Debaters to Enter MV Speech Tourney

The Missouri Valley Forensic League Tournament will be held this year at the University of Kansas, March 26-28, according to Bobby Patton, head debate coach.

The University's four-man entry will be made up of a freshman, two sophomores and a junior. Returning from last year's squad will be Bob Glenn, Liberal Arts sophomore, debating for the affirmative with Sandy Swanson, a Liberal Arts sophomore. The other returning veteran will be Keith Williamson, Liberal Arts junior, paired with Bob Smith, University College freshman.

This year's question is "Resolved: That the present method of making committee assignments in the United States Congress should be abolished."

The University finished second last year behind the University of Oklahoma. The 13 member Missouri Valley Forensic League is made up of the members of the Big Eight plus the University of Texas, Louisiana State University, Creighton University, St. Louis University, and the University of Wichita.

The Missouri Valley Forensic League is generally regarded as the roughest debate league in the nation, according to Patton.

Entering extemporaneous speaking from the University will be Bill Balthrop, University College freshman, and Keith Williamson. Sandy Swanson will be the University's representative in oratory. The University is defending its

Teacher Interviews Slated for March

Three teacher interviews have been announced for the next two weeks by the Teacher Placement Bureau.

This week there will be two representatives on campus to interview prospective teachers. Tomorrow there will be a representative from Milwaukee, Wisc., and Saturday a representative from Lawrence, Kansas.

March 25, a representative from Rowland Heights, Calif., will be here to interview elementary candidates only.

Interested candidates should make appointments in Rm. 223, CAC.

New Faces in Basketball Finale

By BILL MINGLE, Sports Editor

The NCAA finals come up Friday and Saturday night with four virtual newcomers facing each other for the ultimate honors of college basketball.

The field was completed Saturday night, with Kansas State, UCLA, Michigan, and Duke winning regional titles. K-State meets the UCLANS in the first game Friday night, and the Wolverines of Michigan tangle with the Duke Blue Devils in the Friday night night-cap.

Wichita's Shockers came within 8 points of making the trip to Kansas City, but couldn't quite turn the trick against a fired-up bunch of Wildcats. Statistically, the Shockers out-played the 'Cats, in some areas, but 25 turn-overs kept the Shockers from pulling too close in the points column, where games are won and lost.

Tex Winter, who always does a superb coaching job, said the victory over Wichita marked his teams' best effort of the year. K-State will take a 14 game win string into the semi-final game championship in oratory. It was won last year by Vicky Hesse, now at K-State.

A special attraction of the tournament will be the banquet honoring Prof. E. C. Buehler, director of forensics at KU for the past 39 years. He will retire this June. Several members of the University faculty will attend this event.

Debate starts Thursday, March 26, and will be completed noon March 28.

"Serious competition is expected from the University of Nebraska, and Oklahoma University," stated Patton. "Graduate students are eligible to compete in this tournament adding to the difficulty of competition. Wichita has no graduate speech students," he added.

Leaving from Lawrence, a delegation of University debate students will journey to Butler University.

YWCA, AWS Announce New Officers

New officers in AWS and YWCA were announced following the election held Friday.

AWS officers are Kathie Hall, president; Trudy King, 1st vice president; Cyndee Shank, second vice president; Sandy Mueller, third vice president; Kaye Siler, recording secretary; Georgia Ensz, corresponding secretary; and Beth Miller, treasurer.

Unaffiliate representatives to the AWS Council are Sally Pierantoni, senior; Janice Martin, junior; and Nancy Mingle, sophomore, according to Linda George, past vice president.

YWCA officers are Nancy Elliott, president; Marilyn Minor, vice president; Jeri Atherton, recording secretary; Linda Yarberr, corresponding secretary; and Janet Parrish, treasurer, according to Nancy Carson, past president.

Violinist to Perform On Campus Thursday

By TED TILMA, Staff Reporter

A Japanese world-renowned teacher of violin and 10 of his students will be on the campus Thursday to perform a special program in the FAC auditorium.

Shinichi Suzuki and his group will perform at 4:30 p.m. and again at 7:30 p.m., according to James Ceasar, associate professor of violin at the University.

Mr. Suzuki, director of "Talent Education" in Japan, a program involving 6,000 students and 100 teachers, teaches only students who have not been pre-tested or otherwise trained in music and who really desire to learn, Professor Ceasar said.

