Faculty-Artist Concert Series Program Slated for Tonight

Gerald Landon, a new member of the faculty in the School of Music, will present a Faculty Artist Concert in the Fine Arts Center Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., tonight.

Mr. Landon, a tenor, is an instructor of voice. He will sing groups of songs by John Dowland, Johannes Brahms, Claude Debussy, and Fernando Obradors. He will also perform Samuel Barber's "Hermit Songs" which are seldom done, yet are some of the finest English literature of today.

A graduate of Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., Landon has taught at Washington University; Troy State College, Troy, Ala.; Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, N.M.; and the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo.

In 1961 Landon was national finalist in both the American Opera Auditions and the Metropolitan Opera Auditions. He also has extensive professional experience in opera, oratorio and on the concert stage.

Landon's accompanist is his wife Emalou. She has toured with Leslie Chabay, artist in residence at Washington University, St. Louis, and served as assistant opera director for the WU opera workshop. She was coach and accompanist for the St. Louis Civic Opera and the Santa Fe Opera Company. Under the auspices of Kansas University, both Mr. and Mrs. Landon toured throughout the Midwest performing for schools, universities, and community concert series, as well as the Aspen Musical Festival, Aspen, Colo.

Faculty, staff, students, and guests are cordially invited to attend this concert.

Episcopal Chaplain To Hold Services

The third in a series of Lenten services will be held from 7:15 to 7:50 a.m. tomorrow in the Harvey D. Grace Memorial Chapel.

The services are sponsored by the United Christian Fellowship directed by Rev. Thomas Townsend. Tomorrow's service will be led by Rev. Edward Barnett, Episcopal Chaplain to the campus.

All students are invited to attend the services which are being held each Wednesday morning during Lent, according to Townsend.

YWCA Slates Fireside Chats For Students

Reservations are now being taken for the second "fireside chat" sponsored by YWCA, according to Janet Parrish, YWCA program chairman.

Dr. George Comstock will host students in his home on March 1, according to Miss Parrish. The topic of his "chat" will be "For the Fun of It."

All students are invited to attend these informal visit with University professors, according to Miss Parrish, but it is necessary to make a reservation as the number of student guests is limited due to the fact that the "chats" are held in the homes of the professors.

The first in the series of fireside chats was held at the home of President Lindquist, Sunday.

More than 20 students heard President Lindquist speak on his tour of Europe this summer.

For reservations, telephone Miss Parrish at MU 4-2873.

Film Society Movies Slated

"The Men Who Tread on the Tiger's Tail," a Japanese movie, and "The Red Balloon," a French movie, will be shown by the Wichita Film Society at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the FAC Auditorium, according to Dennis Tracy, CAC coordinator.

In 1944 Kurosawa was requested by the government to film this play. Kurosawa made very few changes in the story itself, and he presented it in a quasi-Kabuki style, using song to further and explain the action. He did insert a new character, a common porter, portrayed by the comedian Enomoto which changed the entire tone of the play.

An entirely new dimension was created: the Kabuki characters behaved with their customary gravity, speaking classical Japanese, moving with dignity and meaning. Enomoto using common everyday speech, acted just like the average person—the Japanese man-on-the-street. The result was that every traditional value in the play was called to question.

As a result, the film was banned by the Japanese government because it was unpatriotic. When the American occupation forces arrived, they extended the ban on the grounds that the film was "feudalistic" and it was not until 1953 that it was finally released.

"The Red Balloon," which is in color, won the Academy Award for the best original screenplay as well as the Special Award, Cannes International Film Festival; Special Award, Edinburgh Film Festival; and the Prix Louis Delluc (French Film Critics' Award.)

"One is tempted to read all sorts of meaning into this—the world's jealous destruction of fantasy and illusion, the end of childish innocence," stated Arthur King of the "Saturday Review."

"But it can be taken and enjoyed as simply the lovely image of a child's dream, an image whose special enchantment lies in its superb color shots of the streets, the shops, the crumbling tenement flats of Paris," he further stated.

