Fine Arts Concert Slated for Tonight

A lecture by composer Vittorio Giannini and a performance by the University Singers will highlight tonight's Fine Arts Festival activities.

The lecture will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Giannini's topic will be "Music in our Nation."

After the lecture, the University Singers will present "Canticle of the Martyrs," a 15-minute choral work written by Giannini. The work was commissioned in commemoration of the 500th anniversary of the Moravian Church (Pennsylvania Dutch) and published for the Moravian Music Foundation by H. W. Gray, New York. The hymn tune section of the work is based on C. Gregor's "Hosanna" of 1783.

The University Singers' presentation is divided into three parts. The first part tells of the persecution of the believers and how they were tortured and killed for their beliefs. The second part features a solo by Sam Ramey describing the persecution.

The solo is followed by the chorus singing a prayer or hymn. The last part is a hosanna or hymn of rejoicing that the believers haven't died in vain.

Giannini, since 1939 has been a professor of composition at the Juilliard Graduate School and at the Manhattan School of Music. His summers are spent at the Brevard Music Center in North Carolina, where he is dean of the advanced division and composer in residence.

During his career, Giannini has been given numerous honors. He received the New York Critic's Circle Award for his opera "The Taming of the Shrew;" was appointed a fellow in the American Academy; and has been granted doctorates in music from the Cincinnati College Conservatory, the New York College of Music, and

WU Regents' Scholars To Receive Honorarium

The University, this year, has instituted the payment of a $50 honorarium to each of the annually selected Regents' Scholars, according to Henry Malone, scholarship counselor.

The annual designation of Regents' Recognition Scholars began two years ago under the auspices of President Harry Corbin and the Scholarship Committee. These students are a highly select group of incoming freshmen applicants.

The Scholars are singled out for recognition on the basis of an exceptionally high academic record from high school, a corroborating American College Test score, and recommendation from high school faculty. Prior to this year, the Recognition was a means of paying tribute to superior students who had no financial need for scholarships.

This year, all chosen Scholars will receive $50 and additional scholarships may be granted where financial need exists.

Past Regents' Scholars have been: 1962-63; Jeri Atherton, Patricia Beckford, Michael Belden, Mary Bracken, Virginia Coleman, Nancy Elliott, Constance Howell, Marcia McKee, John Morton, Sandra Mueller, Robert Oehlert, Wayne Pfeiffer, Susan Kay Siler, and Dallas Webster.

1963-64: Barbara Bunting, William Burnam, Mike Coup, Mary Daughenbaugh, Marilyn Hobson, Emogene Lewis, Kendra McKibbin, Sonya Missal, John Shaw, Mark Wentling, and David Doll.

Regents' Scholars for the coming year will be announced in May.

As head of the "get-out-the-vote" committee of the regents she arranged alumni cards by precincts, and supervised the calling of alumni to solicit votes on election day.

Mortar Board Alumnae and the Downtown Kiwanisques nominated Mrs. Edmiston for the "Wichita Woman of 1963" award.

Art Prof Speaks At St. Louis School

Dr. John Simoni, professor of art at the University, was the guest speaker for a program at Washington University in St. Louis, recently for the opening of the 400th anniversary of the death of Michelangelo da Buonarroti.

The program was held under the auspices of the Italian Cultural Society and the Italian Consulate of St. Louis. In speaking on "Michelangelo and His Work," Dr. Simoni presented the essence of the artist's aesthetics, with discussion and illustration of Michelangelo's art in architecture, painting, and sculpture.

One of the principle works studied was the "Pieta" that will soon arrive in New York City to be shown at the World's Fair.

A similar program is to be held at this University, Friday, April 24, in connection with the Southwestern College Art Conference. Dr. Simoni is currently the president and coordinator of the Conference.

Continuity Is Key

Candidates and would be parties have come and gone over the years with SGA elections. The accomplishments of those placed in offices have varied up and down the scale from significant to non-existent.

But regardless of what may have been achieved, where man reigns there is always room for improvement.

It is often difficult to improve anything, and especially a political party which springs to life only a matter of days before an election and dies shortly thereafter. Yet this has been the pattern of most campus politics.

The Ballast party, organized in 1961, has been the only successful attempt by students to maintain an organized political force in this school.

Carried over from one year to the next by students who come up from the ranks as party workers, Ballast has endeavored to offer the students continuity and through continuity improvements that can be attained only through time, experience, and sincere long-range interest.