Mr. Suzuki has two approaches to the teaching of music, and in a pamphlet written by him, entitled "Every Child Can Be Educated," he reveals these two approaches.

The Japanese teacher feels that a child's abilities "develop by being developed" and that the only way a child can develop an ear for music is by listening to music from the time he can understand it.

"An ear for music is a human aptitude which can only be developed by listening," the noted music educator declares.

Listening however, is not the only thing that must be done in order to become proficient in music. Mr. Suzuki feels that to be proficient in anything one must master it. Mr. Suzuki trains his students on one piece at a time until the student has mastered that piece completely. Then, and only then will he proceed to the next lesson.

In his pamphlet Mr. Suzuki states "Musical aptitude is not inborn I urge you to explore and develop new paths for the educations of children so that all American children will be given the happiness which they deserve."

According to Professor Ceasar, Mr. Suzuki will arrive in Wichita March 18, accompanied by his 10 performers, eight girls and two boys, ranging in age from 5 to 12 years. Professor Ceasar and Dr. N. H. Pronko, head of the psychology department, were instrumental

Lure of European Seminar Attracts 7 WU Students

Forty-two days in Europe is what some summer seminar students are looking forward to. Reservations for the 1964 European Seminar will be accepted until April by the Division of Continuing Education.

Already enrolled for the summer traveling course are Linda Anderson, Dave Crockett, Jerry Haag, Tom Kreiling, Walter Pringle, Kaye Siler, and Monte Tatro, all from the University.

Others included to date are Bob Xidis, University of Kansas; John Francis, Ft. Hays; and sisters—Lois Haag from the University of Colorado and Bettina Haag from the University of Wisconsin.

An all inclusive cost of $1,258.00 will cover all travel and accomodations expenses including trans-Atlantic jet flight. In addition, excursion, theater and concert tickets, and portage fees are covered by the rate.

A $250 scholarship will be awarded to one of the students enrolled for the course. The recipient will be announced before April 15. Deadline for enrollment in the seminar is April 1.

Credit in Humanities 299 (4 hours) will be given to those students wishing to enroll for credit at the regular tuition rate.

The 1964 Seminar will be under the direction of Dr. James Ruoff, professor of English.

Reservations may be made with the deposit of $100 at the office of the Division of Continuing Education, Jardine Hall.

Shakespearean Festival Slated

The Shakespearean Festival sponsored by the Campus Activities Center will hold two events this week in conjunction with the 400th anniversary of William Shakespeare.

The Film Society will cooperate with the English department to sponsor a showing of "Richard III" and a discussion afterwards today in the Commons Building.

Dr. James Ruoff, associate professor of English, will introduce the film at 8 tonight in the Commons Auditorium. After the showing, Dr. Ruoff will lead a discussion on the movie presentation of the play and an analysis of the play.

"Richard III," produced and directed by Laurence Olivier is described by the Saturday Review magazine as "the definitive interpretation of one of the great roles in dramatic literature."

Dr. Ruoff described the play as being "one of the earliest presentations of the Machiavellian villain." Richard III comes alive, he said, through Olivier's interpretation of the Shakespearean character as the true Machiavellian prince, hated by the Elizabethans. He is ruthless, cynical, self-seeking, and atheistical. An admission fee of 50 cents for students and one dollar for others will be charged.

A talk on "Producing Shakespeare" by Richard Welsbacher, director of the theater, will be presented tomorrow afternoon in Area 9 of the CAC.

Mr. Welsbacher, who has been quite active in theatrical productions both as an actor and producer, produced the University Player's production of "Macbeth."

The Shakespearean Festival runs March 16-23 on the campus. Coffee will be served at both of the events.

SGA Filing Begins; Voting Set for April

Filing for candidates in the coming campus election opened yesterday, according to Dan Tontz, election commissioner.

All students and parties wishing to compete for offices in SGA and for class offices must file in the SGA office in the Campus Activities Center.

The all-school election will be held April 10.

Government Post Vacancies Announced by SGA President

The Congress of the University Student Government Association will convene this evening in Conference Area 9 at 6:30 in the CAC, according to Dave Leach, Student Government president.

There are now two vacant posts to be filled on the Student Government, according to Leach. They are a music representative and a proportional representative. The requirements for the music representative are that the person must be a full-time student enrolled in at least nine hours, have a grade point average of 2.25 or better, and enrolled in the School of Music.

