being bowled and the final round is set for the middle of next week. Weekly winners in each division receive a carton of Marlboros. The final winners will receive a trophy for themselves and have their names engraved on a giant trophy that is on display in the CAC.

KWIC To Broadcast Soon As CBA Affiliate

Radio station KWIC of the University, currently preparing for second semester broadcasting, has recently become affiliated with College Broadcasting Affiliates, a nation-wide organization.

KWIC will go into operation sometime next week and will also serve as the CBA's regional director for a five state area according to Mike Kucharo, KWIC station manager.

This affiliation with CBA will provide aid for KWIC in the fields of programing, engineering, and promotion. CBA will supply the station with tapes of speeches of outstanding educators and famous personalities which will be aired in the form of news editorials.

For the present time KWIC will be aired only to the girls' dormitory, but there are hopes of expanding broadcasting to the boys' dormitory sometime in the future according to Kucharo.

"This will be the only exclusive rock and roll station in Wichita," stated Kucharo. The rock and roll records will be supplemented with the tapes supplied by the CBA.

The station will be located at 650 on the dial and will broadcast between the hours 1 p.m. to midnight, seven days a week.

English Prof To Host TV Jazz Show

Bruce Cutler, assistant professor of English, will host a live television dramatization of jazz in America which is entitled, "What is Jazz?", Sunday from 12 to 1 p.m. on KARD-TV, Channel 3.

Cutler, ex-drummer and jazz musician from Chicago, will discuss how jazz began, how it developed, and what it is, with a modern jazz sextet supporting him.

Highlighting the program will be poetry readings by Cutler from the poetry of Alan Ginsberg accompanied by jazz blues played in the background.

To create the proper setting for the program, Cutler will make several costume changes throughout the program.

The sextet, made up of piano, bass, electric guitar, drums, bongo's and trombone, will assist Cutler's expressions of jazz.

Christian Sci Meet

The WU Christian Science Organization will meet today at 4 p.m. in Rm. B119, FAC. Everyone is invited to attend.

English Dept To Sponsor State Confab

The University department of English, through the Division of Continuing Education, will sponsor a state-wide conference on composition and literature tomorrow in the CAC, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Delegates to the conference will be comprised of teachers in junior and senior high schools, junior college, and college. Through panel discussions and speakers, they will investigate the "practical problems English instructors encounter in the teaching of composition and literature on all levels of learning."

Dr. James E. Ruoff, associate professor of English, will serve as conference director. Dr. James K. Sours, dean of University College and chairman of the political science department, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon.

English instructors from the University faculty, the Wichita public school system, and Kansas University will serve as members of the panel discussions.

University stuents may attend if they sign up in the Division of Continuing Education office.

Pol Sci Honorary Seeks Membership

Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary fraternity, is now taking applications for new members.

Those interested should leave their names at the main desk in the Political Science building by March 1, according to Shirley Reed, president.

Qualifications for membership include the following:

- 1) Graduate or upperclassman,
- 2) 10 hours of political science with at least three hours of upper division political science.
- 3) 3.000 average in political science,
- 4) Upper third of college class.

Dougherty, Wallace Cop 'Mushrat' Debate

Meredithann Dougherty and Judy Wallace, debating as a team, defeated four other University teams to take top honors in "mushrat," the University debators semi-annual intra-squad tournament. Miss Wallace and Miss Dougherty went undefeated throughout the competition. Their names will be inscribed on the "mushrat" trophy.