For their continued interest in the school they attend, we believe the Ballast candidates deserve a vote of thanks, a vote of confidence, and a vote at the polls this Thursday and Friday.

Art Building Plans Still Undetermined

University officials are now studying alternative plans for the future of the Art Building, destroyed by fire March 27.

The plans include either the rebuilding and fire-proofing of the present damaged structure, or the acquisition of other land and construction of new facilities. The final decision, in part, will depend on the availability of funds, according to Glen Gardner, University vice-president.

The final decision will be announced in about two weeks, according to Gardner. At present, art classes are being held in Ablah Library basement and in the classroom under the old stadium.

The Division of Special Services announced for the information of the faculty, staff, and students that beginning July 1, 1964, no insurance will be carried on University buildings or their contents.

Any insurance coverage on individual faculty and staff libraries or other valuable personal property, housed in University facilities, will have to be carried by the individual. The State of Kansas will not accept any amount of liability in case of destruction or loss.

Profs Finally Getting Break With Income Tax Deductions

—Claremont, Calif.—(I.P.)—At long last the professor is getting a break with income tax deductions. After a seven-year court battle, discrimination against college and university professors, who have not been permitted to deduct ordinary and necessary expenses in connection with scholarly research ended recently with a ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The tax return was prepared in 1957, on behalf of the taxpayer, by Dr. George Gibbs, C.P.A., in practice in Claremont, Calif., himself a professor at Claremont Men's College.

Harold H. Davis, retired professor of English literature at Pomona College, obtained the ruling and stipulation reversing the decision of the United States Tax Court which had decided against him (8 to 6) on April 30, 1962. The main issue was the deductibility of the expenses of a trip in 1956 to England where he did research consisting of reading unique works in several libraries which gathering data on the Renaissance Period 1475-1640.

The government contended that because he had tenure he was not required to do this research abroad, nor was it "ordinary and necessary" toward maintaining his status as professor and teacher.

The second issue was the deductibility of depreciation and utilities for the professor's study which had been built especially for his research work. Mr. Gibbs carried the case through three levels when disallowed by the Internal Revenue auditor, by the informal conferee and by the appellate division. In the Tax Court, the case lost by a narrow margin.

After the appeal was filed the government asked for a delay and a conference was held in Washington on June 3, 1963 with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Subsequent to this meeting the main issue of the travel expense for research has been settled in favor of Prof. Davis by the issuance of Revenue Ruling 63-275, and the second issue of depreciation and utilities for the study has been settled by stipulation of the government. Thus the case, which started with a deduction in 1956, need not be heard in the Appeals Court. (These two rulings will thus apply to all professors in the same circumstances.)

In his dissenting opinion in the Tax Court, Judge Arnold Raum stated that 28 years ago the interpretation of "ordinary and necessary" as "appropriate" was established and that the government has been wrong ever since in following other cases.

WRA Basketball Tournament Continues Rousing Interest

By DENNICE DAUGHENBAUGH, Staff Reporter

On a campus such as ours, it is not uncommon for conversations to center around that notable sport of basketball. We as Shockers are very interested in and proud of the activities of our varsity basketball team.

Since the season's end, however, at least in the crowd excitement; if not in the maneuvers of a carefully drilled team, at least in the endeavors of a seriously motivated team (clownish though their endeavors may be). This tournament was carried on among members of WRA during the past week.

Much to the surprise of many, however, there recently raged in the world of basketball another great tournament. This little known, and certainly different tournament, compares with the famous NCAA, if not in the skill of the players' performance, at least in their determination; if not in the mass attendance at games,

Preparedness: ROTC Keynote Tennis Team Wins 7th; Anderson Undefeated

By GRADY NIXON, News Editor

Preparedness for summer camp is the keynote of rigorous training that junior Army ROTC cadets are currently receiving.

SUMMER CAMP is in order for these men being trained in throwing a hand grenade. Approximately 36 cadets at the University will attend the six-week summer camp this year.

The group, which is designated the Summer Camp Platoon, meets at noon on Thursday for physical training. This is the first year that this has been done, according to the Army ROTC faculty. The purpose of the training is to help prepare the approximately 36 cadets for the six week summer camp they must attend between their junior and senior year.

The cadets will apply the tactical knowledge they have gained in the classroom here at the University in practical exercises at Fort Riley, Kansas. They will also undergo a vigorous physical training program.

In the words of the cadet tactical officer Cadet Major John Martin, "The purpose of the summer camp platoon is to prepare the cadets mentally and physically for six weeks."