The qualifications for the proportional representative are that the person be a full-time student in any college with an overall grade point of 2.25 or better. Applications may be picked up in the SGA Office, second floor of the CAC, or by contacting Mary Ann Hopper, Student Government secretary.

The agenda for the meeting will include reports from the standing committee chairman, Connie Howell, John Morton, Catha Cowgill, Dan Tontz, Patty Bonner, and Bob Long. There will also be reports from Hippodrome chairman, Fred Funk, and JFK Scholarship chairman, Nancy Anderson.

All Congressmen are urged to attend.

Coach Ralph Miller

of this week in Kansas City, ultimate honors of college that Kansas State played a marvelous ball game, and noted that they certainly deserved to win the contest. Coach Winter paid coach Miller a fine compliment after the contest by noting, "Ralph undoubtedly did the finest coaching job of his career this season. His kids are superbly coached. We had to be at our best to beat them."

The Shocks are far from being the only team in the top ten clubs in the country to be left out of things at Kansas City. Kentucky, Loyola, and Texas Western were all bumped off in regional play. Oregon State, Davidson, Ohio State, Arizona State, and Texas A&M didn't even make it to the regionals.

This Shocker basketball club of 1963-64 is, without a doubt, the greatest in the school's history.

Inquire and Vote

A soon to graduate senior who has been on the campus for three years asked recently—"You mean we have class officers? Well what do they do?"

The answer is, we do indeed have class officers. The sophomore, junior, and senior classes each elect a president who will serve as the class representative in the Student Government Association (this is the organization implied when you hear the term SGA being tossed about). They also serve on the Special Events Committee.

We not only have class presidents, but also representatives in the SGA from our college. Each college has two representatives, with the exception of University College. The freshman class is represented by one appointed member.

As for how these positions are filled...we, the students, hold annual elections each spring for the following year.

To some this explanation no doubt sounds a bit elementary, but there must be many who are not aware of the procedure because each year—out of some five or six thousand students—only five or six hundred vote. In very basic terms this means that every one who votes is, in effect, making a decision for 10 people.

Good citizenship is often the result of good habits. And it's good to develop the habit of taking an active interest in the affairs that surround us. If we can't take time to learn something of the leaders right on our own campus, will we ever find time to make serious consideration of politics on the city, state or national level?

Candidate filing for the general election to be held April 10 is now open. During the next few weeks much will be written and said by and about the people who would be our leaders. Those who go to the polls will decide who will hold our most responsible student positions during our first year as a state school.

If you don't want others making your decision—start now—inquire and vote.

International Culb Schedules Persian New Year Festival

The International Club will observe its Persian New Year Friday, March 21, by having a Spring Festival in the Ballroom of the CAC from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m., according to Al Raisdana, president.

The Festival will include a dance, a variety show which includes dances from different countries, musical entertainment and various other exhibitions.

The Club has engaged the John Rapaza Band for the Festival, and there will also be dancing and refreshments for all attending.

The International Club, only a few years old, has now grown to the largest organization on campus with 195 active members to date, stated Raisdana.

All members will be admitted free to the Festival and non-members will be charged 35 cents.

"All University faculty members and students are welcome to attend the Persian New Year Festival," stated Raisdana. "It is open to non-members as well as to its own members," he added.

Tea and Conversation, which will be held tomorrow afternoon from 3-5 p.m., in Area 2 of the CAC, will have as its guest speaker, Dr. Eugene Savaiano, head of the Spanish department, according to Raisdana.

Army ROTC To Sponsor Rifle Match

The 9th Annual University of Wichita High School Invitational Rifle Match will be held March 19-21. The match is sponsored by the U. S. Army ROTC unit at the University.

Over thirty teams from high schools and military schools in Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska, and Louisiana are expected according to Colonel Preston W. Wyand, Professor of Military Science and Match Director.

Among the teams already registered are Enid High School, Enid, Oklahoma, 1962 and 1963 High School Girls team winner and 1963 Grand Champion winner; and Benson High School, Omaha, Nebraska, 1963 High School ROTC team winner. Three teams from Shreveport, Louisiana will travel to Wichita for the match.

The competition will be divided into three classes: (1) high school boys (2) high school girls and (3) high school ROTC divisions. Military schools participating will fire in the high school ROTC division.