Young Democrats To Meet Tonight

The University chapter of Young Democrats will hold a meeting tonight at 8:10, in Rm. 205 of the CAC, according to David Brewer, publicity chairman.

The featured speaker will be Dr. Marvin Harder, professor in the political science department, who will speak on "Voter Registration Drives." A discussion will follow his talk.

Three representatives from the University chapter of Young Democrats attended the Young Democrats National Convention, held in Las Vegas, Nev., during the semester break. They were Ed Meyers, president, Edith Pelletier, and Mike Snyder.

The agenda for tonight's meeting will include reports about the recent Young Democrats National Convention, the upcoming Young Democrat State Convention, and some ideas for fund raising.

An executive board meeting will be held at 7:30 prior to the regular meeting.

All members and interested persons are urged to attend.

Correction

It was erroneously reported in Friday's Sunflower that Aloys Wehr would lecture on Friday, Feb. 28.

Mr. Wehr was on campus yesterday and the lecture was delivered last night. The Two-Bit Flick, "High Society" reported to be shown last Friday will be shown Feb. 28.

The Sunflower staff wishes to apologize for the incorrect reporting of facts, for the inconvenience which this has caused students and faculty members, and to Mel Moorhouse, University Forum Board chairman, who arranged the visit of Mr. Wehr.

Faculty Senate

Change and innovation are characteristic of growth and transition. As we move towards July 1 and our entrance into the State system, changes are beginning to appear here and there. Perhaps the most recent observable one is the introduction to the school of a University Senate, a representative faculty-administrative body.

Although new to this campus, the Senate is by no means a unique innovation. The organization and its constitution are patterned from the one at Kansas State University. This elected group will meet twice a month to work out plans and problems on subjects that will range from committee appointments to long range plans for University expansion.

How, exactly, will the Senate serve the school?

First of all, it has no powers that the faculty as a whole does not have. The agenda for Senate meetings will be determined by suggestions and requests both from the faculty and the administration. It might well be described as a screening and coordinating committee.

The Senate will also appoint the various University committees and recommend action on the issues raised by them. It will serve as an aid to the faculty and protect them if necessary.

While on first glance this may look to some as another form of bureaucratic big brother, so often found in complex governmental institutions, it will undoubtedly prove its value many times over in the near future.

The student may well ask what this means to him.

Optimistically, the Senate will create greater cohesion among the faculty, and will clear the way for a closer working relationship with the administration. This succeeding, it will be able to expedite new programs and institutional improvements.

It follows that what is good for the faculty and the administration ultimately benefits the students.

Extended Schooling Required To Increase Basic Knowledge

KINGSTON, R.I.—(I.P.)—The undergraduate program in colleges of arts and sciences should be extended to five years and specialization by "majors" in these colleges should be dropped, where possible, Dr. Francis H. Horn, University of Rhode Island president, stated recently.

The job of bringing "more wisdom into the affairs of man and of nations," and in coping with the explosion of knowledge can "no longer be done...in the traditional four years, increasingly being compressed into three," he said.

Claiming that he was "not so naive as to discount the importance of specialized knowledge and professional preparation," Dr. Horn said, that nevertheless society's need for breadth of knowledge, critical judgment, and power to reason are just as significant.

While suggesting that "as much specialization as possible should be postponed to the graduate school," he also decried the tendency "to mold the college of arts and sciences into a lower level copy of the graduate school."

The impetus to re-shape the college of arts and sciences, he declared will not come from the faculty of this college, since its members constitute a stronghold conservatism and are resistant to change. "Real educational reform will depend upon the sort of leadership academic administrators—deans and presidents—give to the task," he added.

After noting that colleges of arts and sciences will be called upon to accommodate the largest percentage of the booming student population, Dr. Horn said there is

OSU Riflers Top WU Team In Meet Here

Oklahoma State University shot a total score of 1413 out of 1500 possible points, and the University Varsity team shot a total of 1373 out of 1500. The high scorer was Vic Woods of OSU who shot 292 out of 300 points, Gilbert said.