The platoon, during the course of the semester, will receive instruction in military courtesy, camp living procedures, extensive physical training, and the various duties of a cadet at summer camp.

Physical training is split up into five major areas: exercises, mile run, horizontal ladder, grenade throw, and 40 yard low crawl. There are set minimum times for each event.

Cadets have received some minor abrasions and sore muscles from the activities. They also have some headaches trying to put a shine on hopelessly scuffed boots each week, but in general they agree that the program is worthwhile and should be continued.

Cadet Lieutenant Jim Harris replied when asked what he thought of the effectiveness of the summer camp platoon, "I feel that my chances of doing a truly effective job at summer camp have been greatly increased by the program that we have set up for the summer camp platoon."

The University's tennis team chalked up its seventh win in a row Sunday afternoon, defeating the University of Tulsa 7-0.

Strong winds hampered the play, but the scores didn't indicate it. The Shockers' number one player, Ben Anzola, easily won his match 6-2 and 6-0.

Van Thompson, the number two player, lost his first match of the season, going down at the hands of Tulsa's Ron Pitman 6-4 and 6-4. Chester Anderson, tough senior letterman, continued his unbeaten skien, whipping TU's Wendel Clark, 6-3, 7-9 and 6-2. The 7-9 set loss was Anderson's first set defeat of the season. He is yet to lose a match in either singles or doubles.

Team captain Phil Adrian won his match 9-7 and 6-2. The Shockers' number five man, sophomore Lin Harris, lost 7-5, 5-7 and 6-2.

In doubles competition, the Shockers' team of Anzola and Anderson won 6-1 and 6-4. Adrian and Thompson beat their Tulsa rivals 6-2 and 7-5.

Last Friday, the Shockers easily defeated Southeastern Conference representative Arkansas, 6-0 on the University courts. The next foe for Neil Roush's squad will be a match with Oklahoma City University Wednesday afternoon.

Schoenwetter Awarded 1st At Emporia

Doug Schoenwetter, competing in the Emporia Relays at Emporia, Saturday, broke the meet discus mark.

Schoenwetter, who came to Wichita on a football scholarship, has switched over to track this spring, and the results are evident.

At Emporia he tossed the discus 168 feet, one and one-half inches, bettering the previous mark by 17 inches. Schoenwetter also won in the college division shot-put competition, to become the only double winner in the meet. He hurled the shot 52 feet, one and three-quarters inches.

Schoenwetter's career as a track and field competitor for the University began with a win in the tough Arkansas Relays, with a discus toss of 158 feet, ten and one-half inches.

The only difference for the girls will be in their bruised and aching bones, most certainly they will all be looking forward to next year, when they can once again attempt to prove their "All American Stuff"—failing in that, they can at least get a good laugh.

Peace Corps Training Open to College Juniors

By DAN GARRITY, Staff Reporter

The invitation of 500-700 college juniors to attend training centers across the United States this spring will inaugurate the recently innovated Peace Corps Senior Year Program.

Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, said that the program was instituted in answer to the hundreds of requests by college juniors to begin their training for Peace Corps placement before graduation. The program will be extended in the future if enough interest in the pilot program is generated.

The juniors selected will participate in a three phase training course prior to post-graduate overseas service. The first phase consists of a six week training period after completion of the junior year.

During the second phase the candidate returns to his regular college to complete his senior year. The third phase will return the aspirant to a training center for an extensive 4-8 week course before assignment.

"The main advantage is that the applicants can plan for eventual Peace Corps service. They might then revise their senior year curriculums to reflect their interest in a particular kind of Peace Corps assignment," Shriver reported.

The nominees will participate in one of six training programs this summer at a college or university designated a training center. The areas of training include instruction for placement in secondary education for English-speaking Africa, secondary education for French-speaking Africa, urban community development in Spanish-speaking Latin America, rural community development for Spanish-speaking Latin America, teachers of English as a foreign language, and applicants to learn more difficult languages not ordinarily taught in American colleges.

The program requires extensive study programs for under-graduates in foreign language. Applicants in the senior year phase of the new program and those desiring acceptance are encouraged to continue their foreign language studies.

Interested college juniors should immediately fill out a Peace Corps Questionnaire, and write on the front on it "Senior Year Program" and submit this when they take the next nation-wide Placement Test.

Juniors who are interested and have already submitted questionnaires should indicate their interest by writing to Division of Selection, Peace Corps, Washington, D.C., 20525.