Each team will consist of four firers and a coach. The teams will fire twice during the match, team and individual scores. The team match will consist of four positions—prone, kneeling, sitting, and standing. The individual matches will be three positions—prone, kneeling, and standing.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners of each division plus a trophy for the team with the highest aggregate score (team and individual scores).

Medals will be given to all members of teams placing first, second or third in their divisions. The top ten individual shooters will also receive medals.

Trophies for the match have been donated by Greater Downtown Wichita, Union National Bank, Steffen's Dairy Foods, Coca Cola Bottling Company and American Legion "Air Capital" Post Number 401.

"The program is free and faculty, staff, and all students are cordially invited to attend," he said.

Between the Book Ends

The McLandress Dimension, Mark Epernay, Houghton-Mifflin Co., 1963

Some of the most exciting advances in the field of psychometrics have been made by Dr. Herschel McLandress. These advances and their applications are discussed in this book by journalist Mark Epernay, who has been called the Boswell of Herschel McLandress.

In a series of fascinating essays, Mr. Epernay deals with the McLandress Dimension, the McLandress Solution and Dr. McLandress' ingenious system for measuring the American Sociometric Peerage.

Perhaps the most interesting of these measurements is the McLandress Coefficient, referred to in scientific circles as the McL-C (pronounced Mack-el-see). The McL-C is a thing of some complexity, but very simply it is a measurement of time in which the measuree's attention is focused on some subject other than himself. Criteria used to determine the McL-C include primary material—that written or spoken by the person being measured—and, in some instances, an interview conducted for the specific purpose of measuring the coefficient.

As you can well imagine, some of the resulting figures have been surprising to say the least. Dr. McLandress is careful to say that this work is still in a preliminary stage, and that the coefficient is "value-free." That is, a low coefficient is not necessarily more desirable than a higher one.

As might be expected, there is a close correlation between the occupation of the person and his McL-C. Thus, actors tend to have lower coefficients than do writers and playwrights. Journalists tend to have low coefficients. Dr. McLandress can find no recognizable trend among people in government. Winston Churchill was found to have a McL-C of eight minutes. General de Gaulle was thought to have an astonishingly long coefficient of seven hours, thirty minutes. Upon re-evaluation it was found that the subject's thoughts are constantly on France. Since Dr. McLandress feels that France is a surrogate of de Gaulle's own person the original McL-C was invalid. An adjusted calculation revealed a coefficient of one minute, thirty seconds.

One of the longest McL-Cs on record is that of Dr. Martin Luther King, four hours. Two other men of the cloth, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and Reverend Billy Graham, have coefficients in the middle minute range. The lowest coefficient ever recorded was three seconds. It belonged to Richard Nixon. Another Republican politician, Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen, is the only member of the U. S. Senate with a McL-C of over fifteen minutes. His coefficient is a surprisingly long three hours, twenty-five minutes.

Other people in the public eye have been evaluated and their coefficients are all to be found in this study.

The McL-C is only one of the fascinating systems of measurements discussed by Mr. Epernay. You may not agree with Dr. McLandress' finding but they remain a controversial and interesting topic for discussion by both laymen and those trained in the field of psychometrics.

Economic Education Course To Be Given

A three-hour course in economic education for teachers of grades one through twelve will be offered by the University, June 8 through June 26.

The course is designed specifically for teachers or graduating education seniors who have had little, if any, formal education in economics.

Class will be held from 8-11:30 a.m. and from 1-3:30 p.m. Lectures will be from 8-9 a.m. and from 1-2 p.m., and the remaining time will be devoted to research and curriculum building. Miss Gammon, elementary coordinator of the Wichita Public School System, will direct curriculum building.

Dr. George Fersh, associate director of the Joint Council on Economic Education, will be the first lecturer. Dr. Lawrence Senesh, professor of economic education, Purdue University, will also lecture later in the course along with other noted speakers in economics, business and education.

The program is sponsored by the Wichita Public School System, the Kansas Council on Economic Education, the Washburn Fund for Economic Education, and the College of Business Administration and Industry.

Shocker Shenanigans

By LORRY BROSIUS, Society Editor

For the second weekend in a row basketball dominated the interest and activities of students in Wichita. Loyal Shocker fans, who were fortunate enough to have tickets, filled their portion of the Field House to capacity to watch the exciting NCAA tournament games and those who could not be there in person made up a multitude of listening and viewing parties.