The University riflemen shot the following scores: Jim Garner, Liberal Arts junior, 285 out of 300; Hoyt Hilman, University College freshman, 274 out of 300; and Bill Johnson, University College freshman, 272 out of 300.

Bob Smith, Engineering sophomore, and Jay Renicker, Liberal Arts sophomore, tied with scores of 271 out of 300 possible points.

The Varsity Rifle team will compete in the National Rifle Association sectional match at the Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, Mo., on April 4, and in Lincoln, Nebr., on April 11.

Students Organize Support for Avery

Fred Funk, junior class president, has assumed leadership of the Collegiate - for - Avery - for - Governor campaign on campus.

Funk is chairman of a five-member committee of student leaders at the University who will organize the Avery-for-Governor campaign on campus.

The campus organization is similar to the Avery-for-Governor committees and organizations which have been formed at other Kansas universities and colleges, according to Funk. Avery is one of six GOP candidates seeking the nomination for governor.

Students wishing to work with the campaign should contact Fred Funk.

The Readers Speak

To the Editor:

This morning I went to my bookcases to get a book which I had promised to lend to one of my students, and discovered that I had already lent the book once too often—that the last borrower had not returned it.

This is not very important, for the book was not very valuable, though useful as a source of some essays that I consider profitable for some of my courses. Moreover, the volume was probably originally given to me by a publisher. This is, however the third time this week that I have discovered that one of my books has been lent to a student and not returned.

The books I keep in my office are kept chiefly to lend to students, and I do lend them freely, and without keeping any record. Considering the number of borrowings, the loss is small.

Nevertheless, I think that a good project for Lent would be for all the honest students in our University family (and they greatly outnumber the dishonest ones) to examine the books they have and return all the borrowed ones.

I should particularly appreciate the return of these, lent to students: "Essay on Comedy" by Meredith; "Essays" by Scott and Zeitlin; "Twenty-Three Plays" by Shakespeare (edited by G. B. Harrison); "English Literature and Its Backgrounds Vol. I and II," by Grabanier and Thompson; and "Pamela" (Everyman Edition) by Samuel Richardson.

It might be a good idea to include, also, some library books.

To the Editor:

The promoters of "Egghead Week" deserve our gratitude for making thought not just tolerated but actually praised for an entire week. We hardly have time for this sort of thing with our overwhelming load of social and athletic activities, but since the times involved were only class time, lunch time, and study time, listening was the main activity, and sex was often involved, the program was palatable.

Certain dissident groups, however, seem to think that such a week should be the rule rather than the exception. This is blasphemy, un-American, and verges upon the revolutionary.

The University should prepare its members to know the facts necessary to make money, to be able to rationalize the prejudices of their groups, to be highly critical of new ideas or "Un-American" alternatives, to be excellent spectators, and to become pre-eminently reactors.

Compare these high ideals with those suggested by the non-conformists: that the University should strive to provide an environment in which each person would test and reform his basic assumptions, questioning and discussing what men have seen and done and thought; that we should learn to understand and control ourselves. They would have us actually search for knowledge, not watch, but participate in "amateur" athletics, as though people were all one big family and really had equal rights.

"Egghead Week" like "Brotherhood Week" or Mother's Day is a fine idea in principle. The trouble is that people get the idea that intellectuals can be respected all year or that brotherhood is going to be practiced all the time or that we should honor our mother every day.

This is evil and impossible, and, although we always hesitate to attack an established tradition, we feel that because of the inherent dangers in "Egghead Week" that it must be banished from the University calendar in the coming years.

2nd Voyage to New World Secures Position in History

By BILL RAPPES, News Editor

Believe it or not, people of this age have seen a new discovery of America. The spirit of Christopher Columbus has sailed again.