Betas extended their Saturday concert and held an adult concert watch party into a house party dance for dates.

Achievements of three Tri Deltas were noted at the recent initiation dinner of the group. Jan McConachie was named Best Pledge; Barbara Hammond was honored for having the highest overall grade average; and Ann Senholz received praise for showing the most improvement in grades.

Mu Phi Epsilon, international professional music sorority, recently initiated the following to membership: Ledee Arbuckle, Sharon Briggeman, Linda Higgins, Connie John, Helen King, Sue Kirkpatrick, Cindy Nester, Sharon Ori, Diane Riley, Anna Sutula and Jean Young.

Gamma Phi Caryl Cox has announced her lavaliering to Phi Delta Woody Woodall.

On tour, the University Symphony entertained children in Ponca City at a special children's concert and held an adult concert in Enid last week.

Alpha Phis installed new officers Monday evening and then planned a Friday all-girl dessert to honor them. They will be joined at the gala by their alumnae advisors.

Phi Deltas are back in the spaghetti business—they are inviting students and faculty to attend their annual dinner on April 4 and 5. Tickets are available for $1.25 from any Phi Delta, and they are promising a full meal prepared by an expert spaghetti chef along with atmosphere—candlelight and Flamenco guitar.

Iota Sigma Alpha members gathered Sunday evening for a chili supper at their house, and it is certain that basketball was one of the prime topics of conversation after Saturday's exciting game.

Men of Beta Theta Pi who will lead their group as officers are: Sam Gill, president; Rudy Nydegger, vice president; Sid Stark, treasurer; Jeff Brooks, recorder; Jeff Bacon, alumni secretary; John Burchfield, pledge trainer; Rex Molder, house manager; and Tom Seigle, sergeant-at-arms.

The Gamma Phi house has had many guests to see the stereo presented to the actives by the new initiates. The pledges saved all semester and presented the stereo on the night of their initiation, along with new records.

Candle passing at the Delta Delta house by Barbara Bunting announced her lavaliering to Phi Delta Bob McCullough, and Janice Johansen used the same method to notify her sorority sisters of her engagement to Bill Brittain.

Spring pledge class of Beta Theta Pi includes Dale Webster, Ken Olson, Frank Bush, Delbert Motts, Terry Witt, Bill Carter, Bob Dool, Ken Havener, Mike Hall, Dean DeHaven, Rich Hawley, Bill Balthrop, Doug Stucky, Butch

Disky, Marlyn Eshelman, Bill Reeling Rifles and Anchoresses who traveled to Champaign, Ill., over the weekend to participate in the national drill meet held annually there. They report weary feet, sleepless nights and an unusually hospitable host school.

The troops have returned, that is, members of Army Blues, Persh-

PEP TROPHIES were awarded to Alpha Chi Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon here accepted by Katie Bone and John Morton.

Around the Campus

Concert To Be Tonight

The annual student sponsored American Music Concert will be held at 8:15 tonight in the FAC Concert Hall.

The concert is presented each year by Mu Phi Epsilon and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, honorary music organizations. The concert is a requirement of the national offices of the organizations to be held annually, according to Moses Co-field, member of the American Music Committee.

The music of five composers will be featured. They are: Paul Hindemith, Micheal Colgrass, Eugene Butler, Lamar Stringfield, and Bennie Beach. All of the composers are American.

The concert will be completely student run, including student conductors for two selections. The American Music Committee is composed of two students, Moses Co-field, and Carolyn Howe.

All of the music on the program is instrumental. Both solos and ensembles will be included.

Faculty sponsors of the program are Dr. Eunice Boardman, and Charles Bath. President of Mu Phi Epsilon is Roberta Brown. President of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia is Isham Peugh.

AF-ROTC Slates Party

The Air Force ROTC will sponsor an Easter party for students of the Institute of Logopedics at 1 p.m. Thursday, March 19, in the FAC concert hall.

Entertainment will be provided by Miss Beverly who is nationally known for her children's television show, Romper Room. Her program will include songs, a puppet show, and cartoons. Adding to the general gaiety, two cadets will be dressed as Easter bunnies.

The 7-up and Trim Bar companies have donated refreshments for the 350 students expected to attend the event. Girls of the Angel Flight, a group of the Women's Auxiliary of Air Force ROTC, will serve refreshments. An Easter egg hunt will also be held.

Reel Time Scheduled

Reel Time will present "The Birth of a Nation" today at noon in the Audiovisual Center in addition to the showing of "Moscow Concert" at noon tomorrow, which is the regular showing.

"The Birth of a Nation" a 175 minute silent film stars Henry B. Walthall, James Marsh, Lillian Gish, and Robert Harron. Some consider this film one of the most important ever made. It did not earn its great fame because of its subject matter, length, or complexity alone.

The producer drew upon all the technical devices he and other men had developed. He forced this medium of pictorial expression to show all its possibilities for the first time. It established once and for all the basic nature and capacities of a motion picture. When first shown the film convinced many that the motion picture was indeed an entirely new form of expression.

The film came from the Museum of Modern Art Film Library in New York.

Tomorrow's regular Reel Time feature will be a 60 minute film "Moscow Concert."

This film is one of the Bernstein Concert Series filmed at the Tchaikovsky Conservatory. It features Dimitri Shostakovich's "Seventh Symphony" and Aaron Copland's "Billy the Kid" ballet suite. Appearances are made by Boris Pasternak and Dimitri Shostakovich. The film shows the Russian people strongly moved as they hear Bernstein talk and hear the music of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Lenten Service Tomorrow

The Rev. A. R. Bordenkircher, O.P., director of the Roman Catholic Student Center of the University, will speak at the Lenten service tomorrow in the Harvey D. Grace Memorial Chapel.

He will speak on "The Meaning of Adversity."

The weekly services during Lent are being sponsored by the United Christian Fellowship, Rev. Thomas Townsend, director.

According to Townsend, all students are invited to attend the services which are being held each Wednesday morning during Lent.

Dialectica Sets Lecture

Dialectica, the philosophy club, will present Dr. John Millett, professor of political science, lecturing on the relationship of government to the individual, tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Area 9 of the CAC.

row at 8 p.m. in Area 9 of the CAC.

Professor Millett's speech will be entitled "Variations on a Theme by Locke." Extemporaneous comments will be given by Jack D. Hey-singer, dean of business administration.

All interested students are invited to attend this free lecture which will be followed by a discussion and refreshments.

News Forum Today

Mel Moorhouse, assistant to the dean of University College, returns as moderator on this week's News Forum to be held in the CAC East Ballroom from 12-1 p.m. today.

Dr. Lowell Holmes, associate professor of sociology, and Dr. Ross Taylor, head of the American civilization department, will be guest panelists.

Everyone is invited to attend the forum which seeks to stimulate ideas and thoughts on current events. It also provides an opportunity for students to get acquainted with faculty members of the various departments.

Free coffee is available and students are encouraged to bring their lunches if they desire.

Girl Scout Leader's Duties Varied

By BILL RAPPS, News Editor

Although no coed on this campus will admit it, recently concluded Girl Scout Week has been guilty of an error of omission.

Because while we all pay homage to nuclear physicists that are every day solving complicated problems, and engineers that brave the elements to erect great structures, in each obscure suburbia some housewife mans a post that is far more forboding.

I am speaking of the brave, courageous American housewife who volunteers, without thought to her sanity, to serve as a leader of a Girl Scout troop.

For those of you who don't have sisters, or who have never been a girl scout, this is what really goes on at a girl scout meeting:

Leader Smith sits nervously in the living room of her modest split-level suburban home and awaits the coming of the horde.

The girls enter with their green dresses and unendurable enthusiasm. It is a tough battle but Leader Smith manages to successfully defend the refreshments against the first rush.

The meeting is called to order, that is, half the troop repeats the pledge of allegiance while the other half pilfers the refreshments. When the first squad comes to "one Nation" the other group takes up the words while the first deploys to attack the eats. Leader Smith never knows where two gallons of tutti-frutti punch went.

Next Leader Smith must face the jabbering throng, tear their attention away from the "boy pictures" and collect dues. Leader Smith's daughter, being treasurer, is supposed to do this, but she has already "done all the stuff" and doesn't feel obligated to attend the meeting just because her mother was enticed into leading a troop.

"Jane, do you have your money?" quires Mrs. Smith.

"I certainly do? Right here it is, a whole dime."