In Merry Old England not so long ago four young men came to the Queen with an idea. They sought passage to the New World. They wanted to go forth and prove that music was flat.

Now the Queen didn't really believe such a silly notion, but she liked the adventuresome spirit of the young men so she granted their request and gave them the Nina, the Pinta, and the Santa Maria—three guitars with the amplifiers stuck on loud and a set of drums.

The people of England must not have believed that music is flat because they chased the poor young men from the streets pulling at their persons with terrible frenzy.

The trip to the lands of far away America must have been long and hard for the four young musicians. They arrived in a city owned by Indians called New York, and their hair had grown almost to their shoulders during the long voyage.

As the four young men looked out upon the savage shores of America, they were much afraid, for a monstrous tribe of young savages was waiting.

But to everyone's surprise, the horde of Americans did not fall upon them and tear them to pieces. Instead, the savages worshipped the explorers as gods and called them by the mystic and sacred title of "Beatles."

And the "Beatles" proved their theory. Their flat music sent the natives into throes of ecstasy.

But unfortunately, like Columbus who was cut out by Lief Erickson, who found that flat music had already been discovered. A noble explorer, named Elvis Presley, had come to the new land many years before and had fallen so in love with untamed America that he decided to stay.

Elvis Presley wished them luck, even though the "Beatles" didn't plan to stay long enough to be drafted.

The young explorers did discover many things, however. Even though flat music was already popular when they arrived, they found that the far reaches of the untamed wilderness where men seldom went was just the place for their music.

Their crew of nearly a dozen public relations men who made the dangerous trip with them proved something, too. They proved that musicians are made, not born.

The "Beatles" certainly left their mark. Their long hair started a wig industry and their pointed boots certainly will keep American witchdoctors in business doctoring corns.

So, just bear two things in mind, history students. History is still being made. There will always be great crusades and exciting explorations that open new trade routes and bring spices and riches from far away lands.

The other thing to remember is that if you wear a "Beatle" wig backwards, you smash into doors and things.

"Why?" is a question college students often ask when confronted with high auto insurance rates.

The student producers of "In the Shadow of a Mountain" said of their undertaking: "We could imagine lost caves filled with gold, caches of gold buried in creek beds and gold bullion among the boulders of the rugged Wichita Mountain range, crossed by the Spaniards so many years ago. We did not bring back gold, but we brought a film of our adventures."

The film resulted from a field trip undertaken as a class project by several students in Dr. Ross Taylor's American Civilization class. The 18 minute film is dedicated to Prof. Taylor as the "treasure" that they discovered.

"Newfoundland Sea Birds" is an 18 minute color film. A group of naturalists banding birds are shown along with interesting and amusing closeups of birds at their Green Island home.

Shockers, Drake to Finish Schedule; MVC Basketball Play-off in Offing

It will be known soon if there will have to be a play-off to decide the Missouri Valley conference basketball championship. The Drake Bulldogs finish their league schedule Saturday afternoon, and the University of Wichita Shockers wrap-up their last MVC game next Monday night.

Both schools will play those last games at home. Drake faces Tulsa Thursday night, and takes on St. Louis in a regionally televised game Saturday afternoon.

By the time the Shockers take the floor in their next game, Drake will have finished its conference schedule. Tulsa comes to town this Saturday night, to play in front of a sell-out crowd, and the North Texas State Eagles play the Shockers Monday night. Both Drake and Wichita have beaten their last two opponents in earlier games this season.

Cincinnati may have had some bad moments this season, but fortunately, last Saturday night was not one of those times. The Bearcats overcame a 10 point early first half deficit, to draw within one point of Drake at half-time.

They opened up the second half by scoring 10 straight points, while holding the Bulldogs to two free throws. After that, Drake was playing catch-up, nearly succeeding, only to go cold in the closing minutes, when the Bearcats continued to hit. Ron Krick was the hero of Cincy's 61-55 victory, pouring in 20 points. Ed Jucker's crew shot 52 per cent of the field goal attempts through the hoops.