"But Janie, dear, you're four weeks behind and you owe 50 cents."

"Could you loan me 50 cents, Mrs. Smith?"

"No, Janie. I don't have any change."

"Oh, that's all right, Mrs. Smith. You can just mark me paid and versity, Indianapolis, Ind., to attend the first national tournament of Delta Sigma Rho—Tau Kappa Alpha honorary forensic fraternity.

Representing the University will be a four-man team comprised of Bill Balthrop, and Bob Glenn for the affirmative, and Bob Smith and Pam McMaster, Liberal Arts sophomore, on the negative. Linda Chapman, University College freshman, will be the University representative in the National Student Congress.

Prof. Mel P Moorhouse, associate professor of forensics, will accompany this delegation.

Activities will be concluded April 2, according to Patton.

owe it to the treasury instead of to me."

The meeting progresses. Finally the last order of business is reached. "And now," Leader Smith announces jubilantly, "Florence will read the progress report on our project for the old folk's home. Florence, dear." The girl whirls into the center of the room and flourishes a piece of paper.

"As of right now our troop has 14 hobby baskets. When we return the 12 baskets that the Red Cross gave us for patterns, we'll have two whole baskets to go to the home. We haven't decided which home to . . . say, Marjorie, you finally changed your shade of lipstick, didn't you. (Marjorie has been wearing lipstick for nearly two weeks.) It looks great, too. Didn't I tell you that Raspberry Rosette mixed with Passion Purple would do you a world of good?"

"Florence, please finish the report."

"OK, OK, Now about which home to . . . say, Betty, kid, did I tell you that I know this girl that doesn't know you're supposed to put lipstick on both lips?"

Finally the girls exit. They miraculously gather up all the books, coats and purses and dance out the door. The rally is over. Nothing was accomplished, but the mothers will take care of the real work at their meeting after dinner.

Leader Smith stands in the doorway and watches the girls slowly wend their way homeward in the Grand Prix that arrive to pick them up. The house is a mess; Leader Smith's nerves are shot; supper is late; and there is no glint of satisfaction, no glimmer of accomplishment in her face because if she follows the pattern, Leader Smith is probably a den mother too.

Gore Scholarship Awarded

The 12th annual Gore scholarship of $5,000 was awarded this week by the University to a senior at Derby High School.

The winner, Robert Shields, competed with 119 applicants for the scholarship awarded on the basis of character, leadership, good citizenship and scholarship.

The Gore Scholarship was established by Theodore Gore, Wichita oilman and businessman, and the late Ralph Gore, New York businessman, in honor of their father, Harry Gore.

The Gore family expressed the hope that the stipend would help the various recipients to prepare themselves fully for future citizenship and leadership.

All winners are expected to participate in extra-curricular activities as well as maintain good scholarship while attending the University.

Current holders of the Gore scholarship are: Sam Gill, senior; Kathie Hall, junior; Bob Glenn, sophomore; and Sherry Herndon, freshman.

Shields is currently president of the Derby High School student council, president of the Derby chapter of the National Forensic League, parliamentarian for the

Directories Taken From WU Office

Two copies of the Summer Employment Directory are missing from the Placement office, according to Nan Tontz, secretary of the Placement Office. The directories are worth three dollars each. She asked that they be returned as soon as possible.

Illinois Grants Assistantships To 2 WU German Majors

Assistantships totaling $4400 were granted to University German majors Richard L. Allen and Charles Dietrick last week by Illinois University.

Dr. Allen Cress, chairman of the German department, said that each of the two seniors was offered a $2,200 half-time assistantship.

"This means the students will be able to carry half a load as assistant instructors and half a load as graduate students."

Both students stated that Dr. Cress, a graduate of Illinois University, was instrumental in securing the grants. The two students will graduate in June.

Allen stated that he was stimulated toward language study through his Air Force training. He was stationed in Turkey as a Russian linguist. His wife, Janet, is currently on an assistantship here at the University.

Dietrick graduated from Salina High School in 1956 and served in the Marine Corps from 1958 to 1961. He plans to move to Champaign, Ill., in time for the fall semester there.

Allen and Dietrick both plan to obtain their doctorate degree and teach on the college level.

Allen has a special interest in comparative literature and Detrick in German literature.

DAVE STALLWORTH made many points this season with players hanging onto him. He made this shot and the referee didn't see the foul.