St. Louis put up their usual never-say-die fight against the Shockers, but the Wichita speed and rebounding out-classed the Bills 86-71. Dave (The Rave) Stallworth led game scoring with 30 points. The fast-breaking Shockers stole the ball many times during the contest, and the full-court press forced St. Louis into too many errors.

Over the week-end, it was announced that Stallworth has been named to the All-Star team selected each season by the coaches of the National Basketball Association. The 6 foot 7 inch Shocker senior from Dallas, Tex., was picked with Bill Bradley of Princeton, Cotton Nash of Kentucky, Walt Hazzard of UCLA, and Lucius Jackson of Pan American. Six players were chosen because Stallworth and Nash tied in the balloting.

SHOCKER GUARD Kelly Pete vies for a rebound with a St. Louis player in Saturday's conference game with the Billikens.

University Senate Established To Serve Growing Faculty

By NANCY HARRIS, Managing Editor

In 1956 a committee reported to the faculty on the feasibility of establishing a University Senate, a two-way clearing house between administrators and faculty, for problems, plans and suggestions. It was deemed unnecessary at that time.

Such organizations are commonly used in large universities as a means of enhancing communication channels, and as this University grew, the need developed.

In September 1962, a committee was appointed to draw up a proposal. Much work and careful consideration was given to its formulation and the resulting proposal was accepted by faculty and administration in October 1963.

A University Senate now existed, but was not yet a functioning reality. This was to be an elected representative body so next came elections. The Senate constitution, drawn up in the proposal, provided for two representatives each from the undergraduate professional schools, with Liberal Arts being granted two each from the divisions of humanities, social science, and the natural sciences including math.

One member would represent the professional library staff and unassigned faculty, with six additional members coming from the faculty-at-large. The President and deans of degree granting colleges were included as ex officio members.

Elected by the faculty were Dr. Donald Christenson and Dr. Robert Lewis, College of Business Administration; Robert Hines and Joshua Missal, College of Fine Arts; Dr. Robert Holmer and Dr. Kenneth Nickel, College of Education; and Colon Dunn and William Ford, School of Engineering.

Elected from the College of Liberal Arts: A. C. Genova and Dr. J. Kelley Sowards, humanities division; Dr. David Farnsworth and Dr. D. O. Cowgill, social sciences division; and Dr. John Johnson and Robert Wherritt, mathematics and science division.

Elected members at-large were Gordon Terwilliger, Dr. David Herman, Phyllis Burgess, Dr. Allan

Cress, Dr. Lawrence Jones, and Dr. Alvin Saracek. Thorburn Targert, Jr. would represent the library staff and unassigned faculty.

To assure continuity, positions are to be held for two years with half of the representatives being replaced in each annual election.

With all the ground work behind, the new University Senate met for the first time Feb. 10. They met again yesterday.

Today, with their second meeting behind them, the Senate is recognized as an active, important segment of the University community.

7th News Forum Scheduled for Noon

The seventh in the series of News Forums will be held at noon today in the CAC Ballroom, according to Marshall Williams, assistant director of the CAC.

The panel for today's discussion will be, Mel Moorhouse, panel moderator; Kenneth Razak, dean of the School of Engineering; and Dr. Walter M. Merrill, professor and chairman of the English department.

The forum is designed to place the news before the group so that they may discuss the events with informed people, develop ideas, and gain the opinions of others.

Each week there will be present a panel of two members of the faculty and the moderator, Mel Moorhouse, assistant to the dean of University College. This week's topic will be a discussion of "The Week that Was."

The piece was written by Meyer after his recent trip to Sweden and discusses educational and instructional television in Sweden and its application to the schools of that country.

Meyer interviewed Mr. Sten-Sture Allebeck, director of SKOL-TV and Mr. Bertil Allander, program producer, in preparation for writing the article. The NAEB Journal is distributed around the world to teachers, broadcasters, and school administrators.
